RESULT OF LAST N GHT'S CONFERENCE

Question Left to the Unions, Who Will Give Instructions to Their Delegates-Matter to He Finilly Settled Two Weeks Hence,

The call for a labor conference, to be held last night in Knights of Labor hall, brought out a large number of delegates, who organized by electing Carl Smith of the Telegraphers union as temporary chairman and Michael Nelson of the Knights of Labor as temporary secretary.

The following named delegates were appointed a committee on credentials; Egan, Hemming, Vogan, Deaner, Huntington, Waybright, McHenry and Schupp. While the credentials committee was out the chairman called upon J. M. Kenney to discuss the issues named in the call. Mr. Kenney strongly advised independent political action. He argued that if the working people of Omaha combine at the poils they could elect governor and congressmen, senators and all other officers, and he could see no reason for the great, plain, working people of Omaha keeping separated on party lines. In these sentiments the crowd seemed to concur, and after Mr. Kenney had concluded Mr. John Quinn was called for and talked a few min-utes, advocating the use of the ballot to right labor's wrongs.

August Beerman of Tailors union No. 92 was the next speaker. Mr. Beerman argued that the working people had been misrepre-sented in the halls of legislation and he could see no way to get good men to repre-sent labor unless labor went to the ballot box, united. D. Clem Deaver was next called for and spoke for some time. He advis d the delegates present to co-operate in a brotherly The interests of all who work were spirit.

Lewis of Typographical union No. 190 responded to a call for a short talk and pleased the audience with some clear illus-trations of present conditions. Mr. Lewis strongly favored the laboring men voting together to settle labor troubles.

William Vanderzee, an old colored gentleman, spoke in favor of modifying the word "scab," as he thought the word harsh and that it had the effect of driving many people from the labor organizations.

traight for the ser en door. As he came in the door the two women stepped briskly to the chairs and stood walting. He took off his hat and was about to hang it on a hook when he saw them.

Then he paused and began to look about "Barber's out, ch?"

Once he was at the screen door he escaped on a run. "And you consider it a proper occupation for women?"" "Certainly I do or I should not have learned the trade. The great majority of our customers are gentlemen, and the few who attempt to be familiar are cheap young men easily 'squelched' by any woman of experi-ence. I never could see that there was any humiliation in shaving and shampooing men for a consideration. Most women who are self-supporting work harder than we do and do not get as much pay. This is a line of work in which women can compete successfully with men and-excuse me.

A man with gray side-whiskers came in the front door and made a profound bow. The head barber received his hat and conducted him to the front chair, into which he fell. She tucked a clean bib under his neck

"It is so," she said. Then she lathered him with as much dex-

RAID ON THE WEALERS' CAMP

Torch Applied to the Temporary Abiding Places of the Industrials.

ARMIES DRIVEN OUT OF ROSSLYNN, VA

Hundreds of Men Now Lined Up on the Aqueduct Bridge Guarded at One End by Bayonets and Afraid to Enter Washington.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 .- The assemblage of Industrials who have been camping at Rosslynn were driven from the soil of Virginia shortly after deylight this morning by the militia of the state. The raid was made without the least resistance from the "armies." The huts which had been creeted from boughs of trees, straw, hay and other materials which could be secured are but remnants of their former appearance. After their occupants had been forced from them the torch was applied, and every vestige that the flames could destroy was burned.

At 8 o'clock this morning the men were lined along the walks of the aqueduct bridge which joins the outskirts of Washington with the state of Virginia, watching their only property go up in sm.ke. They had been forced up in the bridge, but there the authority of the militia ended, and the Industrials knew it. They feared to enter the District of Columbia, as they believed rrests as vagrants awaited them, and there hey are waiting, like Micawber, for something to turn up. Their fears, however, were groundless, for but a single policeman of the Washington end of the bridge, and he had no intention of molesting them, as was evidenced by the fact that several several ooki their chances and entered the city lim-

Many complaints have poured in upon Governor O'Ferrall within the past week or ten days of the growing nulsance at Ross-lynn, for which there appeared to be no remedy but a complete routing of the Com-monwealers by the military.

After mature deliberation and consultation Governor O'Ferrall decided to act. The strictest secrecy was observed, in order to keep the Washington authorities in ignordetailed three companies of the First Vir-ginia regiment at Richmond and the Alexandria Light infantry, under command of Adjutant General Anderson. The militia men were equipped for field service with twenty rounds of ammunition each. The The troops started at midnight and reached Rosslynn at 3 a. m., where they camped, awalt-ing daybreak before the raid should be made. The Industrials were not unaware of the coming of the militia, for shortly before before midnight the word was passed around that they were to be routed from their camp. Soon all became bustle and excitement. Several additional camp fires were lighted and torches were carried from tent to tent. The entire camp seemed to be afoot from the time the scouts were sent among the men. Just at dawn the military appeared and marched to the squeduct bridge. From that point a line of skirm shers were drawn around the entire camp and the Industrials were hemmed in on all sides, their only exit being the aqueduct bridge to Washington. Strict orders were given to allow no man o pass back into Virginia. General Anderson and his officers then went to the leaders of the Industrials and told them in plain but courtesus and kindly language that they must leave the station One hour was allowed for breakfast and gathering up what little effects each might desire to take away. General Anderson said: "Here is our show of force: iow you must go."

Not a murmur or grumble was heard. The men packed up their little belongings and marched from their hurrledly constructed tents up the bank and on to the aqueduct bridge bridge. After the camp had been routed and all the picket line drawn in a company was sent back to the flats upon which the men were encomped, and in a few minutes the flames were destroying everything that had been left behind. is said that there were between 300 and 400 men in camp when the raid oc-curred. Three men were too sick to be forced and were allowed to remain in camp, and General Anderson sent the surgeon of the military to give them medical assistance. They will be removed to a hospital today. General Anderson says he does not know how long the troops will be stationed at the Virginia end of the bridge, but will mmunicate what he has done Governor O'Ferrall and await his further instructions. Soon after coming down to his office Major Moore, the superintendent of police, went to the office of the district commissioners and had a conference with them with a view of devising means of getting the Commonwealers out of the district. It was decided that the police should take charge of the industrials and escort them to some sui'able place, most likely Georgetown, until arrangements can

Over One Million of Members-Their Incomes and Expenditures.

One of the leading features of the Labour Gazette of London for May is a brief summary of the statistics of trade unions for the year 1892, given pending the issue of fuller details in the report of the chief labor correspondent, now in the press. The re-ports of 599 separate unions have been dealt with, 482 of which are registered and 117 not registered, while 105 have branches numbering in all 7,308, making up an aggregate of 1,237,367 members. The total income of all these societies dealt with was about $8,900,000, and the expenditures about $75,-00 less; 298 societies, with a membership of 745,648, paid unemployed benefit to the amount of nearly $2,000,000; 308 societies, with 1,103,641 members, paid in dispute ben-efit $2,300,000; 193 unions, with 585,389 members, paid in sick allowances over $1,000,000, and 88 unions paid as accident benefit to disabled members, $89,000. For the purpose of comparing 1892 with the previous year only 381 unions are available, that being the number supplying returns for both years. The increase of membership in these 381 unions during 1892 was 32,161, or a little over 3 per cent upon the membership of 1891. The total income of the 381 societies showed, however, an increase of 21.8 per cent. There was also a very considerable rise expenditure, amounting, in fact, to nearly 44 per cent upon the outlay of 1891. share of this increase was due to heavy de mands upon the unemployed and dispute benefits, which in 1892 absorbed $1,900,000 more than in 1891. Particulars are also given with regard co-operative farming in England and Scot-land in 1893 and 1892. Forty-seven societies have made returns, showing that a total of 4,692 acres was being farmed in 1893, an increase of 1252 over 1892. The capital em-ployed in 1893 was $450,000, an increase of $29,000 over 1892; and the net loss sustain amounted to $2,190, as compared with $3,410

She Made Advertising Pay. The stories told of the fabulous sums made by writers of advertisements have started lots of novices in the business, especially women, says Printers' Ink. Their maiden efforts are apt to be in the line of verse, and make pretty painful reading for the advertising managers of the more racily advertised articles, who are supposed to be in dire need of that sort of stuff. Usually the results are disappointing to the author, but it has been reserved to a Buffalo paper to discover a case where the reward was prompt and ample.

A woman made the rounds of the large stores only to find that they were well supplied with people to look after that part of their business. At last she found one house which was willing to let her try her hand and she began work. In less than a year she was comfortably off for the rest of her life!

The explanation of this is not that her advertisements were a great success, but that the senior partner fell in love with her and married her! But I am afraid that the circulation of the story will add to rather than detract the craze

Meantime the men will kept under surveillance by the police.

The district authorities are not a little vexed at the summary action of Governor O'Ferrail in forcing the Industrials from Virginia soil.
