Details of the Vote—Some Democrats Act with the Republicans—Great Throngs Crowd to the Capitol—Incidents of the Day.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—At 6 o'clock to-night, at the close of one of the grandest, most imposing and most impressive scenes ever witnessed in the American Capitol, the Wilson tariff bill passed the house of representatives by a vote of 204 to 140.

CRUSHED AND CROWDED.

Such a vast concourse of people as assembled to hear these last arguments upon the great economic issue about to be submitted for final action to the representatives of the American people had never been before seen within the precincts of the nation's legislative Capitol.

Mr. Pickler's amendment to substitute the present law for the tariff bill was defeated by a vote of 191 to 109.

Mr. Payne's substitute (20 cents per bushel on barley), shared the same fate, 91 to 108.

Mr. Lockwood, who was still industriously opposing the bill, demanded the yeas and nays on each vote. His amendment was defeated.

Mr. Taylor of Minnesota offered an amendment to make the duty on 30 cents per bushel and 10 cents per bushel, respectively, on barley and barley malt.

Mr. Reed, the first speaker, arose at last to deliver the final argument for protection, the overhanging galleries were black and dense with the spectators who thronged them.

Then for three hours the oratory of the champions of the two economic systems followed—Reed, Crisp and Wilson—while their partisans made the air vocal with their shouts of approval.

When came to voting the victory of the measure was certain. The yeas stood upon the income tax proposition (taken in connection with the internal revenue amendment), stood 182 to 68.

UNCERTAINTY BOUND TO PREVAIL. "Whatever speeches have been made in defense of the bill, on the other side, whether by gentlemen who were responsible only for their own constituents or the gentleman from West Virginia who has been so often studied by his sense of responsibility to the whole country, have not and all with rare exceptions, have not been compromised by any of the temptations, promises, or threats on the side of unrestricted free trade.

As each one cast his vote it was greeted by applause and cheers from the republican side. Those who voted against it were Hartlett, Campbell, Covert, Quimring, Haines, Hendrix, Schermerhorn, and Slickens of New York, Cadmus of New Jersey, Sperry and Gray of Connecticut, Geary of California, Sibley of Pennsylvania and Jones of Ohio.

galleries recognized him, and the applause which greeted his appearance was prolonged for fully half a minute. Mr. Reed's acknowledgments, a similar demonstration occurred when Speaker Crisp, dignified and erect, ascended the rostrum to deliver his closing speech.

On Monday and on yesterday Mr. Lockwood succeeded in preventing a vote on these amendments by filibustering, and as soon as the reading of the Journal commenced, following up, construction program by making the point of no return.

Although there was manifestly a quorum present the rules required that the yeas be called and the speaker had no alternative save to order the roll called. Mr. Lockwood knew that if he could hold the fort until noon he would again be victorious.

Mr. Richardson took the chair and announced that the pending question was to close the debate on the amendments of the barley schedule. Mr. Wilson and Mr. Warner, the tellers took their places.

Mr. Lockwood attempted to continue his filibustering by moving to adjourn, but the speaker refused to entertain the motion and at 11:20, the house went into committee of the whole for further consideration of the tariff bill.

which raised wages is inimical to them and manufacturers who have foreign markets are naturally anxious to see wages raised to foreign standards. I confess to you that this question of wages is to me the vital question. To insure our growth in civilization and wealth we must not only have wages as high as they are now, but constantly and steadily increasing.

AMERICAN MARKET THE BEST. Mr. Reed enlivened the American market as the best in the world, owing to the high wages paid our enabling workmen to purchase largely of the comforts of life.

CRISP REPLIES TO REED. "Mr. Speaker," began Mr. Crisp, "I feel constrained to meet the audience here assembled, embarrassed in the idea that I may not be able to fulfill the expectations of my friends who have gathered here to answer, to reply to, and make corrections to this house of the errors in the argument which we have just listened to."

THIRTY YEARS OF PROTECTION. Mr. Crisp was greeted with applause when he said that the thirty years of protection was a period of unrest, during which the nation made great advances, but it rebelled against the heavy burdens of taxation.

WHAT ABOUT THE FARMER? "But what about the farmer? Well, on that subject I do not profess any special learning, but there is one simple statement which I would like to make to you."

CLAIM THAT WAS NEVER MADE. "Here let me meet some other questions, and let me meet you fairly. We are charged with having raised wages, but we alone will raise wages. We have never made such a claim in any such form."

REPEATED TO THE HOUSE. Before the vote could be taken Chairman Richardson rapped loudly for order.

THE SPEAKER RESENTED THE ROTUNDA and the gavel was passed to him. Mr. Richardson rapped for order.

His Ultimatum to the Insurgents—Wanted Firing on Vessels of This Country Will Be Resented—Rumors from the Land of War.

Copyrighted, 1894, by the Associated Press. RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 1.—The following is the letter which Admiral da Gama sent to the confederate President yesterday.

At the beginning of the revolution the city of Rio de Janeiro was defended by six field pieces, and was at the mercy of the squares of the rebel army.

After making this statement da Gama, in his communication, asked: "Are the conditions of the American ships not you to blame for the changes? Should you not force Peixoto to keep his compact? The task of the squadron is more arduous, bloody and dangerous, than that of the American ships."

Admiral Benham sent word to Admiral da Gama that he would not interfere with his operations, but would protect American ships when he fired on American ships for the purpose of frightening them from going to their wharves.

Admiral Benham says no compact exists between the commanders of the foreign fleets. They withdrew from their agreement for the purpose of maintaining the blockade.

Admiral Benham has warned the commanders of the American ships in the harbor that if they do not withdraw from the blockade, he will bombard the city.
