At the Thanksgiving services next Thursday morning, at the Presbyterian church, a collection will be taken which will go to help the poor of the city. This city has suffered from the hard times, like all others in the country, and there are more who will need assistance during the coming winter, prob-ably, than there have been before for years. All charitably disposed persons should see that their offering is dropped in the basket next Thursday. It will be placed in the hands of those who will see that it goes where it will do good.

The Union Pacific feeight depot was entered by burglars Saturday night. They failed to get anything that would reimburse them for the energy they wasted in getting in, but they caused the depot officials a great deal of bother. After drilling five holes in the office safe they were still unable to open it by means of explosives, although they damaged it so much that an expert had to be called in yesterday morning to open it. If they had secured entrance they would have only found $8 in cash inside.

On the same night the barber shop kept by John W. Morton, a colored man, at 1018 West Broadway, was entered by burglars. He closed his shop at 10:30 Saturday night, but when he opened it on the morning following he found that some one had effected an entrance and had made a clean sweep. All his rayors, hones and other tonsorial equipments had been stolen, the value of the missing property being estimated at about $25. He suspected En Burke, a young colored man, of being the thief, and filed an information yesterday morning, charging him with grand larceny. Burke was acrested and will have a hearing this morn-ing in police court. Later Morton swore out a search warrant and the premises where Burke lives were hunted carefully over for the purpose of finding the missing stuff, but without success. He had plenty of time to get it out of his possession if he was really the right party.

How Johnson Died.

The coroner's jury held an inquest yesterday ofternoon over the remains of Peter Johnson, who was killed on South Main street last Saturday-night. W. S. Wright, manager of the gas company, was the first witness. His theory was that the man met his death by pulling out the plug from the rusty pipe and not putting on the new pipe soon enough to prevent his being suffocated. The plug lay went his being sanocated. The plug lay underneath the body when it was recovered.

W. J. Wallace, the young man who first discovered the body and whose hair has been growing pompadour of its own accord ever since, was also put upon the stand and said that when he found the body there was no smell of gas noticeable. After he got out no smell of gas noticeable. After he got out of the hole he smelt a little gas. A ferminutes later the stream ignited from a lantern and there was a big explosion. D. L. Dr. J. C. Waterman, who examined the pody, testified that it bore no bruises and death was apparently the result of asphyxia-

Besides these Charles Carr, W. W. Weich, Frank Wallace and C. L. Frisbie were heard, but nothing was learned from their testimony that has not already appeared in the papers. After the testimony had been heard the jury retired and in a few minutes ought in a verdict that death was caused by inhaling gas and no blame was attached one. The remains of the dead man buried at 3:30 o'clock from Estep's undertaking rooms.

Referee Pickering Decides the Nebraska City Foot Bail Game, The Omaha High School Foot Ball team played the High school team of Nebraska City Saturday, and they report that they had quite an exciting time. Toward the latter part of the game the Nebraska City boys had the best of it, but Omaha scored and had a sure chance for a goal. Then the crowd which had assembled to witness the game crowded onto the grounds and re-fused to let the Omahas kick the goal. After warning the spectators off the field several times and getting the "merry ha-ha" for his trouble, Ed F. Pickering of this city, who was acting as referee, gave the game to Omaha by a score of 6 to 0. Some of the crowd tried to intimidate the Omahas, but they offered no violence. The Omaha boys say that the Nebraska City boys treated them in a splendid manner. The trouble originated through the actions of several unruly persons who seemed bound that Omaha should not win the game under any circumstances.

BORING THE DIVIDE.

Wonderful Tunnel Through the Backbone of the Continent.
One of the greatest engineering enterprises of the decade has just been completed in Colorado-an enterprise fully as great as the tunneling of the Hoosac mountain, whose completion was celebrated as a great national affair. But these are the days of great'enterprises, and the preceing of the great divide by a tunnel nearly two miles long in one of the wildest mountain regions in the world has scarcely attracted attention outside of Colorado.

The road itself-the Colorado Midlandwhich passes through the new tunnel is one of the most wonderful pieces of engineering in the world. All the way from Colorado Springs to Cleuwood, says Harper's Weedly, it is a succession of surprises to the traveler. and that part of it which runs from Lead-ville over the great continental divide is only the climax of a series of surprising vitorica over the most apparently insurmount able natural obstacles. The Hagerman tun acte distrat obsactes. The tagerman tim-nol at the top of the pass, which has been used since the road was opened, about seven years ago, is 2,004 feet long and 11,528 feet above sea level, and the Midland is nere the highest standard-gauge railroad in the world, and the highest of any gauge except one in the Andes. The big trestle is 200 feet high, cost $80,000 to build, and would feet high, cost $80,000 to build, and would have to be rebuilt every eight years. Besides this, immense rotary snow-plows have to be kept in operation at both ends of the old tunnel all winter, the snow on the west side of the divite being often thirteen feet deep on the level. The new tunnel, it is estimated, will save in operating expenses $70,000 every year, besides insuring the continuous operation of the road, so that the continuous operation of the road, so that the $1,000,000 spirit on the tunnel is expected to be a good investment.

The Busi-Ivanhoe tunnel, as the new one is called, pierces the main Saguache (pronounced sah-wash) range, which here forms the continental divide, about twenty miles west of Leadville at a height of 10.80) feet above sen level, 1,33) feet brow the crest of the mountain an 1 728 feet below the Hager-man tunnel. Its length is 9,384 feet. Work upon it was begin October 8, 1893, and since that time has been pashed unremittingly from both ends, twenty hours a day, with the most modern scientific apparatus. The backbone of the continuat is of solid granite, and compressed air drills and dynamite have done the work of excavation. There has been quite a rivalry between the gangs at work on the two ends as to which should reach the center first. The Busk, or eastern, gang won the race, for the Ivanhoe men were retarded by water, and the final junction was made a thousand feet west of the center. The dividing wall was pierced by the drill at 9:30 Tuesday evening. October 17th, and at 6:15 the next evening the blast was fired which broke the wall down.

The man who conceived the idea of this tunnel was Mr. B. H. Bryant, chief engineer of the road. The man who, as engineer in charge, directed the work was Mr. W. H. Leffingwell. The tunnel took three years to build, and cost $1,000,000. It is a little less than two miles long. The plans of the engi-neers worked out with great accuracy, and the alignment, when the last partitions were cleared away, was perfect.

A.S. C. EMENTS.

Omaha has seen many meloiramas of the good old English school but none have been so thrilling or so sensational as Sutton Vane's "The Span of Lafe," made known for the first time on the local stage last evening at Boyd's.

The play carries one from the Devenshire coast in "Merrie England" to the gold reefs of Africa and back again to the hawthorne hedges of the tight little island. It abounds in hairbreadth escapes, deep seated hatred and villainy, noble and unseitish love, in a word, all that has made the English melodrama what it is. The form and motive and tree ment of the British play are as insular treatment of the British play are as insular as a Piccadilly shopkeeper.

The same skylark seems to sing as in Shelly's days, the same hedge rows biossom at haytime, and life in the English melo-drama is a dramatic phantasmagoria made ap of the regular stock of "shady" people country bumpkins, "slaveys," with now and then an acrobat or two thrown in to give a certain flavor to the whole. Sutton Vane, however, has somewhat departed from the lines of Sims and Pettit and introduced scenes that rouse the audience to high pitches of excitement.

There are scenes in the play that, for sen-sationalism, have not been exceeded in this country-the human bridge over the King's chasm and the approach of the big steamer through the fog at Coffin Rocks. The former is a wonderful feat of "acrobatism," the lat-tet splendidly artistic, and both received the fullest measure of praise from the audi

The first act, too, is a finely painted pic ture, the backing showing a distant view of the sea, with the lighthouse far out in the ocean, the canvas has atmosphere and color, while the cloud effects are particularly good. The play is interpreted by a company of generally acceptable ability headed by that prince of villains, Phil Anderson, who has played many parts in his long stage career, and all of them well. J. H. Ferris makes a delightful old salt. Joseph E. Pearce, as the hero, Richard Bluat, is hardly up to the requirements of the part, his reading now and hen being very indistinct.
Miss Carrie Radcliffe makes a pretty, long suffering heroine who reaches the haven of peace at last. Dolly Harmer as the "slavey," is a typical English maid of all work and her scenes with Nutty Brown (Mr. Willi Scott) pleased the audience greatly. Mrs William Calder as the heartless mother. Mrs Self, was completely satisfactory. The Wil son brothers who do the sensational "bridge" act are clever gymnasts with a European reputation.

CONSIDERATION OF SEVERAL ORDINANCES

Preparations for an Entertainment Under the Auspices of the Associated Charities-News Notes and Gossip of Local Interest.

The ordinance ordered by the city council one week ago, revoking the liquor licenses of four men who sold on election day, did not materialize at the meeting last night. Councilman Wood wanted to know where it was. Mr. Wyman relieved his mind by explaining that the city attorney had not presented the ordinance because Judge Fowler had neglected to file with him a certificate to the effect that the men had been tried, convicted and fined in his court. This explanation seemed to satisfy everybody and nothing more was said on the subject.

N. C. Linewalt, in a communication, notified the council of an error the assessor had made in assessing some of his unimproved property as "improved."

An ordinance authorizing the issuing of An ordinance authorizing the issuing of grading bonds in district No. 9 was passed. An ordinance directing the filling of lots 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12 in block 89 was passed. A communication signed by the president and secretary of the Board of E lucation was president read, urging that the police be instructed to "keep tab" on the boys of school age who run the streets and do not attend school. The communication states that the parents of some of these children believe sons to be in school and if their cases were looked into closely some good would no doubt result. The matter was referred to the chief of Officer Argabright was granted three days

Officer Argabright was granted three days leave of absence.

A petition signed by a number of property owners, urged the immediate grading of Twenty-first street from P to V.

Mr. Wood moved to reconsider the appointment of H. Broodwell as a city weighnaster. M. Wood explained that he was the author of the original motion and at first believed it to be a good plan, as Mr. Broodwell furnished nearly all the coal for that well furnished nearly all the coal for that section of the city. During the week, however, every coal dealer in town had been after him for the same favor, and, as he did not believe it would be good policy to let them all weigh their own coal, the best way out would be to refuse all. The motion carried.

The contract for grading M street from Thirteenth to Seventeenth was awarded to Cash Bros., their bid being 98-10 cents per cubic yard, which was the lowest. There were five other bids. An ordinance was introduced directing the grading of Twenty-first street from N to Q, and P street from Twentieth to Twenty-third.

The committee on streets recommended the advantage of the streets recommended the adoption of the plat of Maxwell's addition to the city.

The street commissioner was given some pointers where he could find some defective sidewalks, and instructed to have the owners of the property repair the same at The committee on streets was instructed to have removed all sidewalks where the same interfere with the use of fire hydrants. Fire Chief Smith reported several of these a few weeks ago. A Charity Meeting. Bauer's hall should be packed by the best
