PAVING OF ROADS RESUMED

County Commissioners Determined to Make the Most of a Bad Job.

THEY ORDER THAT THE WORK PROCEED

Hope that Better Success Will Be Had with Clay as a Binder-Laying of the Stone Will Be Commenced Tomorrow.

The work of laying the macadam pave ment on west Dodge street was resumed vesterday, the contractors, Van Court & Co., having agreed to work in strict accordance with the terms of the specifications in the completion of the road, thus leaving the county to assume the responsibility in the event that a satisfactory pavement can-

This means that the first layer of broken stone will be put into the trench, pounded down and then pressed into place by the ten-ton roller. After this has been done the next step will be to put on the bindar of clay and then another course of broken stope, rolling this into place and then covering the whole with a top dressing of stone chippings. The same plan of building was in progress at the time when the commis-sioners stopped the work, with the exception that at that time screened gravel was being used for a binder, which was one of the materials provided for in the specifications. When the commissioners stopped the paving everything was very unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the loose gravel, which was between the two layers of broken stone, rolled until it was as solid as one trek rolled until it was as solid as one rock, rolled about like a lot of dried peas in a sack. At that time the contractors wanted to use the clay binder, but the commis-sloners objected, maintaining that the top layer of stone would crush through and leave the whole of the wearing surface a mass of mud, especially during and after a Having revolved the whole subject to their minds the commissioners have come to the conclusion that the specifications are so faulty that the pavement cannot be made satisfactory if gravel is used for a binder, and, as a last resort, they have concluded

One of the commissioners, in discussing the matter yesterday, said that in his opinion a good pavement could never be secured even if the specifications were followed to the letter. In view of this and lowed to the letter. In view of this and in view of the fact that the contractors had in view of the fact that the contractors had bid upon faulty specifications, the best way out of a bad job was to go on and finish up the road in some way and get the matter out of the way. He said it looked to him like a squandering of the $50,000 apportioned for the Dodge street road, and not only this, but the road fund would be pauperized for all time to come in keeping the payement in repair. With the clay the pavement in repair. With the clay for a binder he said that the wheels of loaded wagons would be continually cutting through the wearing surface, filling it with ruts and leaving it in an uneven concition, necessitating the keeping of work-men on the road almost every day in the year so long as there was any of the pave-

to allow the clay to go into the work

The work of laying the stone pavement on Military avenue has not yet been com-menced, but the material is all on the ground, and next Monday Hugh Murphy, the contractor, will begin operations. The pavement will begin at the city limits and rill continue in a northwesterly direction for a distance of two and three-eights miles to a point about midway between Coal Creek and Mount Hope cemetery. This pavement will be sixteen feet wide and will be in the center of the road. Owing to this fact the Benson people have been com-pelled to pull up their street car tracks and will not put them down until the laying of the pavement is completed. When the rails are relaid they will be two feet to the south of the paving, the space between the rails and the pavement, a distance of two feet, will be filled with coal cinders, orushed and rolled into the space, thus giv-ing a paved driveway which will be eighteen feet wide.

PAY OF TEACHERS.

THAT SIDNEY CROWD.

Its Religion and Its Politics-A Colonel Speaks in Confidence.

One of the officials who went out to Fort Sidney to help take care of the Common wealers arrested near the western borders of the state returned yesterday and said that the camp afforded an interesting study into the lives and habits of the men. He made a quiet census among the men, and found that 47 per cent of them were Protestants, 29 per cent Catholics, and 24 per cent had no religion at all. Fifty-five are democrats; fifty-one, republicans; thirty-two, populists, and the other seventy are mugwumps or boys not yet of legal age One of the colonels of the so-called army told him in confidence that this Commonweal or Industrial movement was the result of the congress of tramps held at Des Moines, Ia., a year ago, and that its purpose was to create distrust and unrest among men and laborers who roam over the country at will for the purpose of advertisthe destitution of the western country, said that in most instances the leaders of the movement were paid to agitate idle men and organize them into large bodies of tramps which were to tramp over the country, seize trains and do other acts in-tended to intimidate congress, in hope of securing speedy and favorable legislation of the silver question. The colonel thought that if they had been successful in reaching Washington and creating a strong sympathy among all classes, an influential and wealthy lobby, would have soon followed them to the national capital to work for certain laws which would benefit certain western states. He thought that Coxey's will stop of its own accord.

Captured a Counterfelter. Special Treasury Agent Hughes received a telegram yesterday to the effect that Jo-Yoscomb hed been arrested by Sheriff Pence of Marshall county, Iowa, on the charge of counterfeiting and that the sheriff had seized a full outfit of dies and molds for stalcher bogus currency and coins. This is an important arrest and one that the officers have been trying to effect for several mouths, but could secure no definite clew to the counterfeiter. It is thought that Yoecomb worked alone and shoved all his queer money himself, thus avoiding detection for a long time. The accused man will be taken to Des Moines for a hearing before Commissioner Mason.

WANT SAM RELEGATED.

Building and Trades Council Address Reso lutions to the School Board. At a meeting of the Bullding Trades council held last Thursday evening the following held last Thursday evening the following resolutions were unanimously adopted;

Whereas, The time is fast approaching when the members of the school board will meet for the purpose of electing certain officers, among which the most important is the superintendent of buildings; and

Whereas, We understand that the present incumbent, Mr. Samuel Macleod, is again a candidate for said position; and Whereas, The said Samuel Macleod has proved himself to be totally unable and incompetent to fill said position, as numerous cases may be cited to illustrate, chief among which may be mentioned the time about a year ago when Sam and his incompetent scab bricklayers dug a hole under the partition wall of the Cass street school to make room for a boiler and forgot to brace the walls, the result of which was a collapse of two floors of said building, which at certain times might have resulted in a terrible loss of lives; and

Whereas, The said Samuel Macleod, in connection with his own incapability, has always preferred to hire a lot of incompetent scabs, instead of employing competent union men, which in itself is inexcusable, unless there may be some money in it for Sam; therefore be it

Resolved, By this Building Trades council, composed of representatives of all the building trades in this city, that we condemn the action and nefarious workings of the said Samuel Macleod; and

Resolved, That we hereby enter our most carnest protest against the re-election of the said Macleod; in ill the office of superesolutions were unanimously adopted;

Resolved, That we hereby enter our most earnest protest against the re-election of the said Macleod to fill the office of superintendent of buildings; and be it further Resolved, That a cepy of these resolutions be given to the public press for publication and a copy be sent to the school board at its next meeting, with the request that it relegate the said Macleod to the rear and let some competent and capable man that will be a credit to the city fill the position as superintendent of school buildings in the city of Omaha. The complainant is George Wanner, 816 Leavenworth street, and the child upon whom the assault is said to have been made is Wagner's 5-year-old daughter.

For some time Donovan has resided in this building. Soon after going there he became acquainted with Mr. Wagner and the little girl.

The complaint is based on the statements of the girl, who says that on three occasions Thursday Donovan attempted to do of the girl, who says that on three oc-casions Thursday Donovan attempted to do what he accomplished Friday, in each in-stance using threats and in the last violence that caused great suffering. The assault was committed in Donovan's rooms, whither he carried the child

LONDON'S NEW TOWER BRIDGE

Completion of the Great Highway Over the River Thames. OPENED TODAY BY THE PRINCE OF WALES

Formal Ceremony Marking the Completion of One More Great Engineering Feat -Thousands of Englishmen Out to See the Royal Procession.

LONDON, June 20.-The great Tower bridge was formally opened today by the prince of Wales in the name of the queen. The weather was blazing hot and the scene was a magnificent one. Tens of thousands of persons lined the route of the royal procession. The ceremony took place at noon. At 11 o'clock the royal procession, consisting of five state carriages and left Marlborough house for the bridge, which left Mariborough house for the bridge which spans the Thames a short distance below London bridge, from a spot adjoining the tower of London on the Middlesex shore a Bermondsey on the Surrey side.

In the first three carriages were the memers of the household of the prince of Wales and the duke of York. In the last two carriages were the prince and princess of Wales, the duke of York and the Princesses Victoria and Maud of Wales. The royal carriages proceeded through Paii Mall to the Strand, through that thoroughfare to Fleet street, Ludgate Hill and Cheapside. Fleet street, Ludgate Hill and Cheapside.
At the Mansion house the royal party was received by Lord Mayor Tyler and the sheriffs of London, and at the new bridge the prince of Wales and his family were received by the duke and duchess of SaxeCoburg Gotha, the duke and duchess of Connaught, Prince and Princess Henry of Battenberg, and by the duke and duchess of Teck and other parabilities. A special of Teck and other notabilities. A special enclosure to the left of the royal dais was reserved for the diplomatic corps, among whom were the United States ambassador and Mrs. Bayard. From Temple Bar, where the Strand ends and Fleet street begins, to the Tower bridge the streets were lined with cavalry and infantry, and at the bridge itself the guard of honor was composed of blue jackets, the honorable artillery company, the rifle brigade and detachments of volunteers

GUARDING THE ROYAL FAMILY. Extraordinary precautions were taken to guard the royal family. Every detective and policeman in the metropolis who could be spared from regular duty was stationed at some point along the route of the proession or else about the bridge.

On reaching the northern approach to the bridge the royal party were received by the lord mayer and the high civic officials, all full robes, and were conducted to their places on the bridge. The ceremony of de-claring the bridge open was performed by the prince of Wales, who, by means of an electric button, opened the enormous bascules which have been built so as to allow vessels o pass underneath.
A flourish of trumpets, the thundering of guns from the Tower, loud and enthusiastic cheering from the crowds and the shrieking and hooting of the whistles of the launches and steamers on the river announced the completion of the work. The bishop of London, wearing his robes and hood, then pro-nounced the benediction and the officials connected with the construction of the bridge were received by the prince in behalf of the queen. The massed bands played the National anthem, and two steamers, decked with bunting, passed through the bridge amid tremendous cheering.

Leaving the bridge, the royal party proeeded to the Tower, and after inspecting the eefeaters embarked on the steamer Palm and escorted by the queen's water men re-turned to Westminster and were from there driven in carriages to Marlborough house. The bridge is near the famous old tower of London, and connects Bermondsey, Walworth, Camberwell and Peckham, on the south bank of the Thames, with the western part of the old city, on the north bank. According to the lord mayor of London, has cost the corporation over The bridge was begun in 1896.

From 500 to 800 men have since been con-stantly employed upon it. Seven men have been killed since its construction was begun The bridge, with approaches, is half a mile long. The high-level spans are 142 feet above high water; the short spans are 270 feet, the middle one 200 feet long. The bascules weigh eighty tons each; the lead ballast on the "short leg" weighs 290 tons About 2,000,000 rivets have been used in the construction of the bridge.

The bridge was designed by the city architect, the late Sir Horace Jones, who had essociated with him Mr. J. Wolfer Barry, who has been engineer to the under-taking, and it has been built for the corporaion of London under the direction of the Bridge House Estates committee. It con-sists of three spans. The roadway is a lifting bridge on the bascule principle; that direction and are counterpoised on their inner ends. The opening between the piers is 200 feet. The leaves of the bascule or roadway bridge are to be moved by hydraulic nachinery placed is suitable chambers in he piers. The center of the pivot is 13 feet inches inside the face of the plerotal length of each lifting part from the The short end is 49 feet 3 inches

MASONRY SURROUNDS THE STEEL. The steel skeleton of the bridge towers is encased in masonry that it may harmonize, so far as possible, with the neighboring Tower of London. For foot passengers the two towers are connected at the top by two fixed spans; the length of each of these spans is 237 feet, and consists of two canti-levers and a center girder. The height of the columns of the towers is 119 feet 2 inches. There are three landings to each ower, the floors being of steel. The approaches to the piers are on the suspen-ion principle, each chain being in two segments of unequal length. There are two hydraulic passenger elevators, or "lifts," as our English cousins call them, in each tower in addition to staircases. The ties orming the vertical wind bracing have been put in such a manner that when the bridge is fully loaded with its dead weight all over each ile has an initial strain corresponding to three and a half tons per quare inch of section.

The weight of the opening roadway, added to that of the high level footway and the towers supporting them, renders the load pon the foundation unusually heavy for a oridge of such moderate span. The founda-tions are carried down to the London clay, which forms the bottom of the bed of the which forms the bolnt, with a slight layer of gravel or river mud above it. As it was determined to limit the load to the very moderate amount of four tons per superfi-cial foot, the dimensions of the foundations work out to 100 feet in width and 2044, feet from end to end of the cut-waters. Sir Benjamin Baker has said that he does not know of any other bridge foundations with such dimensions as those of the Tower bridge, except in the case of the Brooklyn bridge. The two main founda-tions in the latter bridge support a roadway of 1,606 feet span, or about the same as that of the Tower bridge.

In sinking the foundations for piers, eight rectangular iron caissons were used for each pler, timber cofferdams being specially for-bidden by act of Parliament. These caissons were twenty-eight feet square. There were also in each pier four caissons of an approximately triangular shape. These calssons were built in position, and are mainly permanent below the river bed, into which extend nienteen feet, so as to reach the London clay. This clay was undercut below the cutting edge of the caisson when the latter had reached its lowest position for a vertical distance of seven feet and five feet outward from the face of the caisson. This gave a depth of foundation of twenty-six feet brthe bed of the river. These foundations are of cement concrete, six to one, except the top two feet, which is of gault brick work. These caissons above the bed of the river were removed when the masonry was or four feet above high water. Each pier contains two accumulator cham-pers, a bascule chamber and two machinery chambers. The bascule chamber is a recess into which the short arm of the lifting bridge sinks. It goes to nine feet of the bed of the See the slide for life at Courtland Beach. are seventy feet wide by 154 feet 8 inches long from point to point at a central line at the water level. At foundations they are each 204 feet 6 inches from toe to toe by 100 feet wide.

The central bridge, as before stated, consistes of two fixed and one opening span, the two fixed spans forming, the high level footway. The distance between the two plers is a little over 230 feet, and the height in the clear above high water is 140 feet. This limits the height of vessels passing under at high water; it is, however, sufficient for the purpose, for the Tower bridge is only a short distance from London bridge, which defines the navigable limit of the Thames for shipping proper—that is, vessens with masts that ping proper—that is, vessels with masts that will not lower. The waterway between piers is 200 feet wide. The maserial used for the masonry of the bridge is rock-faced granite on the walls and fine swed granite on the other parts. The turrets and windows are Portland stone and the roof is slate.

Paid the Deputies

Marshal White was busily engaged in paying off the deputies who have been out to Sidney guarding the Wealers yesterday There is a good deal of kicking from some of the men, who tried to collect nine days' pay for four days' work, on the ground that they had not been discharged, but the marshal would not allow the claims and paid them for what they actually did.

them for what they actually did. Frank Beach, one of the special deputies who was hired by the United States mar-shal to go out to Julesburg. Big Springs and Ogaliala for the purpose of suppressing the Commonwealers, says that he has a kick coming about the way they were treated and paid. He says that they were offered $5 per day and expenses as an inducement to go. Part of them were sent back to Omaha after being in service for the greater portion of five days. They were told to re-port to the marshal's office each day, but they found no one who could discharge them or to whom they could report. They re-ported every day for more than a week before they were relieved from duty. Since the return of the marshal he has been making out their pay at the rate of $3.95 per day, charging them $1.05 per day for board. Beach alleges that sometimes they only got a sandwich for a meal, and that they could have boarded themselves for half the money. Besides electing officers the assembly transacted considerable business and discussed the Coxey movement as some length. The members denounced the action of all the fren who left Omaha to act as deputies drifing the trouble at Sidney, and it is quite probable that all the men who belonged to labor organizations that went to Sidney as deputies will be given a trial to establish a precedent against such action. However, there are many in the orcedent against such ganizations who claim that the organized vorkers have a perfect wight to go out when the government calls, and claim that it is no disgrace to serve the government.

WASHINGTON, June 30 .- R. S. Thain, a venerable, white-haired individual, claiming to be the president of the People's Defensive union, with a companion, called at the white house today and requested an audience with the president. Mr. Thain said one of the objects of the union was to afford additional protection to presidents of the United States. He wanted permission to deliver a patriotic address from the steps of the capitol on the Fourth of July. Louisiana Senator Not Pleased with the Sugar Schedule.

WASHINGTON, June 30 .- Senator Blanchard, it is understood, is making considerable trouble for the finance committee by his protests against the proposed changes in the sugar schedule. The Louisiana senator is holding out especially for the continuation of the bouty for the present year. He also calls attention to the fact that the finance com-mittee har oacked out of its original propo-sition to accept the Hawaiian reciprocity treaty, which admits the sugar produced in that country to enter free, and is reported as saying the sugar producers of his state would be greatly injured by the sudden re-duction of the bounty as proposed by the duction of the bounty as proposed by the committee. He has put forth the claim that the proposed change is in violation of the democratic caucus agreement, and intimated in very plain language that if the changes are made as proposed the bill will not receive his support. Sioux City Road Wants a Hearing.

WASHINGTON, June 30 .- The house committee on Pacific roads again considered the funding bill without reaching any result. Next Saturday a hearing will be given, at the request of Representative Blair of New Hampshire, to representatives of the Sloux City & Pacific road, which has a debt to the government of about $3,000,000. Its bonds for $1,600,000 are garanteed by the government, it having been built as a part of the Pacific system and the government has paid the interest on it. Its debt is in the same condition as those of the Central and Union Pacific, maturing at the same News for the Army.

Sugar Section Will Remain Unchanged. WASHINGTON, June 30 .- Senator Blanchard regards the prospect for holding the sugar schedule in its present shape better than it was yesterday. He thinks the democratic members of the finance committee recede from their determination to bring into the senate the proposed modifications of the schedule, changing the date when the schedule shall go into effect and striking out the additional one-tenth of a cent on sugar imported from countries paying a bounty.

PALMER IN A PICKLE. Creditors Levy Attachment on His Goods and His Wife on His Boy. The Douglas Street theater is no more. Several times it has threatened to close its doors, Manager Palmer seeing no way to make both ends meet. He lays the failure to excessively warm weather and no business, but said had the agreement into which he entered when opening the theater been kept he would have nevertheless been making money even now. When the theater was first started M. L. Philips of Hamburg, Ia., went into it as a partner. As such he was to bear half of the expenses and share half of the receipts. On the opening night, when the receipts were quite large, Mr. Philips left the city for Hamburg, so Mr. Palmer says, taking the receipts, and leaving the latter to meet all the expenses that were incurred. It was then the downhill work commenced. People playing at the house wanted their money; the porters and other attaches wanted their money. Palmer had no money to pay them with. He closed the theater. Next, attachment proceedings were begun by Henry Miller, the colored porter, for $20. Then a Mrs. Curtle, where Palmer has been rooming, took a hand. She sued out attachment against Palmer's private effects for $20 for room rent. George Bruington, of whom Palmer borrowed money when he opened the theater and gave a mortgage on the stock, came to the front. He desired the mortgage to be satisfied. The consequence was when Palmer went to his room at Mrs. Curtis' last night he found his goods had been placed under attachment. He could make no explanation and when he attempted to enter his room he says he was forcibly ejected from it. Officer Glover was called to maintain order by Mrs. Curtis, as it was feared the con-stables would injure Mr. Palmer. The latter says he is perfectly disgusted with his en-terprise here. He has never been in such a condition before and hopes never to be again. Added to his business troubles are domestic complications. He says his wife has made away with his 7-year-old boy. The boy he is now endeavoring to recover, and while he thinks he will it is not, he says, much satisfaction to have such a multitude of troubles to seize him at a time.

Watching the Canal Project-The Knights of Labor were called to neet in the hall on Fourteenth street last night for the purpose of discussing the canal bond proposition, but the room was turned over to the men of the American Railway union and the meeting was post-pooed until another call is issued by the members of the committee. Some of the members in discussing the matter last night said that a meeting would not be held until after the county commissioners took some positive action in the premises. If the special election was called, with the proposition in the form as submitted, the meeting would be held for the purpose of protesting and outlining a plan for the fight, but in the event that the commissioners refused to submit the proposition to the voters of the county the meeting would never be held.

The members of the committee said that canal bond proposition, but the room was never be held.

The members of the committee said that on the whole they were not opposed to the voting of the subsidy, but they wanted the interests of the people protected and the laboring men of the city and county given an opportunity to have something to say with reference to the construction and management of the ditch and the water that would be brought from the Platte river. river.

Herman Garlick's Sudden Death. Herman Garlick, engineer at the William Beering implement house, and residing at 1220 Capitol avenue, was found dead at 6:30 last evening.
Mr. Garlick went home at 6 o'clock and sal on the porch, where he chatted for a few moments with members of his family. He had complained of not feeling well for several days, but last night said he never felt better in his life. Those to whom he was speaking went into the house, and when was speaking went into the house, and when supper was prepared called Mr. Garlick. He did not respond. They then discovered he was dead. He was a sufferer from heart discase. Mr. Garlick had just returned from Pelia, ia., where he went a few days ago to attend the funeral of his mother.
