ject," responded the judge with a smile. Turning to Assistant County Attorney Slabaugh, Judge Ambrose said: "This whole affair is now in the hands of the county attorney and I shall expect him to do his duty in conducting this examination." Mr. Slabaugh replied that the case would receive prompt attention and would be ready for trial whenever the court was ready. Having disposed of this feature, Judge Ambrose devoted some time to Mr. Van Etten and in lecturing him he said, "It is clear in my mind that if the facts as stated are born out by the testimony to be adduced on the witness stand, never in my thirty years of practice have I seen so flagrant an abuse of the privileges, nor such a bold at-tempt to obstruct the business of the court.

"If it appears at the examination that you advised the securing of these affdavits, you may rest assured that there will be another case in court.

This aroused the ire of Van Etten and again jamping into the arena he ventured the opinion that the court was not competent to sit at the hearing, as he had already prejudged the case and was projudiced. "How can I help it, when I am called upon to witness such a plan to obstruct justice and defeat the object of the law?" answered are reduced," remarked J. Duke Murray, the judge.

"I object to a decision now," continued Van Etten, "and I want to say that when a man swears to the truth I shall always maintain that I have a right to use his affiing array of theatrical people at liberty as exists just now, particularly in the east. New York is full of them. So is Chicago, and I frequently meet stranded actors in smaller towns on the circuit, who have been davit in a court."

"That is a question which we will discuss at some other time," added the court and then the case went over until this morning.

Story Told by Garvin.

E. C. Garvin, one of the real estate men who was approached by Gallagher, tells the following story: He says that Gallagher came into his office and asked him if he was familiar with the values of property on Harney street, between Twenty and Twenty-Garvin replied that he was and then the affidavit was handed him to sign, Gallagher telling him that he wanted the document to use in fixing the value, as it was possible that the market house was to be located up in that part of the city and that the object was to get a high appraisement in order to get a good price out of the city for the lots in question his real estate man thought that he saw evidences of an African in the woodbile and refused to lend himself to the scheme.

County Clerk Contest.

The contest case of Charles A. Tracy against Fred J. Sackett will be called for trial in Judge Baxter's court Saturday morning, where it will be fought to a finish.

Tracy is the man who made the race for the office of county clerk last fail, his name being upon the democratic and populist tickets. He was beaten by Sackett, who was the republican candidate. After the counting of the votes, notwithstanding the fact that Sackett had a good working majority, Tracy conceived the idea that some of his votes were not counted in a proper manner and at once instituted a contest.

Next Monday morning Judge Baxter will begin heaving such cases as have been set for trial during the January term.

New County Officials Take Charge and Old

Ones Go Walking. Indications of joy, as well as indications of sorrow, were visible in many of the offices in the county building yesterday morning, simply for the reason it was the time fixed by law for the passing of two sets of officials.

It was the time fixed by law for ringing out the old and ringing in the new, and as a natural result at an early hour an army of newly elected officials, together with their clerks, climbed the long stone steps and took possession of the offices, while another army of old officials, with their army of clerks packed their personal belongings, climbed down the same steps and went out into the cold and cruel world to hunt for other places of employment.

At the sheriff's office John Drexel was on hand with the coming up of the sun and in a remarkably short space of time he had checked up books, blanks and documents with John Lewis, after which the prisoners and the county jail were turned over to his keeping In the sheriff's office all the old deputies and clerks took a walk, after which Sheriff Drexel installed the following parties in their places: Chief deputy, Henry Grebe; under deputies, J. C. Carroll, Henry Kosenz-weig, William Oimsted and John J. Mahoney, all of whom at once went to work, taking up their respective duties in a manner that might have conveyed the idea that they were all born and reared in the office. Over at the county jail Sheriff Drexe.

Street theater. Tillie Seburg, 111 North Seventeenth street, reported to the police yesterday that sneak thieves stole $30 worth of jewelry from her house Wednesday night.

Wednesday night Ed Dorsey got drunk and raised a disturbance in a house of ill-fame and was arrested. The court thought that a fine of $7.50 would be about the right thing. In police court yesterday the judge fined James Patterson $5 and costs for stealing a sack of coal from some B. & M. cars. Pat-terson has been sick all winter and is unable to work. He said he stole the coal to keep from freezing. The man's wife was in court and substantiated her husband's statements. She said the county had helped them a little, but not much.
