

ANNUAL EPISCOPAL COUNCIL

Work of the Year in the Diocese Reviewed by Bishop Worthington.

PLANS FOR THE FUTURE SUGGESTED

Duty of the Church Regarding Industrial Conditions—Regular Business Transacted Yesterday Afternoon—Treasurer's Report—Officers and Committees.

Bishop Worthington delivered his annual address before the diocesan council in Trinity cathedral yesterday morning. The central portion of the church was filled with the delegates and visitors, and the full surplus choir was in attendance.

In opening his address the bishop referred to the financial troubles and complications which had arisen in secular affairs, which had touched the church in a measure, for though not of the world the church was in it. He did not think that through the distress of the times the church had suffered more than it should have.

There was much in the present condition of the times, he stated, which demanded serious thoughts and consideration, and he briefly referred to the social unrest which had become evident in the several of the "fanaticism of earlier days," in marching of the various labor armies toward Washington. The disease, he thought, was a spiritual as well as a social one and the church had its part to do in effecting the cure.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the Best. LOCKEFORD, Cal., April 21, 1894.—Having been troubled with frequent colds during the past few years, I have from time to time used various cough remedies of common use. I have arrived at the conclusion that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best, and now use it in preference to all others.

The patron of the theater will have the opportunity, commencing with next Sunday matinee, to witness the great play, "Michael Strogoff," at those low summer prices.

COMMITTEES were appointed as follows: Incorporation—Rev. Samuel Goodale and C. C. Knapp. Finance—Rev. William H. Sparling, C. C. Knapp and L. Bradley. Privilege—Rev. H. H. Moore, Rev. H. B. Burgess, D. Campbell and E. J. Murphy. Legislation—Rev. James O. Davis, Rev. John Williams, F. D. Jandson, Mr. Chancellor Woolworth, John E. Smith, J. H. Campbell and C. S. Montgomery.

After preliminary devotional services, conducted by the bishop, the archdeacon of the North Platte district gave an interesting account of his work for the year and the growth of the church in that section of the state.

FOR ROBBING AND SHOOTING

Martin Miller, Alleged Assassin of Frank Ribak, Placed on Trial.

STATEMENTS OF THE DEFENDANTS

Will Try to Prove an Alibi—An Insurance Policy that is Alleged to Have Been Secured by False Health Representations—Court Callings.

In the criminal section of the district court the trial of the case of the state against Martin Miller has been commenced. The defendant has been indicted on two counts, one charging robbery and the other shooting with intent to kill and murder.

On the early part of the evening of March 5, 1894, a man entered the grocery store of Frank J. Ribak, at Nineteenth and Clark streets, in this city, and walking to the back end of the store, where Ribak and his wife were working on the books, drew a revolver and demanded money. Ribak thinking that this was a joke, asked, "How much do you want?" at the same time stepping to the cash drawer and pulling it open. Without replying the man fired at Ribak, wounding him very severely, after which he robbed the till and fled. The police were at once notified and the next day Miller was arrested on suspicion of having been the individual who fired the shot.

Telling Tales on Each Other. The Dubach, Mary and George, have joined issues in the courts, where they have prepared for a fight to a finish in the legal arena. Tuesday, Mary, the wife of George, filed a petition for divorce in the office of the clerk of the district court, alleging a marriage that took place in the city of St. Louis, Mo., from this she alleged that she had always been a loving, faithful and true wife, but that of late she had been treated with cruelty and neglect by her husband, who had been drinking and had failed to help with the running expenses of the household. She averred that she made a living by selling toilet articles to ladies and by telling fortunes to people who came to the house. During times when she was looking into the future and telling fortunes, she had seen that she would never see her husband again, and that she would be left with a young child, and that she would be left with a young child, and that she would be left with a young child.

AN INSURANCE COMPANY'S DEFENSE. In Judge Keyser's court the case of Wilhelm Hamann, guardian of the minor heirs of John Drulo, against the Union Life Insurance company is furnishing food for reflection for a jury. The plaintiff is seeking to recover the sum of $2,000, the face of a life policy, claiming that the life of Drulo was insured for that sum and that as yet it has not been paid.

THE ESTATE STILL UNSETTLED. In the probate court William M. Bushman has been cited to appear and show cause why he should not be removed from the trust of administrator of the estate of William Steve, who died in the month of September, 1888. The petitioner alleges that as administrator Bushman has failed and refused to account for $3,482, property of the estate which came into his hands.

ON THE POLICE QUESTION. OMAHA, May 23.—To the Editor of The Bee: The citizens of this city, irrespective of party, endorse your sentiments on the police question in your editorial of May 21. It is with feelings of regret that we have been compelled to take notice of the action taken by our Board of Fire and Police Commissioners on the Shop-Corrick question, as it will, in a great measure, help to make things worse, and we sincerely hope that the departments that some day their for in the way we look at this question will not be for the welfare of the police force and for the city in general for our police board to give their support to any official that will violate the rules laid down by his chief or to back him up in insulting his superior officers. The old citizens composing the departments that some day their for admit the fact that Captain Corrick has always been a gentleman and an able and efficient officer, faithful in the discharge of his duty, having the confidence and respect of the chief and the love and respect of the citizens in general who have come in contact with him in the discharge of his duties as an officer, and also the confidence and respect of a large majority of the men under his control, always treating them with consideration and kindness.
