FROST WORKED WATC AMONG SHEEP.

Dead Animals Lying in a Solid Mass Under Two Feet of Snow.

SONORA, Cal., May 17.—The snow, rain and wind that prevailed in the Sierra Nevada foothills during Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday was very disastrous to the sheep industry.

The road from Sonora up to Strawberry station, twenty-three miles, is lined with dead sheep.

The storm was unusually severe for this time of the year and the sheep had been sheared before entering the country where in an unit condition to meet the winter.

Up to this date some 40,000 sheep have entered this country en route for the mountain ranges, and as all of them were caught in the storm it is a low estimate to say that one-third of them have been killed.

PRENSO, Cal., May 17.—The returns from the mountains are beginning to come in and show that the loss to the shepherms on account of Monday's storm is far greater than that of the country en route for the mountains were found frozen to death in one heap where they had tried to find shelter among the trees. There are thousands of sheep farther back in the mountains and they cannot be reached on account of snow.

There is hardly a possibility of rain, they are saved, if they were not frozen to death during the storm they will die of starvation before the snow melts.
