CITY COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Mr. Pardee Will Appeal to Supreme Court in Electric Light Matter.

WANTS THE CONTRACT ON HIS BID

What He Says in His Letter Which Majority Bataned to Baye Read Charter Amendment Committee Will Meet-Sixteenth Street Vladuct Planking.

A communication from E. T. Pardee notified the city council last night that he should apply to the supreme court for a writ of mandamus to compel the council to act on his bond for $25,000, which was presented in connection with his electric light bid some time ago. On motion of Wheeler this was referred to the judiciary committee. Elsasser sald that he had asked Mr. Pardee why he had not bid the last time, and in reply had received a letter, which he wanted to read. This idea was vigorously combated by the combine, and it was subsequently referred to the committee on gas and electric lights. The letter, which the combine took so much trouble to bury, is as follows:

trouble to bury, is as follows:

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 1, 1894.—Hon. Peter E. Ebsasser: Dear Sir—Replying to your inquiry as to whether I am now ready to accept a contract in accordance with the terms of my bid and furnish electric lights for the city of Omaha at $112 a lamp, I will state that I am not only willing to accept a contract at the figure named, but am fighting for it, and will continue the fight until the contract is awarded me, or until the court of last resort announces that the city council cannot be compelled to approve my bond and award the circumstract after having regularly a respect my bid.

I have confidence in the justice and legality of my claim, and will a-k the k-grome court in the early part of October to compel the city council to give me the con-

My bond has been held to be sufficient by

My bond has been held to be sufficient by the district court and my surety is admittedly worth far more than double the amount of my bond.

You ask why I did not bid in response to the last advertisement. I reply that my best and only bid was at that time before the city council and accepted by it as the lowest bid submitted. It is also sis a light lower than any bid now before the council, and even omitting the question of my vested rights, I cannot understand why the council should persist in the attempt to give the contract to the New Omaha Thomson-Houston Electric Light company at a much higher figure.

A communication from the Board of Pire and Police Commissioners presenting the request of Chief Seavey for an appropriation for the purpose of securing evidence against gamblers was referred to the committee or

QUARREL OVER COAL.

A protest from C. B. Havens & Co. against be action of the council at the previous meeting in awarding the contract for steam coal to D. T. Mount at a price 10 cents higher than the bid submitted by the petitioner precipitated a lively discussion. The bid of Mr. Mount referred to the Wear coal, while that of Havens & Co. was on the Cherokee brand. The bid was awarded to Mr. Mount on the ground that his coal was enough better to more than make amends for the difference in price. Howell explained that the two kinds of coal came from the same mine and the previous action was reconsidered and both bids and the protest were referred for investigation.

A resolution by Back to appropriate $1,000 to repair the Tenth street viaduct was re-ferred to the committee on viaducts and railways, with the city engineer and city at-torney, to report next Tuesday night.

As chairman of the judicial committee, Hascall reported favorably on his ordinance providing for the submission of a proposi-tion to vote $100,000 in bonds to construct subways under the principal streets. The report was adopted. CHARTER AMENDMENT COMMITTEE. By resolution of Howell the city clerk was instructed to notify all members of the charter amendment committee that a meeting of the committee would be held in the council chamber Wednesday evening, September 12. This is the joint committee which was ap-pointed some time ago to consider the question of consolidating the governments of Omaha, South Omaha and Douglas county. Mayor Bemis transmitted his veto of resolution ordering the extension of the culvert across Leavenworth street at Forty eighth street "as far as $3,000 will edmit, that amount having been set aside for said work." His reasons were that the cost was indefinite, that the city should not build an expensive sewer across private property, that steps had not been taken to condemn land for a street along the line of the sewer, and that the money proposed for the sewer could be much more profitably expended else-

In this connection City Engineer Rose-water stated that all the work contemplated by the original resolution had been already accomplished, and that any further extension of the culvert would only benefit one or two private property owners. The veto was sustained.

The communication from the Board of Public Works relative to the necessity of replanking the Sixteenth street viaduct was referred to the committee on viaducts and railroads. On its recommendation, the board was directed to have the viaduct re-planked under the direction of the city engi-

OBJECT TO SELLING POOLS

Fair Maragement Meets with an Unexpacted and Serious Obstruction.

POLICE BOARD AND THE FALL RACES

Chief Seavey Stops Pool Selling and the Commissioners Refuse to Reseind His Order-Report on Gambling Going On in the City.

The members of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners held a meeting at noon yesterday and the question of pool seiling on the horse races at the fair grounds came up for discussion.

Some days ago the chief of police instructed his men to stop any attempt that might be made to sell pools on the races. Monday when the races were to be pulled off, the pool sellers started in to allow parties on the favorites, but they were quickly stopped by the police, who claimed they were acting in accordance with the terms of the instructions issued by the chief. Yesterday James Walsh of

Douglas County Fair association and D. T. Mount of the Nebraska Breeders' association appeared before the board and protested against the carrying out of the Seavey order, claiming that it would have the effect of destroying the interest manifested in the fair and races If it was stopped, the present races would be the last ones held in Omaha, as owners and breeders of fast horses would seek some other location in the future. Aside from that fact, both Mr. Waish and Mr. Mount said that the fair was just getting upon its fect, and this movement was in tended to cripple it forever. The privileges to sell pools had been disposed of by the association for $500, which amount would have to be returned, if the order of the chief was allowed to continue in force.

EXPRESSION FROM MEMBERS. Commissioner Coburn insisted that there was nothing in the statutes of the state to prevent the selling of pools at races, especially where the selling took place on the grounds where the races were being run. A bill looking to this end, he said, was introduced at the last session of the legisla ture, but it was killed before ever becoming Commissioner Hartman took the ground that the pool selling was one of the incentives that brought horsemen to the races, and without it the fair could not be a avecess. He also was aware of the fact that one year ago pools were sold on the grounds, and at that time the chief of police issued no orders to the contrary. There had be no session of the legislature within the past year, and there had been no amendment to the law, consequently he was at a loss to know upon just what authority the chief was acting, as the board had never issued any instructions with reference to the suppression of sedling pools.

Commissioner Strickler declared that the board was powerless to take any action in the premises. If the board would suspend the chief's order, he thought that every man would be subjected to charges of impeach ment. There had been a resolution adopted suppressing gambling, and pool selling, he thought, came under the head of gambling On the subject of gambling he said that he was clear, and in support of the position quoted the action taken by the man who presides on the bench of the criminal section of the district court. LEAT IT WITH SEAVEY. The members decided that they could do nothing, after which Mr. Waish said that he knew where he could go to secure relief. He would not ask that the order of Chief Seavey be set aside, as he did not want the members of the board to take any chances on being impeached.

Chief Scavey wrote to the board that at this time there was more gambling in the city than at any time during the past two years, and that none of the games were being conducted openly. He said that all kinds of games of chance were being played. If an attempt was made to pull the houses, the operators were tipped off, so that when the police arrived there was nothing to be taken. Whenever a raid was made, the officers would find nothing but a few harmless fixtures and some men sitting around playing Sergeant Whalen wrote from Salt Lake that he was settil on the sick list, but that he was getting better. His leave of absence was extended two weeks.

The trial of Officer Gustaveson, charged with going to sleep while on duty, was continued until the next meeting.

The jatlor reported 2,122 meals furnished at the city jail during the month of August, at a cost of $190.98.

TRULY THE GREATEST SHOW. Some of the Wonders of the Barnum &

Bailey Circus. The Barnum & Bailey shows have made a return in many respects this season to old fashioned circus acts, but with such amplification and improvements as are needed to fit them to the use of the greatest show on earth. Thus there is tumbling and leap-ing by a big aggregation of circus talent, and there are also talking and singing clowns, this feature being represented by "Billy" Burke and "Pete" Conklin, two oldtime favorites. Things are kept merry for the children by seventeen other pantomimic and aerobatic clowns. This season there are also a number of sensational novelties in the show. The Ethnological congress, or m the snew. The Ethnological congress, or Midway Plaisance, in which a greater number of different races and tribes are exhibited than were seen in Chicago last summer, is one of these. The animal circus, in which many different kinds of animals are made to perform in a barred area, even lions and lambs taking part together is another sensational feature. another sensational feature. Chiko and Johanna, the only two giant gor-illas ever exhibited together, attract deep interest from both the scientific and curious. The three Eugenes do one of the most darng aerial acts ever seen, this being their first tour in this country and their first sea-son under a circus canvas. There are six-teen bareback riders, among them grace-ful, pretty and daring Rose Meers, and the great trio, William Showles Frank Melvillo and William Demott. The show will visit Omaha next Monday, September 10.

Opening of School.

The opening of the city schools yesterday was attended by no noteworthy incidents. The office of Superintendent Fitzpatrick was crowded with teachers who had not yet been assigned and their disposal occupied the forenoon. All the schools in the city were running in the regular order at 9:30 o'clock and the work has been so well systematized and the work has been so well systematized that the exercises were scarcely different from any other day.

It was thought by some members that it was not good policy to open the schools this week, as Monday was a holiday and the fair would have a material effect on the attendance during the first two or three days. The reports from the principals as far as they were received yesterday showed about the expected attendance, but it is not expected that the full enrollment will be reached for a couple of days.

full of misery for the once happy bride. She avers that her husband has not only neglected to provide for her proper maintenance, but has also abused and maltreated her and has completed the measure of her wrongs by viciniting his marital vows, being sided and abetted thereby by Mary

POMPEH FROM BEHIND.

Entertaining Views of the Preparations

Made for the Gala Day. Last night was Military night at the "Last Days of Pempeli," and per consequence the sons of Mars were represented throughout the audience in large numbers. The departmental commander, General Brooke, was the hero whose picture was depicted in lines of fire, while the Thurston Rifles and the Omaha Guards gave exhibition drills on the stage across the lagoon, where the scenes leading up to the destruction of Vesuvius are enacted.

In consideration of the military several of the managers of the enterprise, which has more than fulfilled the expectations of its more than fulfilled the expectations of its promoters, airanged to appear in the scenes of Pempeians life clad in the rebes of Riman senators. Among those who threw off the nineteenth century dress to don the flowing garments of the followers of the Caesars were John Dougherty, J. J. Philbin, Manager Raymond and a Bee reporter. They managed to look as Romanesque as possible with the additional bein of the stage. possible with the additional help of the stage carpenter, who braced up their ebbing spirits, the property man and the costumer, and never were four Roman senators so fearfully nd wonderfully made up.

Have you ever been behind the scenes during a great spectacle like the "Last Days of Pompell?" If you want to experience a sensation which you will remember as long as you live go out to Pompeii before its close and ask the captain of the supers to give you a chance to appear as one opulace or a follower in the train of Glaucus. You have probably seen the show from "i front," but "from behind" there is as great a difference as between day and night. You may have thought you knew something about contrasts-perhaps you have experienced a few in the ups and downs of a checkered career, but you never imagined so great a transformation or so sharp contrast as will be revealed to your aston ished gaze by the first glimpse of the nether side of a show like the "Last Days of

From out the semi-darkness, for there is not much light in the rear of the oil cloth Vesuvius, stre ched upon gigantle frames, there came strange sounds, anything but like one would expect to hear coming from a Roman crowd. Lines upon lines of box-like compartments meet your gaze, not unlike the bathing booths along the Atlantic coast. And then all of a sudden you will see pairs of legs clad in Roman hose below the doors of these compartments, while helmeted heads will rise above the door, distorted, confused by the lights from within.

Then there is a rush for the open, the quadrangle, so to speak, of this enclosure, the girls are made up, the men in all the panoply of the days of Pliny, of Marc Anthony, of Brutus and of the Caesars. An endless Brutus and of the Caesars. An endless and continual chatter ensues and the "new super," as The Bee man was, and his associates soon found themselves in the midst of as unconventional a lot of girls as you would wish to find anywhere. They were up to all sorts of tracks, they up to all sorts of tricks; they stood around in fleshings, discussed the appearance of the visitors and dress with the utmost frankness, wondered where the "dude" came from meaning John Philbin, inquired of John Dougherty if he was anybody's "Jahnny," and wanted to know of The Bee man if his mamma knew he was out, and only the presence of Stage Manager Craven prevented the Roman mob from mobbing the interlopers. But they didn't mean any harm. The new comers into the sacred precincts afforded temperary entertainment for the ballet, a relief from "dis everlasting Pompey business which makes me tired," as one fair Amazon remarked.

Should you ever go behind the scenes where a big spectacle is on the boards, with two hundred and odd people to be disciplined y u will have a greater respect for theatri-cal managers, a sympathy for their trials and tribulations and a better knowledge of what Horace Greeley used to call the "cus-sedness" of those dainty and delicate fairles in tights, who have so often captured your affections, than you ever had before. But the funniest part of this visit behind was in the antics of John Dougherty when he discovered some had "swiped" his coat and hat and he was compelled to go home in the garb of a citizen of the Roman monarchy, A. D. 79. Thursday night the "Elks" will play their part in the series of commemorative occasions, and the fire works will be emblematic of the order.

The clerk was directed to advertise for bids for the erection of a bridge in the same locality and the usual number of bills and estimates were approved. Fire was discovered in the basement of Michaels' grocery store at Sixteenth and California streets shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday morning. The cellar was filled with boxes and rubbish, and the origin of the fire is upknown. Michaels' family lives over the store, and as the dense smoke had filled the building before the discovery of the fire some one fired three shots from a revolver to awaken the inmates of the house and the policement on that best. There was a great deal of excitement, as the shots were immediately followed by screams of the children. The damage to the stock and building was nominal.
