SUBSOIL CULTIVATION.

Value of the Principle as Applied in Western Nebraska

Interested in everything that would tend to promote larger crops in Nebraska, the Burlington system has just received from,Mr. P. Youngers of Fillmore county samples of grains grown on his farm near Geneva, as the result of subsoil cultivation, which show the value of this new application of an old principle to the soil of western Nebraska, which if extensively followed may solve the problem of crop failures. The samples are on exhibition in the Altman-Taylor com-pany's window, Tenth and Farnam streets, and are well worth the careful inspection of

M. Youngers, who is one own citizens of largely engaged known of Fillmore county, growing of ornamental and fruit trees, egan experiments in subsoil cultivation as applied to fruit trees several years ago, but finally extended it to his grain fields with highly gratifying results.

Subsoil cultivation consists of preparing the soil (after the use of the stirring plow) with a subsoil cultivator that loosens up the subsoil to a depth of fourteen to sixteen inches, so that it will readily absorb and retain the noisture for the growing crop, the good effect being aparent for at least three years after the operation.

In 1893, when corn in the vicinity Geneva was only a very moderate crop, Mr. Youngers harvested seventy-five bushels per acre off the ground that had been subjected to subsoil cultivation. The potato crop was that year practically a failure. Mr. Youngers harvested 200 bushels per acre. This season being an exceptionally bad one for small grain, the samples on exhibition illustrate the success of Mr. Youngers' experiments. Samples Nos. 1 and 2-Rye from adjoining fields, No. 1 having benefit of subsoil cultivation, otherwise having no advantage, the same seed, planting and harvest, yields respectively thirty-five and thirteen bushels per acre. Sample No. 4.—Oats from ground adjoin to subsoil cultivation in the fail of 1893, will harvest forty bushels per acre. Section No. 4—Oats from ground adjoin-ing No. 3, subject to subsoil cultivation in the fall of 1892, will harvest thirty bushels

Sample No. 5-Oats from field adjoining Nos. 3 and 4, under ordinary cultivation, will harvest twelve bushels per acre. In each instance the planting, seed and harvest was identically the same, No. 5 being a fair sample of all the oats from ordinary cultivation in the immediate vicinity of the experimental farm. The difference between the height of grain samples will be particularly noted, but more remarkable is the difference in the "stand" on the ground as illustrated by the estimated yield noted above by competent authorities.

The samples forwarded are fair average samples of the whole field. Samples of both oats and rye from subsoll fields could be se-lected that would measure five feet in height The cost of subsoil cultivation to the farmer would be about double the cost of preparing the soil in the ordinary way, but would require this preparation only once in two or three years. The cost of the implement is only that of an ordinary plow, making it within the reach of all. Mr. Youngers contends that were subsoil cultivation practiced in western Nebraska crop failures would be unheard of and that

H erating in this city for some time. He and a pal were standing at the corner of Sixteenth and Nicholas streets when the officers saw them and followed the fellows up Nicholas nearly to Eighteenth. They were carefully inspecting the dwellings and finally went into an alley, where they could get a better view of one of the houses. The detectives separated in order to head the suspects off, and Detective Savage tried to arrest both. He succeeded in grabbing the men, but they recognized him and struggled to get away. Dempsey had to run quite a distance before he could reach his partner, and by that time one of the men had broke loose from Savage, leaving him holding an empty coat sleeve, which was torn off in the scuffle. Trainor refused to talk when he was taken to the station.

CAMPING PARTIES FOR THE SUMMER

First One Will Go to West Point Tuesday-Athletic Park Services by Church of Good Shepherd Popular-Foreeast of Pulpits Today.

Many of the members of the Young Men's Christian association and their invited friends are planning to spend ten days in as fine a camp as may be located in this section of Nebraska, and under the management of men having long experience in camp life and arranging for the pleasure and benefit of young men and boys. The Young Men's Christian associations of Omaha, Lincoln and Fremont have combined forces and located their camp at West Point, Neb., for thirty days, planning for three parties, each to be out ten days. The total expense, including railroad fare, will be but $10. A competent cook will be employed, and plenty of good, hearty, plain food furnished. The camp is located on Horseshoe lake, which is two miles from West Point. The lake is three miles long, and the fishing is said to be the best in the state. The camping place is close to the Elkhorn river, down which the campers can easily row to the village. Good swimming places abundant. One rule of the camp s "No swimming except when the leade of the party is present." An excellent field for base ball and athletic sports will be cleared. Games will be arranged with West Point nines and the senior parties.

Three large tents and a cooking shanty will be erected. A fleet of six boats has been engaged. Everything needed for the camp will be provided by the association eaders, and all one will need to carry will be a double blanket, change of clothing, toilet articles, towels and a pillow case. The first party will start next Tuesday at

Secretary Ober of Omaha and Secretary Doane of Lincoln will be in charge and re-main until the 27th. This party will be for boys from 12 to 18 years of age, and is filling up rapidly. The second party will be for older boys. Secretary Markell of Fremont and Director Graham of Lincoln will be in charge. This party will be in camp from July 27 to August 6. The third and last party is for older men, and will be conducted by Mr. Waltemeyer and P. O. Shaw of Lincoln. The very light expense of the trip and excellence of arrangements, esider the attractive location of the camp, will lead large numbers of the members join the parties and enjoy "Rough a Ready Camp," as it is styled. It is a rare opportunity for parents to send their poys off for a holiday trip under good auspices. Athletic Park Services.

The new departure of the Church of the Good Shepherd in holding its Sunday evening service at the Young Men's Chri tian Association Athletic park is so far a great success in numbers and interest. Every one is invited to these services. Promi-ient vocalists of the city have consented o help in the music. Sunday evenings at 7 p. m., through July and August, Twentieth and Miami streets. the moral of a proceeding in Judge Scott's branch of the district court. A young Swede from Clentarf precinct applied to the court for naturalization papers. He was 22 years of age, and, although he was been in Sweden, had come to this country with his parents when he was only 12 years old. He was a fairly intelligent young man, but before providing him with the documents necessary to insure him the right to vote the court took occasion to ask him a few question as to his information concerning the laws and institutions of the country of which he was an adopted citizen. The applicant was catechized severely in regard to numerous features of the republi-
