"Trusty" Bob Scott Abuses His P. ivilegee at the County Jail.

WENT ON A DRUNK WITHOUT PERMISSION

Found by the Sheriff's Deputy Amusing flinself Smashing Noses in a Main Street Saloon and Placed in Close Confinement.

Bob Scott, a prisoner at the county jail got into a fight Thursday night with William Steele in a saloon on Lower Main street and as a consequence has lost his privileges. Scott has been serving a six months' sentence for stealing a lot of stuff from a house on Pierce street, and for the last few weeks has been regarded as a "trusty," and allowed to do the buying of groceries and meat for the other prisoners at the jail Last Thursday night, while Mack Goodwin was in charge of the jail in the absence of Sheriff Hazen from the city, Scott asked leave to go to a grocery store about two blocks away, and Goodwin granted it, telling him to come back immediately.

Nothing more was seen of Scott for some little time, and finally Goodwin became un easy and asked Deputy Sheriff O'Brien to go out and look for him. O'Brien made a tour of South Main street and at last found Scott in a saloon, just in the act of striking William Steele. Several more men were mixed up in the row and billiard ones and fists were flying about the atmosphere pretty promiscuously. Steele did not recognize O'Brien as an officer and was about to add another nose to his collection, when one of his companions jerked him back.

Scott was taken back to the jail, and Sheriff Hazen states that as he has abused the privileges which were given him be will be kept in close confinement from now on to the end of his sentence, excepting when Steele went to the city clerk and filed an information charging Scott with assault and battery, but the matter was hushed up immediately, and strict orders were given the clerk that nothing should be said about the fact. Scott will be arrested just as soon as he is released from imprisonment, and will have another trial.

It Was a Scheme.

Jacob Neumayer, who was made defend ant in a $2,000 damage suit by Mrs. Gratt. who alleges that he sold her husband liquors after being warned not to do so by her, claims that the charges are wholly with-out foundation. The only time, he says, that Gratt ever got anything to drink at his place was last year, when him to trim some trees for him and that Gratt asked him to take a glass of beer with him, which he did. At this time Mrs Gratt told him not to sell him any mor-liquor, and he then requested his barke per not to let Gratt have any more liquor at his place. After this Mrs. Gratt and husband came to his house and Mrs. Gratt hid behind the door and had hes husband go in and buy a drink, and then she rushed out and seized Neumayer by the collar, saying: "You have been selime damages." This sale of liquor, Neu mayer says, was made by a new bartender who did not know Gratt. Mrs. Gratt threat ened suit unless Neumayer would pay her heavy damages. Neumayer says neither Gratt nor his wife had been in the hous-for a year until June 12, 1894, when Gratt and his son came to town and both went to Neumayer's hotel. The son, according to the hotel man's story, hid behind the door, while the father went in to the bar and ordered a glass of pop, or beer. As he was unknown to the bartender it was given to him. The son then repeated the act of his mother, ran out from behind the doos and demanded damages for selling liquos to his father, threatening to sue him for damages. These demands were refused by Mr. Neumayer and this suit is the

Fatal Accident.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Jack, who live two miles east of Honey Creek, with their two children started from their home to come to Council Bluffs Friday afternoon. Just after they started Mr. Jack got out of the wagon to drive back his dog, which had followed him. In doing so he frightened his team, and they started to run, overturning wagon before they had gone many feet Mrs. Jack and the two children were thrown to the ground and sustained a number of painful bruises, but none of them were thought to be seriously hurt at the time. During the evening the youngest child, 1 year of age, suddenly had a fit. A doctor was called, but he could do nothing for her, and she died at 7 o'clock yesterday morn-ing. Goldie June Jack was its name. The funeral will take place this morning at 10 o'clock at the residence, and the remain will be intered in Reels cemetery.

The circus of these latter century days has been so embellished with tinsel and trappery that the old timer longs for a return of the tented show of his salad days, but like the ogre in the fairy story, the circus has been compelled to keep pace with the onward march, and the evolution is startling sometimes. The scent of the sawdust does not permeate the atmosphere in the modern show, and the smell that was usual in other days surrounding the menagerie tent has become somewhat frapped in conjunction with red lemonade and still redder popcorn. But the children, who knew not the delights of circuses of twenty years ago, swear by Sells Bros.' aggregation of tented wonders, and wonder what there was in the ancient hippodrome to so hold the love of the gray

It is not too much to say, viewing the show through the eyes of youth, that Sel's Bros. have one of the very best circuses entour. There is not a dull or uninteresting act in the whole performance, which takes place in two rings and on an elevated stage. The work of the gymnasts is excellent, the trapeze turns are clever, particularly the aerial feats of the Costello brothers and the Zorello trio, including that all-round good artist, Denny Ryan. The riding, too, was a strong feature of the performance, but the sensational act of the show is the troduction of a number of educated seals by Prof. Woodward. It is a marvelous exhibit which these seals give, and the wonder is that these brutes could be trained to do the tricks they do. While the circus part of Sells Bros.' show is noteworthy, the menagerie contains many beautiful specimens of mals, a pair of royal Bengal tigers being among the finest animals in the aggregation afternoon and evening performances were largely attended, and the show gave universal satisfaction.

FLEET APPROACHING OMAHA. Montana Industrial Army Will React

Here by River Tomorrow Evening. Mr. Nolan Davis, a newspaper man traveling with the "Hogan fleet," reached Omaha last night in advance of the main company, coming by rail from Sioux City. The fleet is carrying the remnant of Hogan's Industrial army down the river, the expectation being to go down stream to Cairo and then get towed up the Ohio toward Washington.

This is the army captured y United States troops at Billings, Mont., for stealing a Northern Pacific train. The leaders at that time sent to jail and the rank and file marched on to Fort Benton, where boats begun. In the army are 240 men now under command of Captain Edwards. All are un-der oath to go to Washington and there petition for the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 and for government control of telegraphs and railways. Progress thus far has been more rapid than was expected, the 2,000 miles by river between Sioux City and Fort Benton having been made since June 5. The men have been well supplied with provisions along the route and have suffered little from disease. At all cities where stops have been made they have been treated with great kindness. fleet, comprising ten boats, each thirty feet long and ten feet wide, will reach Omaha tomorrow evening. The men expect to re main here until after July 4.

Mr. Davis says that they are a sober con pany of miners and mechanics, 90 per cent of whom are American born. Many have families in Omaha, whom they expect to see on arriving here.

SHOPMEN'S WEEK SHORTENED. Beginning Tomorrow They Will Work Five

Days Instead of Six. Commencing Monday the employes of the Union Pacific shops will work five days a week of eight hours each, instead of six days a week, as has been the order up to this time. Saturday the employes will have to themselves, the change in the number of hours being necessary on account of the decreased service, the divorcing of the Oregon Railway and Navigation company taking away considerable work for the Pacific di

Cheyenne. Yesterday morning Superintendent of Mo tive Power and Machinery J. H. McConnell posted an order, stating that forty hours forty-eight hours, as now. There is nothing significant in this order, as the course has been followed for years, Strange Sights to Be Seen in an Arisona Canyon.

NATURAL WONDERS ON ALL SIDES

Lofty Spires of Rock, Leaning Towers and Water Gushing from Granite Wails-Glimpses of the Wierd Sabine Canyon.

The Grand Canon of the Colorado is looked upon as the great natural wonder of Arizona, and it deserves all that can be said of it in the way of grandeur and vastness. But there is a smaller canon in the territory much more interesting in many ways, that is seldom heard of. This, however, is not strange, considering the fact that a survey has never been made of it, and but one photographic instrument ever carried within its rugged walls; and that was only a small handcamera.

The place referred to is what is known as Sabine canon, and it is a rift in the southern side of the Santa Catalina mountains. The mouth of the canon is about twenty-five miles northeast of Tucson, Ariz., and the road to within a few miles of it is as smooth as an asphalt pavement. The size of Sabine canon, says the Sar Francisco Cail, ranks with the Yosemite and King River canons, but it has many features distinctively its own. It has no steep precipices like El Capitan, and the natural beauty of grass and flowers, common in Yosemite during the summer, are absent. But Sabine canon has cliffs that make one dizzy to look up at, and surprises await the explorer at every side, such as no other canon of the

The great peculiarity of Sabine canon is the variety of vegetation that can be found within its walls at any season of the year. From the mouth of the canon to the place it ends there is a difference of 6,000 feet in elevation, and as a consequence the vegetable growth comprises nearly everything known to botany. At the lower elevation giant cacti, palms and even the wild lemon grow in profusion. At the top nothing can be found but snow plants and lichens. In the summer the snow plants diappear and the lichens have a struggle for existence in the barren soil and rocks.

Sabine canon is about twelve miles long and has a general direction from northwest and has a general direction from northwest to southwest, but twists and spreads out among the hills, so at certain places it seems to go in every direction. In one place the canon is three miles wide, and at another not more than 1,000 feet.

It is not likely that Sabine canon will ever become a popular resort, for it is a journey of hardships to go even a few miles into it. It is also hard to find the way. Leaving Tucson the road to Aguas Calientes is followed for twenty miles, and is as smooth as a floor. But at a certain point, marked by a peculiar shaped cactus, this road must be left and a poorly defined trail followed over the desert. At places this can hardly be discerned on the sand and rocks, and when the foothills are reached nothing can be seen of it. Hills of sand and grave stretch on every side, and even in the winter months the heat is unbearable. Travel is slow, and after leaving the road it takes at least three hours to reach the place called lection of peculiarly shaped mountains.

To reach this spot is a good day's journey from Tucson, and man and horse will be glad to rest for the night. It is best to start early the next morning and travel up the canon before it gets hot and then rest again until the cool of the

the canon's mouth, which looks like a col-afternoon. Within a mile from the cannon entrance the wonders of the place become visible. Rocks of peculiar shape rise hundreds of feet ntocks of peculiar snape rise hundreds of feet into the air like church steeples. A group of three of these are at least 1,000 feet from the wall of the canon, and the tallest is nearly 700 feet high. They come to the ground abruptly, and do not cover a space of severy feet source. So this accounts of seventy-five feet square. So thin are they from base to peak that they look as if a breath would shatter them. The floor of the canon is composed of large rocks and bowlders, with patches sand here and there. In between these rocks are pools of water of great depth, and as clear as crystal. Some of these pools are surrounded by trees of different kinds, and the ground near by is covered with a thick growth of grass and flowers. It is difficult to imagine that the lovely spot can be such a desert locality. Sitting under the trees, everything around is green and fresh, but glance but a few feet beyond, and the meets barren cliffs and stretches of sun-baked sand. Traveling up the canon is slow work, for it is like a series of canal locks. Every few hundred feet a steep wall of rock is met that renders it necessary to climb along the of the canon. This is very difficult and also makes the ascent in elevation very rapid. In less than five miles the tropical plants have entirely disappeared and other vegetation becomes more plentiful. The local color in ciffs and rocks also changes, losing a great deal of its hard whiteness and taking on grays and greens. About half way up the canon a strange balanced rock is seen. It consists of two rocks really, the lower one being a cube of 150 feet. It is a solid stone, having square corners and tipped so that its upper surface s inclined at a steep angle. On this surface there is another square stone about a quarter the size of the lower one slowly slipping off. The effect is startling, and the wonder is that the upper rock maintains its position With the difference of another degree in angle it would slide off rapidly. As it is it is doing that but very slowly.

By climbing on a cliff near by a trail of crushed stones can be seen behind it, show ing that it has moved several feet since it first got into its unusual position. In a place about a mile above the bal-anced rock there is a flat stone floor nearly an acre in extent. It is absolutely level and pure white, except for a few gray streaks that run through it. It is one of the in the canyon, and an attempt to explain its origin is out of the ques-

Eight miles up the canyon one of its walls is formed by the side of Mount Lemon, and 7,000 feet of it can be seen at a glance. It is a very unusual sight, and the different elevations are plainly marked by the elevations are plainly The peak is covered with vegetable growth. ow and ice the greater part of the year Up there no vegetable growth can be seen but a little lower a clean cut line of pines stretches along the sides, and a little lower scrub caks appear among the rocks. Lower till cottonwoods and elms are seen the last is covered with a dense growth of grass and trees of all kinds.

As the ascent of the canyon is made strange and wonderful sights appear on all sides. A waterfall comes from a hole in the face of a solid rock and throws a stream like a fire engine. A cave or grotto of blue stone filled with water is a sight worth go ing miles to see. A large rock wedged in between the two walls of a gorge and a bubbling spring on a small hilltop are only a few of the unusual sights. To enumerate them all, let alone describe them, would be a heavy task. A wall of perpendicular rock over 100 feet high marks the upper end of this strange place. Above that the sides of Mount Lemon extend up to 13,000 feet above sea level. The varied effects of sunshine and moon

The summer rains always come very sudealy and are very heavy while they last. One moment the sun will be shining, as i only can shine in Arizona, and in a second seems, a brilliant cumulus cloud appears over the mountain top, gradually spreading until a gloom and silence hangs over the recky wah and crystal pool. Suddenly there is a burst of thunder, and then a strange ominous roar is heard far over the moun-tains. Gradually it grows nearer and louder, and then it is all around, filling air and sky-it is the summer rain. To say that it falls in bucketfuls only faintly describes it. Nor can it be described so that one who has never seen it can underso that one who has never seen it can under-stand the steady dawnpour. The water to making it one of the most popular sani-

D Copeland & Shepard Are Reaching Many People Through Their Liberal Business Methods and Their Remarkable Record of Cures.

Drs. Copeland and Shepard have kept it land & Shepard urged patients in desperate before the public that they treat all chronic diseases. In blood and skin affections they have had notable success. Today is given the case of Miss Carrie Nichols. daughter of Yardmaster Nichols of the C., St. P., M. & O. road, living at 1102 Jaynes street, North Omaha. Mrs. Nichels, her mother, says:

"Four years ago our daughter Carrie los er health. It was a painful and distressing trouble, that we first thought to be rheumatism. The skin got inflamed, and it seemed as if the knees would burst with humors that seemed ready to break out Then the disease shifted to the arms and finally settled in the left wrist. Her suffer-finally settled in the left wrist. Her suffering was intense night and day, allowing no sleep nor rest. The whole disease gathered in one spot on the wrist and became soft, and at last it broke. The bone was diseased and swelled. A doctor probed it, thinking he might find dead bone.

"For a whole year the ulcer was raw and unhealed. It always discharged blood and pus. One doctor thought the arm might require amputation. We then gave the case to Dr. Shepard. In a week it looked better. It is now entirely healed, and Carrie is well. Her blood is cleansed and all the potsons that caused her terrible sufferings have been taken out of her system. We are sure that Dr. Shepard deserves all the praise so many people give him."

The offices of Drs. Copeland & Shepard will be open on the Fourth of July from 9 to 11 a. m., and 2 to 4 p. m. only. Evening patients will come this week on Tuesday evening, July 3-6:30 to 8:30.

THE FOURTH OF JULY.

SUMMER ADVANTAGES. In all troubles of a catarrhal or bronchial nature, one month's treatment in the summer is, as a rule, worth two in the winter. It is in the summer that nature lends her ald to the work of the physician. The even temperature makes conditions spe-cially favorable for a speedy cure. The liability to catch cold is reduced to the minimum. Time and again have Drs. Cope-

For a few moments a deathlike silence prevails, and then a roar comes from the canon wall. Like magic, the rugged cliffs are covered with sparkling waterfalls. Hundreds of feet, into the depths of the canon selow, streams of water tumble, breaking into foam and throwing off myriads of prismatic rainbow tints. The water increases in vol-ume and rises on the bottom of the canon until the pools all disappear and a raging torrent is tearing among the rocks.

For possibly half an hour the display of nature's waterworks lasts and then there is a gradual shutting off until only a few streams trickle over the sides of the cliff and the pools in the canon's bottom again appear, but now looking like liquid mud.
