HOPE OF THE RAILROAD LAWYERS

Before the State Board

They Expect to Have Their Interests Pro tected on a Fine-Spun Theory of the Disability of Foreign Corporations.

LINCOLN, April 5 .- (Special to The Bee.) -The State Board of Transportation met Tthis afternoon to take up the consideration of the cases in which the secretaries recommend that transfer switches be put in at Schuyler and at O'Neill. The Union Pacific and the B. & M. are interested at Schuyler and both roads were represented by attorneys, the former by J. H. Ames of this city and the latter by J. W. Deweese, Mr. Deweese made a brief argument upon behalf of his company, laying down three general propositions:

That the State Board of Transportation has no power to enforce the law. It provides for the purchase of right of way and the extension of line, and the state of Nebraska has no right or authority to compel any railroad company to extend its line if it does not see fit. If the state can compel a railroad to construct a short line it can compel it to construct a long one, entirely across farland, who was the first receiver of the Capital National bank, admitted to the questhe if necessary.

"The B. & M. would have to construct the switch alone, as far as securing the right of way is concerned. The constitution of Ne braska prohibits any foreign corporation not chartered under the laws of the sate from exercising the right of domain.

"There is no necessity for the transfer switch at Schuyler, as shown by the testi-

Mr. Ames respectfully presented to the consideration of the board the provision of the constitution which prohibits the Union Pacific from exercising the right of eminen

In reply to the arguments of the attorneys Secretary Dilworth said that the secre-taries are not entitled to pass upon the constitutionality of the transfer switch law The law does not authorize or direct the State Board of Transportation to enforce the law. If the roads are ordered by the board to put in the transfer switches and they refuse to comply they must answer in the courts to the executive power of the The transfer switch law requires state. all railroad companies touching at common goints to construct transfer switches. They annot evade the law unless they can prove to the satisfaction of the board that to con struct such a switch would be unusually and excessively burdensome. In the case at Schuyler the secretaries had taken evidence and investigated the matter.

They had reached the conclusion that the construction of the switch would not be burdensome. It could be constructed without any great amount of work and would require the laying of less than 1.090 feet of track. Therefore, the secretaries had recom-mended that the prayer of the railroads inerested, that they be excused from construct-ing the switch, be denied. Mr. Dilworth also answered the argument made by Mr. Deweese to the effect that the state had no power to compel a railroad company to extend its saying that it was clearly estab-at the state had the power to order a railroad company to provide the necessary facilities for the transaction of the business of its patrons. The construction of a switch would not come under the head of an ex-tension of a main line. It could only be classed as an increase of facilities.

Attorney Hawley, who was present to represent the Elkhorn road, asked that his case at O'Neill be heard at the same time. He made a very brief argument against the mmendation of the secretaries, claiming that the transfer switch law was either amendatory to the maximum freight law or else that the maximum rate law was amendaory to the transfer switch law. The state

About noon today intelligence was conveyed to Coroner Crim of a peculiarly sud-den death that occurred a short time before at College View. A man living in the vicin-ity of the tragle occurrence brought the news. He related that a man riding in a two-wheeled cart had stopped in the road about a mile south of Union college to injuire of some parties he met as to where he was likely to find work. While he was talking he suddenly fell out of the cart, apparently dead. Coroner Crim went to the scene of the tragedy and impaneled a jury. The verdict was to the effect that the man "dropped dead." county during the fiscal year ending July 1, 1893, $321,589.60, not including that portion of the road fund which by law belongs the cities of Omaha and South Omaha. this sum the taxable property within the city limits contributed $223,596.65, $65,498.59 being raised outside the city limits and the balance, $29,494.36, being excess fees col lected at the various offices in the court house. In the expenditure of these funds $231,756.27 was paid out wholly to residents of the city of Omaha: $52,333.86 was paid for improvements outside of the city limits, fully one-half of which went to residents o city, or afterwards found its way back into the hands of our merchants and business men. Thirty-seven thousand four hun dred and ninety-nine dollars and ninety seven cents was sent to New York to pay interest on bonds, which represent improve ments made almost wholly within the city limits, and on a basis of the valuation of property 76 per cent of this was due from property inside the city limits; so that appears that from the expenditures of this year the city, instead of investing $1 and getting 5 cents in return, the city of Omaha received a direct benefit from the expendi of $286,422.92 out of $321,589.60 ture pended by the county, towards which the ity contributed $223,596.65. While it is true that the city bears 75 per cent of the burden of county taxation and must pay that same proportion of the road improvement bonds, yet, aside from the continual benefit that the city will derive from the improvement itself, 90 per ceal of the money invested will find its into the channels of trade among the business men of our city, so that instead of a return of 5 cents for each dollar invested the city gets a return of about $1 for each 5 cents invested. So much has been said about the actual benefits of good roads leading into our suburban districts that unnecessary for me to rehearse them further than to state that in many ways they contribute to the growth and prosperity of the city. No one will undertake to deny that real estate increases in value just proportion as it becomes accessible to the great centers of trade. Increased facilities for transporting produce to market will stimulate the production of garden truck and small fruits whose chief value

There are many reasons why residents of the rural districts adjacent depends upon an immediate delivery when Easy and quick communication to Omaha desire to come to our city; man, of them, not wholly for the purpose of buy will make suburban residences popular, and so in many ways increase the value of proping or selling goods. Not long since th people of Omaha raised a fund of some $25, erty so that the increase in assessed valuation will go a long way toward paying off the bonds when due. These are a few reasons why the city of Omaha should ad-000 to defray the expense of the national meeting of the Methodist Episcopal church, and later taey offered to put up a fund of vocate good county roads, FRED J.
