DANCED THE NIGHT AWAY Officers of the Brigade and Guests at a Ball at Burlington Beach.

SOCIAL FUNCTION OF THE ENCAMPMENT

Lincoln Light Infantry Acts as Host and Entertains Admirably a Delighted Throng - Incidents that Mark the Daily Drift of Camp Life.

CAMP LINCOLN, Aug. 17 .- (Special to The Bee.)-One of the swellest society events in the history of the capital city was the grand ball given by the Lincoln Light Infantry to the officers and their guests at the pavilion last night. The night was perfect with the delicious coolness of a shower which early in the evening baptized the city, but failed to reach the camp. The steamer City of Lincoln, being still on the ground, a number of backs were engaged and the inband vited guests of the Lincoln boys were transported to the scene of the festivities in comfort. At the pavilion the State band, which had been transformed into a large orchestra, the guard. furnished an excellent program of music for the dances. Souvenir programs, with the national colors on the fly leaf, were distributed by the ushers, and the dance was kept up until long after taps had been sounded in the camp. Nearly all the brigade and regiat Crete. mental officers were in attendance, and the Light Infantry saw to it that the beauty and grace of the city were represented. During the evening there were over 500 couples on the floor. The pavilion where the dance was held is built over the lake, and is reached over a pier about 200 feet in length. It is open on three sides, and a pleasant breeze fanned the dancers. There was a battalion dress parade last night, witnessed by several hundred spec-tators. Both bands were in the field, and after the parade concerts were given by each. The battalion parade, though not as elab-orate as the brigade dress parade, was highly enjoyed by the spectators, and the bands fur-nished their finest music for the occasion.

The sunrise gun as usual awoke the camp this morning, and after breakfast the ceremony of guard mount was gone through mony of guard mount was gold though with greater precision than on either of the previous days. During the forenoon the entire brigade, including the cavalry and the battery, put in a couple of hours of hard drilling, while the buglers in the grove adjoining were practicing the calls, under di-rection of the army bugler, who is here with the Omaha Guards. The evolutions of the the Omaha Guards. The evolutions of the cavairy, as usual, were greatly admired, and the battery, too, came in for its share of the applause of the spectators. Among the events of interest yesterday was the presentation to the Moore Rifles of Norfolk of a handsome stand of colors by State Auditor Moore, whose name the company bears. In making the presentation Mr. Moore made a brief address, which was responded to by the captain of the company.

Great preparations were made this morning for the review of the brigade by the governor this afternoon, at which all the officers wore all the gold braid and plumes officers wore all the gold braid and plumes allowed. Both bands were out in full dress and did their finest work. Last night, after dress parade, Colonel Bratt of the First regiment made a mili-tary pilgrimage to the headquarters of Colonel Bills of the Second, accompanied by the officers of his regiment and the First Regiment band. Colonel and Mrs. Bills re-ceived the group appropriately and the band ceived the group appropriately, and the band serenaded the headquarters, after which Captain Lyons of company H recited "Sheridan's Ride" in a manner which called forth the enthusiastic applause of the listeners. HIS SPEECH SAVED HIM.

There was some chance of a lively racket in the camp last night, but a little speech making and presence of mind on the part of the proprietor of a lunch stand averted all danger of bloodshed. The camp grounds are on the property of the beach company and privileges have been sold at a good figure. The front of the camp is against the fence on the west, and some enterprismentioned. ing lemonade men from the city have taken advantage of the position to put up stands, hich are being patronized by the boys t the injury of the peddlers inside the camp, who paid for the privilege. Last night the celebrated company Q, which gets to all the reunions, instigated by some of the beach people, took it into their heads that it would be a good idea to raze the stands to the ind, and they marched over with the intention of making the melon mart of one merchant a memory. The proprietor of the stand, Thomas Holman, however, had his head with him, and when the ragged looking line made its appearance he mounted platform and informed the company that he was an old soldier and did not propose as an old soldier and the thing but attempt to do anything but a a living. His talk was apmake preclated preclated by the boys, and in-stead of pulling down the stand, they assisted him in locating his establishment where there could be no criticism. youngest member of the brigade i Private William Barker of company H of the Second, of Nelson, who was enlisted just before the encampment. He was without niform and when he applied to the prope authorities this morning he was furnished with a pair of pants which would afford ample room for the biggest man in the regiment and the waistband of which would circle any two men in the brigade. blouse was in keeping with the pants and the little militiaman's hands lacked about six inches of reaching to the end of the sleeves When he appeared in the company head quarters he presented a comical appearance and was greeted with a round of cheers. Then a note was indicted to Colonel Colby asking him to detail a squad to take up the slack in the zuit, and the over-dressed militiaman was ordered to deliver it. When he appeared at the brigade headquarters the note was read by the general and after sizing up the figure the general ordered him to march up and down the line in front of the tent two or three times, after which he announced that, as the bosom of the private's trousers was less than an inch of the ground, he would approve the document. AMONG THE COMPANIES. With the advent of companies E and C from South Omaha the roster of the Second regiment is complete, and it turns out some of the best companies in the encampment. One of the best of them is company H of Nelson, under the command of Captain George Lyon, who is one of the most popular men on the grounds. Company H was or-ganized in 1885 with J. H. Ritterbush as captain. He was succeeded by H. W. Short and after him the present captain was elected. There are fifty members in camp, including a bugler and drummer, and the camp of the company is one of the best cared for in the brigade. Captain Lyon is inch a military man, having spent his life in the naval academy at Annapolis. He is also a graduate of Harvard university of the year 1881 and has taken courses at several other educational institutions, and his attraction as to 0110 of the most agreeable gentlemen on the grounds the abilities of an elocutionist. He and was soon promoted to be quartermaster sergeant. His straps as second and first lieutenant were rapidly gained, and then he was made an aide-de-camp on General Colby's staff. He served during the Indian war and received honorable mention in the report of General Colby to the general government. He has twice received the maximum mark of 100 in the examinations of the military board and is considered one of the best drilled men in the brigade. His company is composed of a fine body of men, whose principal ambition at the present time is to make a record as a portion of the Nebraska National Guard. There is a splendid body of men in th Geneva company, which is designated as G of the First. It was organized and served as an independent company for two years before being mustered into the state service, which was in April, 1882. George P. Wintersteen was the first captain, and he was succeeded by the present captain. There are forty-two men in the camp, including the commissioned officers. The company owns its own mess tent and is one of the really popular com-panies of the regiment. It was one of the first companies ordered out in the Indian war, and served through the entire campalgn.

was in progress, and the visitors had their first view of the guards in action. They were dusty and tired, but lost no time in BAD getting their quarters in order for the night There were forty-nine men in line and they look like soldiers. The company is the pride of the town which sends it out, and among the members are seven attorneys, two bookkeepers, twelve merchants and the county judge, the average age being 25 years. Judge, the average age being 25 years. Company I of Bennett was organized in 1880 and has now thirty-eight men in camp. The first captain was L. P. Derby, who was afterwards major. He was succeeded by Colonel Bratt, now in command of the First regiment, after whom came George R. Wilson, and then the present officer, John C. Ell. The company was called out to the dump trouble in Omaha and afterwards dump trouble in Omsha and afterwards served at Pine Ridge in 1891. BUGLE CALLS.

Bank of Shubert Revived. LINCOLN, Aug. 17 .- (Special to The Bee.)

-The incident of the absconding of the cashier of the Farmers State bank of Shubert, Richardson county, a year ago July was again brought to notice by the filing of a petition in the supreme court today. It is alleged by the receiver of the bank that George Argabright, the cashier, absconded with $21,000 belonging to the bank and that he purchased some property and erected a house with part of the money, in which his wife is now living. The wife admits in her answer that her husband abandoned her, but claims the house and property under the homestead law and says that she would be left penniless if this was taken away from her. The lower court decreed that Arga-bright had used the stolen money in furnishing the house and sustains the plaintiffs. Ach Smith, who was sentenced to five years for shooting at Reese Robinson with intent to kill in Omaha last November, has appealed to the supreme court. A requisition for the return of W. O. Parker, who is under arrest at Ottumwa, Ia.

and wanted in Thayer for forgery, was to day granted by the governor. Extradition warrants for John Gordan, under arrest in Omaha, wanted for burglary in Illinois, and Frank Stone, wanted in Kansas for criminal assault, and under arrest in Nemaha county, were also granted. A fire alarm took the department to burning barn at Twenty-seventh and R streets this morning, which had been set on fire by some malicious boys. During the run one of the horses attached to the truck fell and was dragged about eighty feet, but was not fatally injured, as was at first supposed

FREMONT, Aug. 17 .- (Special to The Bee.) -Three more bicycles were stolen from the streets yesterday, making an even half dozen in all. The incident of a man hauling lumber to an empty house yesterday led to the recovery of all the stolen wheels. The man who paid for the lumber was afterwards seen making a box, and last evening several local wheelmen went to the house, and looking in the window could see a bicycle, but no box. Officers entered the house and identified the wheel as one of the stolen ones. It was afterwards learned from a drayman that he had taken a large box to another empty

TESTIMONY ON THE ROCK ISLAND WRECK Evidence Showing that the Negro Told Many Stories About How He Came to Be at the Scene of the Disaster

-An Inartistic Liar.

LINCOLN, Aug. 17 .- (Special Telegram to The Bee.)-At this morning's session of the Rock Island inquest, Jay B. McDowell was first sworn. He was one of the passengers on the train. He thought the train was going very fast for that stretch of the road, possibly forty-five miles an hour. In going to the penitentiary with Colonel Bills, they met a tramp. He could not tell whether he was white or black. "ary told him of the wreck, and he took of his coat and ran in

F. J. Cheney testified that he sold Davis shirt the morning after the wreck. Davis told him he had about spoiled the one he had SELLING on at the wreck the night before. Davia told him the same story about getting on at OUT Rokeby, and thought it would look suspicious for the man who found the fish plates. He then said that he came in from the wreck

William Weems told of having ridden in with Davis in a hack from the wreck and a conversation he had with him. He rehearsed a few of Davis' choice lies about iosing his coat with $200 in it in the wreck, and that the lantern was procured at Kearney, where he got on the train. When told he could not get on the train at Kearney, he said it was some other small station.

County Treasurer Maxey Cobb said that Davis had worked for him about eight months, quitting last March. He was seen skulking behind his woodshed by his wife the Saturday evening before the wreck occurred. When she called to him he ran away. Davis, he said, had all the superstitions common to colored people in that he always carried a rabbit's foot and bal-anced an egg on Thursday, which he re-garded as his lucky day. Many colored people believed that Davis was innocent, as he would not be able to sleep had he been at the wreck and heard the cries of all those burning alive. Mr. Cobb further stated that he walked with a shambling gait, which peculiarlity the Ryan boys had noticed about the negro with a crowbar and gunny sack they had met on the track. Ira Shortridge, a bridge carpenter, testified that he was employed in repairing the broken bridge the day after the wreck and had found a blue coat about thirty feet from the west end of the bridge. It contained a fancy photograph, a South Omaha stock ards account book and a meerschaum pipe, was a blue coat, matching the suit worn yards acc by Davis. He identified the coat when produced. B. F. Merrill testified to having the coat and other articles entrusted to him for safekeeping. Undertaker Roberts said that the coat was delivered to him by Merrill and had been kept under lock and key since. W. H. Dorgan testified that Davis had served a four years' sentence, less the time for good behavior, at the state penitentiary. He liberated June 4, 1892. He was sentenced from Douglas county for burglary. The records show that he has a mother living in Washington, D. C. Most of the afternoon was wasted in waiting for witnesses who for some unknown reason did not put in an appearance. After a few more witnesses had been examined the case was given to the jury at 4:30, which returned at 5:30 with a sealed The finding of the jury is said to be that the wreck was caused by wreckers, and recommending that George Washington Davis, the colored man now in custody, be held for investigation, as circumstances seem to implicate him.
