WOLCOTT TALKS ON FREE COINAGE

Proposition to Open the Mints for the Coinage of Mexican Dollars Gives Him an Opportunity to Criticize the President.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The proceedings in the senate today from the opening to the closing of the session were full of interest. The first point of time was the swearing in of Mr. Walsh as the senator from Georgia, to serve on the term of the late Senator Colquitt. Two resolutions intended to facilitate the debate on the tariff bill were introduced, one by Senator Mills providing for amendments to the rules, so as to permit of the previous question, and the other by Senator Allen providing for the taking of the final vote on the bill on June 7, allowing three days for debate under the five minute rule. Both went over without action.

The Wolcott resolution looking to the coinage of Mexican dollars for the mints... The second resolution looking to the opening of the mints for the coinage of Mexican dollars... The tariff bill was introduced, one by Senator Mills providing for amendments to the rules, so as to permit of the previous question, and the other by Senator Allen providing for the taking of the final vote on the bill on June 7, allowing three days for debate under the five minute rule.

FREE COINAGE FOREVER.

For his part, he declared, he should oppose anything that would result in the unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 15 1/2 to 1. During this "unfortunate" administration, he said, he had endeavored to favor any half-hearted measure which did not look to the reinstatement of silver.

Senator Sherman said he saw no objection to the resolution and that arrangements should be made to carry it out.

Senator McPherson of New Jersey opposed it, and at his request it went over until tomorrow.

A little stir was created by an effort on the part of Senator Harris to obtain an earlier hour of meeting and some definite understanding as to the issue of the tariff debate, but before he had concluded his remarks Senator Quay objected, which brought a caustic reply from Mr. Harris.

Senator Lodge objected to the present consideration of the motion, and under the rules it went over until tomorrow.

The tariff resolution directing the committee on finance to prepare a bill authorizing the secretary of the treasury to issue bonds was laid before the senate.

Senator Morris moved to refer it to the committee on finance. Senator Foster declared in favor of the resolution, and the senate passed it by a vote of 26 to 13.

Senator Hill's speech was chiefly devoted to an extensive attack upon the tariff reform bill, which he said was a "blunder" and "a blunder" in some places worse than a crime.

"The political revolution," he began, "which commenced in 1890 and culminated in 1892 was an emphatic expression of the popular will, and the tariff reform bill is a direct violation of that will."

however, the natural consequence which ought to have been anticipated from that error... The tariff reform bill is a direct violation of that will.

Coming to the main question, tariff reform, he said that revision should be approached with circumspection and care.

Income Taxes Exposed. The rest of his speech was given up to the income tax, and his opening words defined his position in unequivocal and forcible language.

He said, "unnecessarily ill-considered, and unwise, suddenly sprung upon the country in the hour of its distress, unendurable to the masses of the people."

He said that the tariff bill was introduced, one by Senator Mills providing for amendments to the rules, so as to permit of the previous question, and the other by Senator Allen providing for the taking of the final vote on the bill on June 7.
