SCMETHING OF IT'S HISTORY AND WORK

How Omaha Churches Will Today Begin the Festival of the Nativity-Elaborate Programs Prepared-St. Barnabas Sunday School Trouble,

C The congregation of St. Magdalen's Cathlie church will have double reason to celebrate this Christmas day. Aside from commemorating the birth of the Savior, the occasion will mark the silver anniversary of the institution of the church. The St. Maglalen's society was organized on Christmas day, 1868, and its first quarter of a century of existence ends with a flattering record of progress and usefulness. The church is the ordest of the Catholic faith in the city, with the exception of St. Philomena's, and it is the parent stock from which two other churches have sprung. The church was organized under the management of Rev. Father O'Groenebaum, who remained its active pastor for twelve and one-half years. It originally included only twelve members, but at the close of Father O'Groenebaum's pastorate its membership had increased to over eighty families. Father O'Groenebaum was succeeded by Rev. Father G. H. Glauber, who is still the pastor. Under his energetic supervision the church has made rapid strides and after deducting the portions of the congregation which have been incorporated into new churches nearly 100 families still worship under its spire. Under Father Glauber's administration the membership of the church increased so rapidly that it was found necessary to divide the congregation, teenth and center streets, where what is known as St. Joseph's church was creeted in the following year. This church now in-cludes about 200 families and is in charge of cludes about 200 families and is in charge of Father Charles Breitkoph. The congregation of St. Magdalenes church included a number of German Poles, and their number was increased until it was deemed advisable to provide them with a church of their own. This was creeted at Twenty-ninth and Walnut streets, where nearly 150 families now worshin under the nearly 150 families now worship under the nearly 150 families now worship under the direction of Father Jackimowsky. The records of the church, which have been carefully kept by Father Glauber, show that there have been 1,332 baptisms in the congregation. Marriages have been celebrated to the number of 344 and the socrament has been administered to 350 first communicants. There have been fifty concommunicants. There have been fifty converts and 403 burials have been attended from the altar.

The St. Magdalen's parochial school was founded simultaneously with the organiza-tion of the church. Here have been educated 1,400 children and 150 pupils are now entered on its roster. The school is also under the direction of Father Glauber, to whose exertions much of its success is due. The services today will begin with a solemn high mass at 5 a.m. The low mass will be celebrated at 8 o clock and at 10:30 the second high mass will be followed by the sermon. The masses will be celebrated by Rev. Father Glauber, assisted by Rev. Father A. M. Colaneri, deacon, and Rev. Father McLaughin, subleacon. The music will be rendered by the usual choir.

The young men of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, in St. Barnabas, have commenced regular Sunday afternoon services at the county hospital at 4 o'clock. For a year or longer, one of their number, Mr. Will Brown, has visited the hospital every Sunday after-noon, supplying the inmates with healthful reading, papers and the leading magazines.

This year they have gone another step. Two or three of their number go out each Sunday for a public service. Rev. Irving John-son, as a rule, takes the cierical duty to con-duct the service and preach. When anything interferes to prevent him, the rector of St. Barnabas church takes the duty. The inmates of the hospital take a warm interest in the coming of the young men, and Mr. Stryker and the others in charge seem interested also, and they certainly are very courteous and helpful.

A recital will be given in the First Congregational church Christmas afternoon at 3:30 sisted by Miss Neole M. Ogden, contralto, and Mrs. W. H. Wakefield, soprano. By request Mr. Taber will, among other numbers, render the "William Tell Overture" and Handel's celebrated "Hallelujah Chorus."

Moreover, he has noticed that parents get rid also of The kindergarter at the Kellom school was the scene of a happy expectation and joyous realization Thursday and Friday afterioons. The attendance is so large that the pupils have to be divided into two sections, the obligation of bringing their children to church with themselves to worship, because one attending in the afternoon and one in they have either already been at Sunday the morning. school or are going to attend after church service. to section 2. Miss Shields and her assistants had been very enthusiastic and untiring in their efforts and the result was a Christmas tree of unusual proportions bedecked with all the colors of the rainbow-paper chains, gilt air castles, cornucopias and many other devices all made by the little hands of the kindergarten children.

The following program was given: The following program was given: Prayer, Hynn, Once There Was a Birdle. Song, Good Morning, Merry Christmas. The Morning Fair. Thumbkinssays, Fill Dance. In the Branches of the Tree. Birdle in Gray. If You Wish to Keep in Time. Car Driver. Jack Frost. Recitations. Hymn. Hear the Bells. Come, Let Us Be Joyous. Santa, Dear Santa! Circle.

The room was thronged with the parents and friends of the children, who expressed their delight and approval of the per-formances. Each child had made a present, a letter case, handkerchief box or other little article for its parents. They were made of the gaily colored paper which plays such a frequent part in the kindergarten work, and as the tokens were handed to the ones for whom they were intended, it would be difficult to determine which was the most pleased, the giver or the recipient. The "circle" mentioned in the program is the playing of games by the little ones and formed one of the most enjoyable numbers. The room was decorated with flags and the traditional holly, while a figure of Santa Claus on the blackboard looked indulgently lown on those assembled. "Dinner day," once a week, is a notable part of the work. Each child brings its own little lunch which forms a part of the dinner served out on real dishes. The influence of this part of the course is not to be estimated. Children who come into the kindergarten selfish, ill-mannered and cross, in a few weeks learn to be polite and willing to share with each other. There is a marked contrast between the "o'clock by Mr. W. T. Taber, organist, asfirst dinner day and those that follow a month later. The inaugural day produced a general scramble and reaching for what was best, but the ensuing discipline in a short time brought order out of chaos and made the dinner day a much desired time.

Within two or three years he pre-dicted that every school in the country would reneral. Within two or three years he pre-dicted that every school in the county would have its Christmas tree. Instead of attending the closing exercises of the schools, Mr. Hill remained in his office last Friday and attended to school business. This was due to the fact that he wanted to treat all of the schools alike. He had received twenty four invitations to at-tend that runn bar of schools used in addition terd that number of schools and in addition thereto he had been invited to go out and play the part of Santa Claus in nine of the sixty-three districts. Being unable to divide bluself into so many portions, he concluded that the best policy was to refuse to accept any of the invitations.

For many years the rector has felt the utterinadequacy of the Sunday school with its one short hour for both the study of religious. faith and morals and for recitation. His experience has taught him that many parents throw off the sense of their own responsi-

Friday being the closing day of the te a large number of parents had been invito witness the carrying out of the progra which, in part, consisted of the regular eve day exercises. During the afternoon the lit boys and girls sang their songs, played th trade games and went through their ca thenics with a grace that was the envy their elders. They were in no wise disco certed on account of the large number visitors, and in performing their dut everything was in such a matter of fact w that the little fellows were the recipients several hearty rounds of applause. With the close of the school exercise beautiful Christmas tree was uncovered, a favorably known as gospel workers, will re-

Pacific Children Surprised.

The children of the Pacific school kind garten had a celebration Friday so gorge and unexpected as to almost take th breath away. During their absence at n a beautiful Christmas tree was placed in center of the circle and laden with the c dren's work. Dainty chains were festoor about it, and drangling from the gr boughs were lovely cornucoptas, glit p alls, tiny calendars and needle-books. But when the curtains were lowered the candles lighted the effect was dazzlin After playing their favorite games arou this magic wonder they one and all wish they might telephone to Santa Claus to co and see them. This was easily done, and soon he was ushered in by the principal. A McCarthy, and looking as jolly and fat ever. Each child made the most of t memorable opportunity, and told Sat Claus confidentially what they wanted, ev giving their addresses correctly. Howe he had come prepared to a certain externow some bags of bright tarlatan were tributed, each holding its load of candy a popcorn, to be taken home and enjoyed leisure. In this part of town there are ma little ones who will have no Christmas h piness except this so kindly furnished their instructors, and it will be long rem bered by them.
