Health Officials Report the Rage of the Deadly—Some Dangerous Cases. La grippe has a firm hold on a large number of the residents of this city and the uncomfortable malady does not show any signs of letting up. Dr. Towne of the Board of Health estimates that there are at least 500 cases in the city. Many are of the dangerous type, while other attacks are of a mild nature.

The number of fatalities from this disease is not large and is confined principally to children. In those of mature age the serious cases generally develop pneumonia or kindred ailments, and some fatalities follow. However, the medical fraternity is generally successful in holding the rage in check and beyond the sickening and disagreeable feelings known so well to those who have passed through a siege of the malady nothing more serious follows than a few days of indoor confinement. It is not thought by the health authorities that the disease will gain any more headway than it already has.

Fire in the City Hall. At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon a smoldering fire was discovered in a receptacle for waste and rubbish in a closet in the rear of the council chamber in the city hall. The blaze was extinguished before any damage was done. A lighted cigar thrown into the receptacle is the theory for its origin.

STIRRING UP THE ANIMALS

Several Parties Unexpectedly Made Defendants in District Court.

JURYMEN AND OFFICIALS SCORCHED

Judge Scott Fines a Belated Witness and Sends a Court Officer on a Hopeless Errand—South Omaha Commission Case Decided.

In the criminal section of the district court things are not what they seem, and instead of the judge and the officials being on terms of intimacy they hardly speak as they pass, owing to the fact that the relations are somewhat strained.

This straining process commenced some time ago, but the climax was reached Thursday, when Judge Scott read Deputy Sheriff Lewis a lecture that will well repay the price of admission. For a time Lewis was an angry man, but when he cooled down it was to arrive at the conclusion that the court was a public benefactor, as its ruling had furnished him with a job which would last for many months to come. The judge intimated that the deputy had been negligent in allowing four men who had been drawn on a special venire to leave the court house for good after sitting in only one case and ordered Lewis to go and bring the transcripts in, no matter how late in the evening.

Yesterday morning Lewis was out bright and early and had made a tour of the city before breakfast, but the tour was without results, other than to interest the sheriff in charging some mileage for the county to pay.

The next move upon the part of the sheriff will be to advertise and draw a reward for the return of the four jurors, though accurate descriptions cannot be given, as about all the deputy remembers about the men is that they are blondes, wear straw colored waistcoats and butternut colored clothing of the vintage of a past age. While conversing the deputy states that they all murder the English language, and further deplores their savagery.

Fined a Tardy Witness. The deputy sheriff is not the only man, however, who is on the rack, nor is he alone in his trouble, as a professional man has something to drop upon the convening of the court yesterday morning.

Dr. W. S. Gibbs was called as one of the witnesses in the case against the late Dr. Mengedoff, now on trial before Judge Scott. He was on hand Thursday forenoon, but at the noon hour he received a call from home and at once notified that the doctor was absent. Nothing was said, but a few moments when later the name of Dr. Gibbs was called, for a few days of wrath were uncurbed.

The court remarked that there was no excuse for the delay, and the nonattendance of witnesses. As long as the county footed the bills, there were some men who labored under the impression that the process of the court did not mean anything.

The state had submitted all of its testimony, with the exception of that which was wrapped in the breast of the doctor, and under protest, the defendant was compelled to make his showing. About this time Gibbs rose and he did not pull into the judicial presence, as the court was saying him for future use.

Yesterday morning the expected happened. The clerk notified that the doctor, Dr. H. Story and John Hill, two witnesses who had failed Thursday afternoon to obey the process of the court, were called upon the carpet. They were the first of the crowd of people, that they were not familiar with the working of courts, and were let off after being admonished not to do so any more.

Dr. Gibbs was watched on his way to court, and when he heard the two witnesses purged of contempt he felt much better, as he thought that he was in the same box, but that was where he was mistaken, for a moment later the clarion tones of Judge Scott's voice sounded through the room and Dr. Gibbs stepped to the front.

"Doctor," said the court, "you were not here yesterday afternoon. By reason of your being absent we had to stop the business of the court, and incur a great amount of unnecessary expense. Things were badly mixed up and the state was compelled to rest its case before all of the testimony was in. What were you doing?"

The doctor explained the nature of the visit to Florence, saying that Captain Reynolds was a very sick man, and that he considered it a case that demanded prompt attention.

Judge Scott listened, and when the doctor had finished his statement, asked, "Are you pretty well fixed?"

"I'm not a paper," responded the doctor, "nor am I a rich man."

"I guess I can pay it," answered the judge, "and I want to say that there are some doctors who have an idea that they have not got to be around when the court wants them, and this fine is to make you understand what the process of the court means."

Doubled the Fine for Luck. Here the judge paused for a moment and then asked, "Will you do this again?"

"Under the same circumstances I would," responded the doctor.

"I'll be done with this fine," promptly said the judge, "and I'll make it $25 and the costs."

"Judge," answered the doctor, as he tried to get up, "if you were at Florence and sick, if you called me I should feel it my duty to go to you at once."

"And not notify the court?" interposed Judge Scott.

"And not notify the court," responded Dr. Gibbs.

"Then I'll just let the fine stand," answered the court a second time.

"I guess I can pay it," murmured the doctor, as he moved toward the prisoners' dock.

Attorney Macomber, who had been a witness to the proceedings, flew to the aid of the doctor by saying that it was not fair to compare the physician with the ordinary citizen in the matter of being called as a witness. By being called into the witness box and kept there for hours a doctor might be prevented from saving the life of a patient. He was of the opinion that Dr. Gibbs did not weigh his words when he said that under the same circumstances he would do as he had done.

To this remark Judge Scott took exception. He said that the doctor was a scholar and gentleman and knew the full meaning of all of the words which he had spoken. He knew better than to have left the court without first being excused, and not only that, but he had openly defied the court.

The doctor insisted that he did not intend to defy the court. He simply thought that he could return before he would be wanted as a witness, and that was why he proceeded. Judge Scott mellowed down a trifle and remarked that he would not reconsider his action until he had thought the matter over.

"Will I have to stay here until that time?" asked the doctor.

To this Judge Scott responded, "You are in the custody of the sheriff and you are a prisoner."

This settled the matter and during the remainder of the day the sheriff's office was the operating room and the office of the doctor.

South Omaha Case Decided.

The case brought by Jackson, Higgins & Co against the South Omaha Live Stock Exchange something like a year ago, by which the plaintiffs sought to restrain the defendant from expelling them from the privilege of the exchange, is at an end and the plaintiffs have the worst of the deal.

It was claimed, originally, that Jackson, Higgins & Co. violated the rules of the exchange by paying commissions to country stock brokers, but when the plaintiffs learned that the defendant would ship cattle and hogs in their care. Later on and was the trouble came to a head, another South Omaha firm bought some cattle at Bradshaw, but when the consignment reached the yards, it was consigned to Jackson, Higgins & Co. The members of the exchange held a meeting, made a case and took action looking to the expulsion of the firm. The members at once went into the court, suing out a temporary restraining order, enjoining the exchange from taking any action in the premises. Several attempts were made to get the case before the courts, but owing to delays never reached until November of this week, when it was called before Judge Walton. Before him the proof was adduced and the testimony taken, and yesterday the decision was rendered.

This decision is, in few words, simply stating that there are no merits in the plaintiff's application for the restraining order.

The temporary restraining order is vacated, and the application for the permanent injunction denied. This action of the court leaves the matter as it was at the time when the case went into the court, with the exchange where it can expel Jackson, Higgins & Co., providing it sees fit.

The members of the South Omaha Live Stock Exchange, in speaking of the decision of the court, said that the case went just as they anticipated. It was a clear case against Jackson, Higgins & Co. and one in which they could not disprove the charges.

They could not say what action the exchange would take at its next meeting, but one thing was certain, and that was that the firm would be called upon to pay the fine of $25. If the members refused to do this charges would be made and they would be expelled.

Claims He Was Swindled. In Judge Walton's court the case of George J. Woods against Clemens L. Hart is having its inning. Woods owned some lots in Battle Creek addition to College View in Lawrence county, and a few months ago he traded them to Hart for a lot of Holstein cattle, paying $1,400 difference in money. Since then he claims that he has learned that the cattle were not his own, but were the property of another man, and he is in court, where he is seeking the return of his cows and steers and the money.

Judge Ogden Retires. At 9:30 o'clock this morning Judge Ogden requested that he be relieved of his position, and Judge Blair, the docket of law court No. 5. With the opening of court Judge Ogden will be in court room No. 1, where he will meet and hear the cases on the bench. After this Judge Blair will proceed to court room No. 5, where he will take up the trial of causes, while Judge Ogden will resume the practice of law.

Collection of Taxes Enjoined. Upon the showing made in the petition of Baltzar Kramer and twenty-three other plaintiffs, all property owners, Judge Walton has granted a temporary order restraining the city from collecting the tax assessed against certain lands and lots to pay the damages arising from the opening of South Seventeenth street from the Burlington tracks to Arbor street.

Last August the council by the passage of an ordinance declared the street open to the public at the same time instructed the engineer to report a plan for the liquidation of the damages. This plan was reported back, and by its terms the property along the line of the street between Cedar and Vinton was assessed in a manner that made the benefits equal the damages. At that time some of the property owners protested, and a new plan of assessment was ordered, the engineer being instructed to assess all of the property lying between the Burlington tracks and Arbor street. When the plan reached the council it was adopted and the levy made.

Now the property owners who are the plaintiffs in the case of Cedar and South of Vinton have asked the aid of the court to prevent the collection of the tax, alleging that their property is in no wise benefited by the opening of the street.

Commission Firm Sued. E. H. Rollins & Sons of Colorado have brought suit in the district court in an action to recover the sum of $21,291 from Frazier & Burke, live stock commission men of South Omaha. The charge is that on October 31 Corlie & Auld contracted with them to ship 1,651 head of steers to the South Omaha market, the proceeds of the sale to be divided equally between them. The shipment, they aver, was made and the steers consigned to the defendants, who now refuse to pay over the proceeds of the sale.

Federal Court Findings. The jury in the Squires case has decided that Squires was guilty of conspiracy to retard the United States mails. The defendant was remanded for sentence. Squires has no hesitation in saying that he had rather be in his own shoes than those of Bennington, the informer on whose testimony he and McClure were convicted. McClure is now in prison, and those who know his desperate character freely predict that it is only a question of time when he will wreak substantial vengeance on the man who betrayed his confidence. Bennington says that he saw McClure on the street in Kansas City while on his way to Omaha from Philadelphia, and that McClure immediately turned on his heel and got out of sight as soon as possible.

Judge Dundly issued the order directing the United States receiver to deposit the funds in the banks designated by the court yesterday. The instructions were in accordance with his ruling several days ago. Many checks of the amount of $10 and costs in the United States court yesterday for selling liquor without a license. "Women Have Hard Times."

THE MINISTER who made this declaration from the pulpit knew the truth of what he said.

WOMAN'S LOT is a hard one socially, morally and physically.

MUCH OF HER existence is monotonous and filled with sorrow.

SHE SEEMS seems born to suffer, created for pain and fitted to endure.

IT IS fortunate that she is so endowed, for she certainly has many sorrows and great suffering.

THERE IS the mysterious development of girlhood, the care of maternity and the change which comes as she grows older.

VERY OFTEN, too, she is thrown upon her own resources, without protection, without assistance and without a friend.

WHAT A GREAT cause for thankfulness it should be that scientific discovery has given her the best friend any woman has ever had.

IT IS "a friend in need," IT IS a friend certain to aid.

IT IS a friend for her girlhood, her maternity and her later years.

IT HAS been the best friend to millions of women during the last twenty years.

IT IS that grand, that reliable remedy, Warner's Safe Cure.

WOMEN WHO were weak, worn, weary, have been made strong, bright and happy by its aid.

WOMEN WHO felt despondent and melancholy have been made cheerful and joyous through its friendly power.

WOMEN UPON whose faces could be seen the expression of care, the paleness of pain, have been made bright joyous and happy by its reliable aid.

WOMEN WHOSE lustrous eyes have shown the beginnings of despair, have been made youthful by the magical power of this true friend.

IS IT any wonder that this great Safe Cure has become so popular?

IS IT at all surprising that it is used so universally today?

ASK ANY woman of your acquaintance and she will frankly tell you what we now say: That this great Safe Cure has become so popular among women entirely because it has proven itself to be

"Her Best Friend."
