

THREE FARMERS FROM YUTAN

Came to Omaha Determined to See the Swift Side of the City.

HOWLING HAYRACK PARTY BY MOONLIGHT

It Ends with Boisterous Street Parade and March of Both Men and Women to the City Jail—Breakfast of Light Fines.

Out at Yutan, when they are upon their farms, James Schultz, Claus Manus and Hans Berhous work the Maud Muller racket to some extent, raking the meadows which are covered with hay. Tuesday these farmers raked up three loads of this hay and came to town, soon thereafter developing the fact that they were as fresh as the half cured grass which was upon their wagons. The hay was placed upon the market and in the afternoon it was converted into cash, which found its way into the pockets of the three men from Yutan.

It was too late to drive home, so after combing the hayseed from their whiskers, the rural gentlemen concluded that they would show the town people that they knew a few things about the swift side of life. They strolled into the district which is by-crooked by virtue, but failed to pluck up sufficient amount of courage to warrant them in addressing any of the hand-painted fairies. The desire to have a good time still retained possession of the minds of the gentlemen from the rural districts and throwing several beers into themselves they struck off on a different tangent, going over onto South street, where they happened to drop into the abode of Mary Scord, who opined that she was just dying to receive the affections of such nice men as those from Yutan. She also had heard that they would be willing to assist in the entertaining line.

The beer having commenced to work, the bashfulness which heretofore had kept the three men in the straight and narrow wore away, and at once they informed the woman of the house that it would afford them great pleasure to have her friends trotted out for their inspection. After this announcement had been made, Mary Moore, George Hick and George Wilson were brought into the room and introduced. For a time the women stroked the sun-kissed whiskers of the gentlemen from abroad and then they suggested that it would be proper to caper to the growler for a few turns. During the next hour this growler was kept busy making trips from the room to the nearest saloon in the city, where the beer was a tame occupation and as the day wore away and the sun started in to hide its face behind the western hills, the farmers insisted that it would be proper to go out for a while and do a little painting. The women were willing and a couple of hacks were proposed. After learning that hacks for the whole party would cost several dollars the farmers demurred to the proposition, saying that the prospect for crops out in their country was good, and that they therefore they would have to economize. Walking, they said, was good enough for them, and that if it was not good enough for the women, they would be glad to be tired and footsore and refused to walk. For a time the outing was declared off, but all of a sudden one of the farmers hit upon a bright plan. He said that they had three teams up in the barn; that there were three lumber wagons and three hay racks. If the girls were willing to ride on hay racks the excursion could be made.

Such an arrangement all of the girls voted was just the thing, and besides it would be swell. There was a rapid hustling into outer garments and soon all of the members of the party were on the way to the barn, where in less than five minutes to talk the tale the teams were hitched up and all of the men and women were out for a loud time and the matter of chaperoning was left entirely to the women. The drive was in a direction that led to the north part of the city, all of the drinking fountain on the route being visited, finally terminating at a road house not far from Florence lake. There for a couple of hours the individuals from Yutan and their companions made delicious ring wild liquor flowed as freely as the water in the river, which was not far away.

The middle of the night was coming on when the farmers openly declared that they were too full for utterance, affirming that they would be blunked if they were taken back to town. The women of the party declared that they would be blunked if they did not go back, even if they had to walk. A couple of words were heard and a unanimous vote it was decided to return to Omaha for the remainder of the night. Some one suggested that they should go back on the hay racks, but this the farmers raised a protest, urging that the horses had been put away, that they were tired and that it would be cruel to make the poor beasts get out into the night air.

Another round of beer was put out of sight and again the farmers resolved that they would not take their horses out upon a stable until they had a full night's rest. That settled the whole matter and a few minutes later the men and women hit upon a plan to take a motor car to the city, getting down to the motor line just in time to catch the last car. On this they rode until they got down into the city, where they were met by the women, who were waiting for them. They took to the street, locking arms and singing, "We won't go home 'til morning." Just as the last line of the last stanza had been sung a policeman swooped down upon the whole party and invited them to the station, where they were booked on the charge of being drunk and making a loud and unusual noise.

Yesterday three farmers and four women were lined up on the benches of the police court, the women taking the matter in a philosophical manner, while the men looked as sad as three dogs which had been caught in the act of killing sheep. The judge heard the evidence and pronounced a loud and unusual noise.

LOVEVILLE, St. Mary's Co., Md., June 15, 1894.—I have handled Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for the past year. It gives the best of satisfaction to my customers. I received a nice letter last week for four bottles of the remedy from a man residing sixteen miles from my place. Today I received a letter from him, stating that it has saved the lives of two members of his family. An old gentleman here, who has suffered two years with diarrhoea, was permanently cured by this remedy. He can now do as much work as any man of his age. I could mention other remarkable cures, but the remedy will show for itself if tried. B. L. Love, 25 and 50-cent bottles for sale by druggists.

FOUND A FLOATER.

Body of a Man Supposed to Be George Howard Deaver. While some little boys were playing along the river front at the foot of Hickory street yesterday they discovered the body of a man floating near them. They called the attention of a boatman to the fact and going out into the stream he fastened a rope to the floater and telephoned for the coroner. That gentleman responded and took the body to the morgue. The body has been in the water several days and is rapidly becoming decomposed. The deceased was fully six feet tall and very heavy. He was bald-headed and had a light-colored heavy mustache. The clothing was of a fine quality, and in the pocket of the pants was a letter and a receipted bill. The letter was from a daughter, who signs herself "Mary," and the address as 1233 Curtis street, Denver. The receipted bill was dated Catskill, N. Y., and showed that George Howard had bought of the Richard Danner and Lumber company goods of the value of $4 and that he had paid for the same.

Coroner Maul is of the opinion that the dead man is George Howard, and in order that he may learn something more regarding the facts he telegraphed to the Denver address given in the letter.

Criminal Court Record. The records of the clerk of the district court show that there were thirty prisoners convicted in the criminal division of the district court during the May term, which has just closed. This makes an even 250 convictions during the term of County Attorney Kaley. In commenting on the work of the term yesterday Mr. Kaley called attention to the fact that crime was perceptibly on the decrease in Omaha.

In spite of the ravings of people who delight in the assertion that Omaha is badly governed city, the records of the court show a degree of law and order that is scarcely equalled by any large city in the world. Two or three years ago nine out of ten of the criminals who were prosecuted were old penitentiary birds, but during the last term there was only one old-timer on the docket. This was a man who had committed a burglary in South Omaha under the mistake that he was in Sargy county. The records of the crimes that are committed in Omaha are the work of boys and novices. Last Saturday a half dozen boys of this sort were sent to the reform school by Judge Scott for various petty robberies. The old-time crooks seem to have found out that the way of the transgressor is hard in Omaha, and give the city a wide berth.

There may be some on in this vicinity who is afflicted with a stomach trouble. If so, the experienced A. C. H. is a carpenter, and contractor of Newman, Ill., will interest him. For a couple of years he was at times troubled with a pain in the stomach, that he says, "seemed to be through me from front to back. I began taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and in a few days the pain disappeared. I took a dose of the Remedy and was promptly relieved and has effected a complete cure." It is for sale by druggists.

Short Police Stories. Mike Regan was yesterday fined $4 and costs for having maintained and failed to move a barbed wire fence. This is the first conviction under the new ordinance, prohibiting the erecting and maintaining of fences within the city limits. A number of notices have been served and if the fences do not come down, every owner will be arrested.

S. C. West, the white man who was charged with assaulting five little colored girls, was tried and convicted in police court yesterday. In passing sentence Judge gave him a fine of $50 and the costs, and a term of fifteen days in the county jail.

William Stimley, residing near Forty-second street and the deaf and dumb school disappeared from his home Tuesday morning and has not been seen since. His wife is of the opinion that he has been foully dealt with.

Fined Ford and Wright. The fate of the little colored baby, Ruth Wright Trotter Ernest, was decided again yesterday, this time the fight being in the police court. Some days ago Constable Ford and Charles Wright went to the Ernest home for the purpose of taking forcible possession of the child. Ernest resisted the taking of the child and drove the two men off the premises, after which he swore out a warrant for their arrest. The case was heard last week, the decision being reserved. Yesterday in passing upon the case the court found Ford and Wright guilty and fined them $1 and costs each.
