Alabama's Senior Senator Said to Be Considering the Unpleasant Position.

WANT MORGAN TO LEAD THE DEFENSE

Both the President and Secretary of State Are Anxious that the Esteemed Senator Should Support the Administration's hawahan l'olicy.

Washington Bureau of The Bre, 518 Fourteenth Street, Washington, Dec. 13.

If Mr. Morgan of Alabama, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, defends the actions of President Cleveland toward Hawaii, as has been intimated by that gentleman that he intends doing, it will create great surprise

It is true that Mr. Morgan is the brainlest representative of his party in congress, and being at the head of the foreign relations committee, which has sole jurisdiction over all questions relating to international affairs, he naturally drifts into the leadership of the administration side of the problem, but his eminent ability and conspicuous fairness have marked him as one who would assume a strictly judicial attitude and point out the proper course for the administration to take. On account of his great learning in international affairs and his record as an impartial advocate in all questions involving the standing of the United States abroad, President Harrison selected him for the Bering sea commission. Fe was also requested by a republican administration to serve on the international monetary conference. He has on a number of occasions been pointed out as suitable timber for judicial structures and as a conspicuous jurist, even when considering a question tinged with partisan prejudice. Senator Morgan led the fight which was taken up by President Harrison in favor of the Nicaragua canal being made a property interest of the United States and completed at the expense of our government. In short, he has been the conspicuous democrat in congress who has for many years stood up in favor of Americanism and the broadening and strengthening of our interestical pair. and strengthening of our international prin-

Cieveland and Gresham Want Him. It has been an open secret about the sen-ate for many days that the administration has been soliciting the good offices and sup-port of Senator Morgan in the Hawatian difficulty. With him the president and Sec-retary Gresham have felt that they could manage to make something of a showing of good intention before the country; but with him against them they know they would be without any real support. It will take a direct announcement from Senator Morgan bimself to make the intelligent men in Washington understand that the Alabaman would so far retrace his steps in favor of American progress and the upholding of our American progress and the upholding of our flag on the seas and in foreign lands as to support even in a feeble degree the un-American policy which this administration has introduced on the Sandwich islands.

The administration has been in a stew over the selection of its defenders in congress for several days. Unfortunately the men who have figured as 'international law. men who have figured as 'international lawyers' and thinkers upon foreign relations have not been the most popular, if indeed the strongest men in the democratic column.
The administration has singled out and summoned to the white house or State department the strongest democrats in congress and requested them to take the leadership in the Hawaiian departs. Some of them in the Hawaiian denates. Some of them have frankly acknowledged their inability to compass the subject, while others have flatly refused to enter the small list of defenders. In any international discussion the republicans are so much stronger than the democrats in congress that, even though they were on the wrong side, they could outwit and more than master their adversaries.

Thinks it Will Be Forced. "I think you will be surprised at the rapidity with which the Wilson tariff bill will be forced into law, and disappointed over the few amendments which will be made to that measure after it leaves the ways and means committee room," said Representative Henry U. Johnson of Indiana, one of the brightest and most effective of the many strong republicans in congress. Mr. Johnson said further: "I am afraid that manufacturers and others intested in the republican principles of protection have been depending too much upon the republican minority in congress. They have been hoping, if they have not really been expecting, that we would be able to secure material modifications of the Wilson bill after it merges from the ways and means committee and then the finance committee. Of course the republicans would be only too glad to save as many of their republican principles as possible. but it does not now appear to be within their power to avail anything, on account of the exceedingly large democratic majority. You can add every protection democrat in the house to the republican side, and then the free traders will have a majority of fifty or sixty. You can add to the republican side in the senate the two or three democratic senators who are credited with in-clining toward protection, and yet the free traders in the senate will have a clear working majority of four or five men when they come to consider the tariff bili. I think the republicans have miscalculated the intentions of the democrats in respect to a re-vision of the tariff. We have seen so much wrangling and confusion and lack of har mony among the democrats that we have until recently believed that they would be unable to stand together upon any subject.

Where Democracy Looms Up.

"When it comes to taking the life blood out of American industries the democrats will stand together almost as one man. There will, of course, be found individual democrats who will contend for an addi-tional duty upon this or that article manu-factured in his district, but the odds on his own side will be so heavy against him that he will be voted down. It is my judgment that the bill will become law substantially as it will be reported from the ways and means committee room. There may be changes in the measure when it reaches the finance committee, and, as we have said, it may be disfigured, distorted out of its original semblance, but the free trade foa-tures of it will not be materially injured. The democrats at first were inclined to be leisurely about getting their tariff bill into law, but they have shifted their track and intend to facilitate or expedite the work to the greatest possible degree. They really have an idea that when the Wilson bill gets into law it will revive business, but they realize that commercial affairs are going to be disastrously dull until there is a readjustwent of the conditions under the Wilson tariff law. The democrats realize that there cannot be a readjustment before the election of another congress, next November, but they are confident that everything will be in full blast under the new tariff law by No-rember, 1896, and their only hope is to win a victory in the next presidential contest."

To Relieve Delinquent Settlers.

Representative Mercer has contrived a plan for relieving the settlers on the Pawnee reservation. The act of 1876 opened the reservation to settlement and the act of 1890 forfeited all claims to entries for nonpayment. Land Commissioner Lamoreaux has informed Representative Mercer that under the act of 1830 there is no authority for extending the time of payments. There is before congress a general measure making extension of time for payments to the government by unfortunate settlers, and Mr. Mercer has made a canvass and informs The Bre correspondent that the bill will likely be so amended as to include the settlers on the Pawnee reservation who have been unable to meet their payments.

Ricking on Police Surveillance. Bitter complaint is being made by those who frequent the capitol because at a certain hour during the afternoon all the entrances to that great building except two are now closed, and the two points of egress and ingress are guarded by a cordon of police. The new order of things requires persons to do a great deal of extra walking about the capitol. These extraordinary precautions are taken for the purpose of guarding against anarchists and villatinous cranks who might attempt to repeat the scenes in the Chamber of Deputies at Paris last week

CREATED MUCH COMMENT

Lincoln People Not Satisfied with Dismissals of Asylum Cases.

QUESTIONABLE FEATURES OF THE TRIALS

Offer of One of the Accused to Farnish Evidence Necessary to Convict His Companion Refused by the State's Representative.

LINCOLN, Dec. 13 .- [Special to THE BEE.] -The action of the county attorney in dismissing the cases against the asylum boodlers has created a great deal of comment in Lincoln. Aside from the immediate personal friends of the accused the general sentiment is that the county attorney has evaded his full duty in the premises. It is a well known fact that one of the indicted men made a direct proposition to turn state's evidence and give to a jury the whole conspiracy to rob the state, and that the county attorney declined to accept the testimony. The man was Frank O. Hubbard. After the investigation which led to the indictment was commenced Hubbard left the state and went to Portland, Ore. When he was indicted he was not arrested, for the reason that he could not be found. Later in the winter he returned to Nebraska for the purpose of giving himself up, with the understanding that he would be permitted to give his evidence against the men who had been indicted. He went to Crete where he engaged the services of Attorney F. I. Foss. The attorney made a specific proposition in writing to the attorney general offering Frank Hubbard's testimony for a guarantee of immunity from punishment. At the time the proposition was made it was expected that the attorney general would assist in the prosecution of the indicted parties.

Recused the Evidence. When the attorney general learned that he was not to be permitted or invited to assist in the prosecution he addressed a letassist in the prosecution he addressed a let-ter to the county attorney of Lancaster county, making the proposition submitted to him by Hubbard and his attorneys. County Attorney Woodward declined to per-mit Hubbard to give his evidence against the accused men and put his declination in writing. The proposition to him from Hub-bard's attorneys and his declination to accept the same are both in writing and both have been preserved for any emergency that may call for their production.

that may call for their production.

Here is a statement of facts that the county attorney will have to answer for to the people who entrusted him with the office he now holds. Hubbard was a straw man in the whole conspiracy to defraud the state. He received but a few dollars where the men at the head and front of the conspiracy received hundreds. He was, as a prominent attorney of this city who is in possession of all the facts in the case expresses it more all the facts in the case expresses it, more sinned against than sinning. He was but the instrument in the hands of the men who were systematically defrauding the state and had he been guaranteed immunity from punishment for the $80 and odd dollars which he received and permitted to give his evidence on behalf of the state the county attorney would have been in possession of the positive evidence that he now complains he was unable to procure.

Trials that Were Merely Parces.

No one in Lincoln except the beneficiaries of the frauds pretends that the trials were anything but farces from beginning to end. The county attorney and his assistants, Messrs. Snell and Gilkerson, presented the evidence at their disposal in as forcible a manner as any one could have done. No. Frank S. Headrick and wife of Humboldt are the guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orlo Paine.

Walter Bouton and Harry Talcott have gone to Lincoln to attend the Normal unilarge sums of money over the counters took the stand and swore that they could not identify signatures of men who almost daily transact business at their banks. In one case it was proven that certain supplies had been sold to one of the contractors for so much. The testimony of the man who sold the goods, of the drayman who hauled them and of the man who received them all cor-roborated the fact. The defense made no attempt to prove to the contrary. The state proved that the bill had been raised before it reached the state and that the state board allowed pay for more supplies in this instance than were actually delivered. And yet the jury brought in a verdict of acquit-Another Significant Instance.

On the evening after the evening that one of the indicted men was acquitted he stated to the representative of The Bee that while he worried a great deal over the matter he had never for a minute believed that he would be convicted. "I staid at the court house last evening." he said, "waiting for the verdict. After awhile I heard our fellows cheering in the jury room and I knew at once that the fellows who had been hanging back had come over to our fellows

The general public is very apt to doubt the sincerity of men who are placed on a jury upon their oath that they are unprejudiced and have no interests in the matter except to render a fair and impartial verdict, and then become so enthusiastically impressed with the evidence in favor of the accused that they can be moved to cheers in the Sample of Lincoln Opinion.

Of the three daily newspapers in Lincoln one of them, and the public need not be told which one, has nothing to say this morning concerning the action of the county attorney in dismissing the cases. The evening papers however, express themselves very forcibly upon the matter. The Evening News says editorially:

The dismissal by the county attorney of the asylum cases is a fitting ending to what has almost reached the proportions of a screaming farce. While opinions may differ as to whether it would or would not be a useless waste of money for the state to once more at whether it would or would not be a useless waste of money for the state to once more at least endeavor to secare a conviction, there will hardly be any difference as to the effect, such a step must necessarily have upon the morals of public officials. In thus throwing down its arms because the first assault was unsuccessful the state has displayed a pitiable weakness—a weakness that not a few persons do not hesitate to say would not have been displayed had the defendants been other than they were, or lacked the powerful influence that was behind these men. The effect upon the men in public office who may be possessed of the desire to bleed the public by the many little schemes that can be practiced cannot be other than vicious, as it leaves them open to the temptation of the investment, while holding out a sort of amnesty that if lucky enough to get off the first time they will not be troubled any more. * * But the farce is ended and according to the records the stretch has not been defrauded, the two grand juries did not discover any evidences of fraud, the lavestigations by the Board of Public Lands and Buildings and the legislative committees were founded on faise testimony, and some one owes an apology to some one.

Relief Department in Court.

The Burlington Volunteer Relief department is in court again with a defense which has become almost threadbare, but which still serves its purpose when the B. & M. company has to deal with its employes. It is made the defendant in a case brought by one George Osborne, an employe of the B. & M., who was injured while in the sorvice of that company. He sued the company for damages and secured $237.50. He then brought suit against the relief department for the amount he was entitled to by reason of his membership. The relief department comes into court today with the same old stereotyped answer to the effect that imasmuch as Osborne had commenced a suit against the company he had forfeited his rights to his accident insurance by the terms of his application for membership. The department also asks that the suit be dismissed on the grounds that it has no legal existence and therefore cannot be sued. Relief Department in Court.

Sholes turned around and let the contract to the Springfield company for $7,600. He died a mouth ago, leaving a balance still due the company of $2,613. The administrator refuses to pay the claim and the company brings suff accordingly. The city attorney makes answer that it had a contract with Sholes whereby he was to hold the city harmiess from any suits arising out of the construction of the atandpipe. It admits that it still owes the Sholes estate $2,459 and it is ready and willing to pay the amount to the proper parties.
