Though Not Represented in Court the Ex-Lincoln Citizen's Business Was Easily Transacted--Viaduct Troubles Bergre the Public.

LANCOLN, Jan. 11.-[Special to THE BRE.]-Late last night Judge Doudy of the United States courts entered up judgments against C. W. Mosher, president of the defunct Capital National bank, upon five suits instituted by Receiver Hayden. The judgments are in the sums of $74,294.48, $43,475, $5,982.50, $5,266.67 and $2,224.35 respectively, the total amounting to something over $141,000. Four of the judgments were secured upon Mosher's personal notes left with the bank when it closed its doors, and the fifth, for $43,475, was the amount due the receiver upon the assessment of the stock held by Mosher. Other suits are still pending for the assessments upon the stock held by Mosher and Outcalt jointly.

The entering of the judgments by Judge Dundy was pro forma. Nother Mosher nor Outcalt were represented by attorneys, and the cases went by default. All of Mosher's property that can be found was levied upon today. Among the pieces of property is the residence at the corner of Fifteenth and K streets, one of the finest in the city. The property will not sell for near enough to satisfy the judgments, even if the receiver is able to hold it against the other attachments that have already been levied.

Lincoln's Viaduet Trouble.

The action of the United States courts in placing the Union Pacific railway into the hands of receivers has greatly complicated the relations between that road and the city of Lincoln in the construction of the viaduct over West O street. According to the original contract between the city on the one band and the Union Pacific and the Burlington railroads upon the other, the Burlington was to advance the money for five-eights of the structure, and the Omaha Ave-eights of the structure, and the Omana & Republican Valley the balance. The vinduct is well along in the course of construction and the Burlington has ad-vanced its five-cighths of the estimates from time to time with commendable promptness. The Omaha & Republican Valley is not able to meet its share of the assessments, and as it is a part of the Union Pacific system, the city is unable at the present time to force a settlement. The only thing apparently left the city is to go ahead with the viaduct and trust to good luck to recover from the Union Pacific, or more property speaking, from the Omaha & Republican Valley, when good times come again.

State Depository Law,

state depository bonds has resulted in a very material difference in the estimation with which the law is held by the backs of the state. Up to the present time seven state depositories have been designated, all within the past eight days. The list com-prises the National Bank of Commerce, First National, Omaha National, Commer-cial National and United States National backs of Omaha the American Exchange banks of Omaha, the American Exchange National of Lincoln and the First National bank of Crete. These seven banks are en titled to hold $410,000 of the state funds. One or two more applications are being considered, the board having made an especial arrangement with Bradstreet's for assist-ance in approving the bonds. When the supreme court meets next week the ques-tion as to the definition of the term "current funds" will be submitted for an opin-ion. If the court decides that all funds in the hands of the treasurer are included in the description of "current funds" the board will doubtless approve of quite a number of additional bonds. There is a fair prospect that within a short time all the funds of the state not actually needed will be in the hands of state depositories, and that the state will be receiving a comfortable inter est for the use of the money.

Cass County Will Have a Grand Jury. PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., Jan. 11 .- [Special Felegram to THE BEE]-Judge Chapman in adjourning court today made a statement in open court authorizing the county commissioners to draw a grand jury to sit at the next jury term of court, which convenes on March 12. The commissioners will draw the jury at their February session. During his re-marks the judge strongly intimated that cer-tain classes within the borders of Cass county. were becoming entirely too bold in their lawlersness, and a cleaning out was badly needed. The county has not indulged in a grand jury session for several years, and the udge's action meets with the approval of the public.

Several nights ago the city council was waited upon by a delegation of the Woman's Christion Temperance Union, who asked the council to take steps to abate the gambling and violation of the liquor laws in practice in the city, but the council for the time being refused to take any action. The call of the grand jury will, it is thought, satisfy the ladies that the investigation which they sought will be made.

Paying Fair Rate of Interest. SCHUYLER, Neb., Jan. 11.-[Special to THE BEE.]-In a dispatch from Lancoln, dated January 6, is a statement showing benefits derived by various counties from the deposi-tory law requiring county treasurers to deposit county funds in some designated depository. Colfax county is one on the list, but the county's benefit is not shown within several hundred dollars. The First National bank of Schuyler was the deposi-tory and the rate of interest paid on the average daily balance was 4 per cent. There was a livelier competition for the county funds this year, there hav-ing been a bid of 4% per cent from a bank said to have been com-bined with another bank of Schuyler. The bid of the First National bank, which was the depository in 1892 and 1893, was 5 per cent, so the depository will not be changed. O'Netil's Fine Mill Burned.

NHLIOH, Neb., Jan. 11.-[Special Telegram o THE BEE.]-About 6 o'clock this morning Seorge F. Housh, a milk dealer of this city, kliled Charles F. Cage, another citizen. A number of men had been drinking and playing cards at Bitney's livery barn during the afternoon, and just a short time before the fatal affray Cage became quarrelsome and abusive and slapped one of the men in charge of the barn, and in order to clear out the crowd pulled off his coat and hat and handed them to Housh. After trying in vain to get a fight with the Bitneys, who were trying to get the crowd to leave, he began to abuse and kick little Ernest Staples, who had come to call his father to supper. Housh objected and Cage through Housh lown and choked him.

After he let Housh up he attacked him igain and choked him. Then he went out on the street and abused the Staples boy. Again he returned to attack Housh, who struck at him and cut him with a pocket knife on the left side of his neck, severing the carotid artery. He fell over against Otto Hartman, one of the bystanders, who tried to staunch the flow of blood, and a physician was sent for, but before he arrived, and in fact almost immediately. Cage expired without having uttered a word. The two men had been fast friends for many years. Housh was at once arrested and placed in the county jail. The coroner was called and a jury was empaneled, who, after viewing the body, adjourned until 10 a. m. omorrow, when testimony will be taken. Cage was a large, strong man and when drunk was very abusive.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11 .- The testimony of Frank scanlon was continued in the Coughlin case today. Ex-Judge Wing, for the defense, succeeded in making the witness contradict himself several times, and then James A. Quinn was called to the stand. His testimony did not differ materially from that given at the former trial. He said he had heard Coughlin say previous to Dr. Cronin's disappearance: "If one of your North Side Catholics don't keep his mouth shut he will be done up." Mrs. T. T. Conkling, with whom Dr. Cronin poarded was also examined. She estified regarding the departure of the doctor on May 4. A flurry of excitement was caused in the court room today by a report that an at-tempt had been made to intimidate the jurors. The report was that a note, which the wife of one of the jurners tried to get to her husband, fell into the hands of a bailiff. The note said that a man had called at the home of the juror and told the wife that it would go hard with her husband if he voted for a variate argument Courthic. verdict against Coughlin. When the pur-port became known it was at once reported that efforts were being made to intimidate It was said the note would be the jurors. It was said the presented to Judge Tuthill.
