Mrs. Charles H. Brown's Brilliant Reception for Her Daughter-Mrs. John Clark dones' Function for Miss Jones-Society Events.

The pace set by the swells week before inst was entirely too killing to last long, and last week showed a decided disposition on the part of society to take life a little more conservatively. Per consequence, the functions were not so numerous, yet those given were upon an elaborate scale, and Omaha quite sustained its reputation for the beauty of its entertainments.

The following will the the makeup of the Yale University Glee ciub for the coming year: First tenors—G. H. Fox, '94; H. Holt, '94; W. I. Clock, '94s; J. St. J. Nolan, '95; G. Jaconus, '95; C. S. Stephenson, '95s; substitute, E. H. Hume, '97. Second tenors—H. B. Jepson, P. G.; W. J. Sheehan, M. S.; A. P. Bartlett, '94; A. DeW. Erskine, '94s; T. M. Debevoise, '95; J. H. Richards, '95; substitutes, R. F. Smith, '94; H. E. Nolan, '97. First bass—D. B. Lyman, '94; J. B. Solly, First bass—D. B. Lyman, '94; J. B. Solly, '94; B. Spock, '95; W. G. Vincent, '95; G. Parker, '97; substitute, A. Pfeiffer, '94s, Second bass—M. Warner, '94; L. Smith, '94; P. S. Evans, jr., '95; A. G. Walker, '96; substitute, E. C. Lackland, '96.

Mme. Patti has been renewing her former triumphs in New York, the metropolitan press being a unit in praise of "la diva," whose voice, they say, has lost none of its wonderful sweetness, and as for the madame herself, she is the same charming woman as of yore, making social triumphs quite as brilliant in their way as her notable successes on the concert stage.

Last Sunday she took a drive in the park, and on her return she held a small levee in her parlor at the Windsor hotel. She was in high spirits, says the New York Times, and greeted every one who called with a pleasant smile and many with some words of recognition or remembrance. She had fully recovered, she said, from her recent indisposition-the result of a siight cold contracted on shipboard-and apprehended no

The diva spoke with delight of her reception at Music hall on Saturday afternoon. The stage was very draughty, she said, and after her long confinement this was particularly trying to ber nerves. It was this, no doubt, that gave the impression that she was in a bad temper. "Of course," she added, "I was nothing of the sort."

While Mme, Patti was receiving her visitors Sig Nicolini had a little gathering in his apartments and an impromptu musicale was given which was rather unique in its way. All of the selections save two were for the violin and Sig. Nicolini sang, showand sweetness.

That string music preponderated was due to the fact that Sig. Nicolini is an enthusiast over violins, and has spent many thousands of dollars in collecting rare instruments. In his collection is an Antoninus Stradivarius, a Nicolaus Amati, which cost him $2,000; as Andreas Amati and a Paolo Magini, his latest acquisition. This instrument he purchased last week from a dealer in this city. The price paid for it was $2,500, and yesterday was the time selected by Sig. Nicolini to ve shown to a few friends the rare tone of this and some of the other violins.

The program was as follows: Concerto for two violins, J. S. Bach, Messrs, Nahan Franko and Sinsheimer; piano solo, ranp-sodie by Liszt, Mr. Max Liebling; violin solo, Romanze, by Wilhelmj, Mr. Nahan Franko; "Salve Dimora," from "Faust," Sig. Nico-lini; duettini for violins, by Godard, Messrs. Nahan Franko and Sinsheimer; Romanze in P, by Beethoven, Mr. Bernard Sinsheimer. Mme. Patti came into the room just as Sig. Nicolini had finished singing and very angry because he had not called her to

Among those present at the musicale rere: Edward Rosewater of Omaha, Sig. De Vivo, Emilio Pizzi, the composer; Mar-shall P. Wilder, Sig. Borilli and Mr. Hauser. There was still another interesting little night, when the prima donna presented a diamond ring of three circlets of gold, three diamonds and six rubies to Mrs. George R. Gilchrist of One Hundred and street. The embroidered din-which Mrs. Glichrist gave to ner set which Mrs. Glichrist gave to Mme. Patti some time ago has just been sent back from the World's fair. It consists of sixty pieces in all, designed and embroidered by Mrs. Gitchrist herself, that no two pieces are exactly alike. Wh White orchids, delicately shaded with pale green and yellow, form the designs.

The men having in charge the proposed subscription ball to be given in honor of the Yale University Glee and Banjo clubs on the evening of December 28, have decided to place the management of that affair in the hands of a general committee, composed as follows: General John R. Brooke, Henry W. Yates, General John C. Cowin, Victor B. Caldwell, William S. Popploton, James K. Chambers, Robert W. Patrick, Clifford Smith, Alfred Preston, Walter Preston, Earnest Hart, Paul Charlton, Curtiss C. Turner, William Doane, Charles Kountze, Harry Lyman, Joseph Clarkson, Charles Saunders, George Mercer, A. G. Quay, Wal-lace Broatch, William M. Wright, John E. Patrick, Luther Drake. The details of management have been placed in the hands f a subcommittee, composed as follows: fictor Caldwell, Clifford Smith, George fercer, William G. Doane, Charles Saunders, Curtiss C. Turner and Charles Kountze.

The Brown Function. In many particulars the reception given by Mrs. Charles H. Brown in honor of her daughter, Miss Margaret Brown, ranks as one of the charming functions of the season. The house, which is beautifully adapted for the giving of large affairs, was brilliant on Wednesday from 3 to 6, the decorations being particularly elaborate. Smilax was used with a lavish hand, while roses entered largely into the floral scheme. The artistic feature of the affair was found in the dining room, which, for the occasion, was converted into a chocolate room. In front of the conservatory on the south of the room a great many paims had been grouped, while portieres of smilax, caught up with yellow ribbons, gave a pretty effect to the place. The chocolate table stood in front of the doorway leading to the conservatory, presided over by Miss Brown, Miss Jentie Yates, Miss Wallace and Miss Palmer. In the music room coffee was served by Miss Nash, Miss Mary Wallace, Miss Cook and Miss Make. ok and Miss McKee

Mrs. Charles Brown, Miss Brown and Miss Mrs. Charles Brown, Miss Brown and Miss Chandler received the guests in the east drawing room, being assisted in the enter-tainment by Mrs. Meredith, Mrs. J. J. Brown, Mrs. J. R. Buchanan, Mrs. Charles Squires, Mrs. Major Wheeler, and by the younger set represented by Miss Burns, Miss Radie, Hambleton, Miss Legite, Vester, Mis-Sadie Hambleton, Miss Jentie Yntes, et McKell, Miss Margaret Cook, Miss Miss Clara Brown, Miss Nash, the Misses Wallace.

The table above stairs where the more solid refreshments were served was decorated with quantities of bink roses and strips of wide light-blue ribbons, with silver candelabra, prettily shaded.

Mrs. Brown received in a handsome black silk triumed with jet, a yellow crest vest

Miss Brown looked very sweet and pretty in a simple white mulie with white bertha and valenciennes lace, and she car-ried a boquet of violets.

Miss Chandler were a striking costume of

VALOR REWARDED.

Liberality of the Illinois Central to Brave Train Crew. Officials of the Illipois Central Railroad ompany and American Express company met at Centralia, Ill., last Tuesday and rewarded the train crew who defended the New Orleans express near that city on the night of September 20 against a band of train robbers. Conductor A. J. Odum, Eugineer Ben Young, Fireman Charles Mc-Dowell. Brakemen Fred Stacy and P. J. Sanders, Baggageman Fellx Armstrong and Express Messenger Cornelius Boyle constituted the train crew, who not only resisted the attack, but captured one of the robbers, which led to the capture of the whole gang This was a new feature in train robbing and the railroad and express companies expressed their appreciation on paper at the time and hinted that something more substantial would be forthcoming. Each member of the train crew was pre sented with a solid gold medal of Maitese cross pattern on a solid gold bar. Above the medal proper is engraved "For Valor." On the face side is inscribed: "From the Illinois Central Railroad and American Express Companies." The reverse side is: "For Defending Train No. 3 on the Night of Sep tember 20, 1993, at Centralia, III., Against Train Robbers."

General Manager Harahan delivered an appropriate address to the crew in behalf of the Illinois Central and Mr. Trumbull spoke for the American Express company. In addition to the gold medals, each of the seven men were presented with $200 of stock in the Illinois Central Railrond company. Fully 500 railroad men and citizens witnessed the presentation. The men responded and thanked the railroad and exwess company for their token of appreciaand announced they did it because it was their duty and would do it again. This crew of seven men is on the records of the railway company as honorable employes

General Thomas Mulcahy's Death Comes

HE HAD WON HIS TITLE IN ACTIVE SERVICE

Record of a Man Who Braved All the Dan

General Thomas Mulcahy, a resident of Omaha since 1868, died at 2:15 o'clock yes-

General Mulcahy was a member of the military order of the Loyal Legion and has a military record of which his companions are proud. His death was a surprise to his empanions, none of whom seem to have known of his recent dangerous illness, as the modesty that characterized the life of this grand old soldier seemed to bid him to still "hold the fort" without a signal of dising been brevetted a general, ever refused to be known by other than his rank of colonel, and hence as "Colonel Mulcahy" he was always known.

General Mulcahy was over 70 years old nd leaves a wife and several sons and daughters. It was his request that he should be buried under the auspices of the Loyal Legion, and Commonder Major Furacalled a meeting of the Nebraska com mandery at the Mercer hotel at 8 o'clock last evening to make the necessary arrange ments for the funeral, which occurs from the residence at 317 South Twenty-ninth street His Official Record.

for service. One of His Early Experiences.

The death of General Mulcahy recalls one of the sensational episodes of Omaha's early history. In 1870 Mulcahy was a lawyer just working his way into a practice being considered well versed in legal knowledge he was elected a justice of the peace. Among the cases which engaged his unicial attention was that in which a vounfellow named Dolan was a defendant in a criminal action for adultery. Mulcahy was naturally anxious to make a sure case had yet a reputation to make, and it was claimed at the time that he exceeded the functions of his office in his effort to procure evidence against Dolan. One night Mulcahy and Jerry McChea ne who was at that time a constable, started out armed with a warrant for Dolan's arrest. They found their man in an old shanty Tweifth and California streets. Mulcahy stationed himself at one door and sent Mc Cheane to the other, with the idea of choosing a moment for the arrest when the culprit could be caught in a compromising position. At the proper time the officers invaded the house and placed Dolan under arrest. The prisoner asked for time to get some clothes which he wanted to take with him and, not expecting resistence, he was allowed to so. Dolan opened an old satchel, ostensibly to get the garments, but instead produced a knife, with which he rushed at his captors. Dolan was a powerful man, and soon had the best of the argument. A deadly thrust of the long-bladed knife opened a mortal wound n McCheane's stomach, and Mulcahy was also severely wounded. The murder caused a great excitement at the time, and a mob was quickly formed with the avowed intention of lynching Dolan. A rope was procured and the mur-derer's chances of life were momentarily waning, when some of the cooler heads in-terposed and Dolan was saved for trial. Judge Savage and Dr. George L. Miller were among those whom Dolan had to thank for his renewed lease of life. McCheane survived his injuries but a short time. He died in a little frame house which stood on the corner, now occupied by the Barker block, and faced Farnam street. Mulcahy recovered from his injuries and lived to finish a long and useful life. Dolan was convicted of murder in the second de-gree and was sentenced to imprisonment for life. He had served but a short time when ife. He had served but a short time when he succeeded in making his escape. Every effort was made to recapture him, but with out success,and his fate has remained mystery to this day.

Events of the Week Among the Various Tentonic Societies.

The apathy which has characterized German social circles for some weeks has given way to increased plans for entertainments luring the winter months. Nearly all of the different societies have decided upon some entertainment in the near future. The Omaha Turnverein is now actively engaged in rehearsals and other preparations for the operetta "Die Zillerreparations for the operata "Die Ziller-haler," which is to be given on December 3, at Germania ball.

The program on this occasion will doubt-less be interesting and entertaining to a high degree. Vocal and instrumental music will also be presented. Gymnastic exercises under direction of Instructor Watzenborn will add another feature of interest especially enjoyable to the students of physical culture.

Interest in the usual Wednesday evening meetings of the bears' division of the Turnverein was heightened by the fact of the amouncement of Secretary J. Schedewy's marriage which was consummated several weeks ago. It had also been made public among "the initiated" that W. Schuttz, another member of the bear family, was to celebrate his birthday at this time. The fact that a like occasion had been celebrated for a third member, H. Beselin, was unknown to most until that party entered and unbosomed the Joy was unconfined until the hands on the clock indicated that another day was soon to dawn. The Zither Quartet club furnished the Liederkranz entertainment to be given tonight at the hall of the society on Tenth and Farnam streets. Comic recitations, vocal and instrumental music and amateur theatricals will fill out the program for the evening. Under direction of the well known artist, Joseph Gahm, a mixed cheir especially will render several selections. The monthly entertainments of this character have shown that they are a great drawing card to members of the singing society, their families and friends, and it is expected that on this occasion the ball will, as on the last, be crowded to its utmost extent.

The Omaha Saengerbund is actively engaged in preparing a program for a musical treat to be given next month, probably on the 17th. The next usual social meeting has therefore been omitted. On the last mencountry.

verein Member Julius Kriesel was appointed to temporarily fill the position of chairman of the entertainment committee, which R. Stein had resigned. Members Weber, Bloodel and Doyle having also placed their resignation before the meeting the latter's place as collector was temporarily filled by the appointment of Christ Baysei.

The Liedertafel, a singing society called to existence several months ago moved to a new hall on Sixteenth near Center street. The society since its existence, through the efforts of Director Charles Peterson, has made steady progress and is now arranging a musical program which is to be carried out sometime in the near future. Invitations have been sent out for an evening entertainment to be given by the ladies: singing society Helia at Pabst hall Saturday, December 2. The members promise to entertain their guests by the rendition of vocal music by their own and a mixed choir. The Banner, a weekly paper published in the German language, has changed ownership and name. It is now known as the Nebraska Vorwarts. Ernest and Leo Benninghofer, who have an extended acquaintance through-out the state by reason of their residence near Seward, and their subsequent connec-tion as solicitors with the Illinois Staats Zeitung have assumed full control of the pa per. Mr Schnake, however, is still retained as editor. From what is considered a reliable source it is learned that the present owners contemplate changing the paper to a triweekly or a daily.
