the goods, and with this idea prevailing in their minds, they went to the home of Hemming, forced an entrance, loaded up some of the furniture and hauled it away. When Hemming returned his wife told him what had happened, and going to the central police station he swore out a warrant, charg-ing two of the men, J. L. Taylor and H. Shoenfeldt, with trespass, in this, that they had broken and entered his house without due process of law. The arrest was made and yesterday the case was put on for hearing, the court find-ing against the defendants and fining them each $5 and the costs of prosecution.

Feeding County Prisoners.

The city comptroller is busy checking up the bills of the county for feeding city pris oners for the past three months, which were received Friday. This will take several days, and some time next week the finance committee of the council with the comptroller will meet the county commissioners an to come to an understanding in regard to the long disputed claims. The difference between the figures of the county and those by which the city proposes to settle nearly $2,000, and talk of going into ourts to effect a settlement has been indulged in on each side. There are some in dications of a compromise now, however, and when the commissioners and the committee get together it is possible that an amicable understanding may be reached.
