Dr. Eastman, the educated Sloux Indian, who has been sent out by the international committee of the Young Men's Christian association to supervise and encourage the work among the Indians, spoke last night at the Young Men's Christian association hall upon the success and growth of the association among his brethren. Dr. Eastman is a member of the class of '87 of Dartmouth college, and is also a graduate of the Boston Medical college. His home is in St. Paul, but during the last three months he has been traveling through the western agencies, reviewing the work that has already been done. He is a calm, even speaker, with the grave manner usual with Indians, but in his case this is softened considerably by

Mr. Charles K. Ober, one of the traveling necretaries of the international committee and a brother of Secretary Ober of the Omaha association, prefaced Dr. Eastman's talk with a few remarks regarding the object and the extent of associations. He said branches existed in the cities, the colleges and among failroad men; among the colored men of the Among different nationalities. These facts Illustrated clearly that the association fur hished mutual helps, self help and means o helping others to young men of all kinds. He also stated how he was instrumental in organizing the first association among th Indians at the Carlisle school in 1885, and ow the movement has spread since then.

After the close of his remarks Mr. Ober in troduced Dr. Eastman, who spoke substantially as follows:
"There are at present among the Indians

thirty-five associations. Three of these are at schools outside the reservations, two in Canada and the rest on the reservations most of these being in the two Dakotas and Nebraska, and one or two in Montana. Most of them average twenty-five members. The largest one is that at Cherry Creek, Cheyenne River agency, S. D., which contains about 100 young men. It is surprising how the idea sprung up where the conditions were so unfavorable. There are no prospects of improvement on the reservations under the present system of governing, but ample scop-for retrogression. The indians are not alsupport themselves, as food is They have no Hence, they are given every advantage for yet the association sprung up on faith. must have been faith that urged them to ride fifteen or twenty miles on a pony's back in winter or summer, wet or dry, to attend a simple evening prayer meeting. without organ or solo.

They cannot resist the new temptations, and they must be furnished with something to counteract this. Education and schools alone These are now detriments but put Christianity at the base of educa on and then it will succeed.
"Yet, although the idea arose from their

Labor day was celebrated by the Bedford Place Presbyterians by giving to the Sabbath school a very enjoyable picule at Hanscom park.

At 10:30 in the foreneon upward of sixtymembers of the school assembled at the little church on Laik street and marched double file to Twenty-fourth and Bristel, where they met the car. The day was matchless, and old and young seemed bent upon having a good time. The dinner and games were heartily enjoyed by all the phildren and young people. Just before returning the friends were highly entertained by short speeches by Dr. S. T. Davis and Messrs. Carter, Gardner, Jones and Ferrin. A little song by the primary department was much appreciated by all, and or two familiar hymns the tired but happy crowd boarded the cars for home, each on singing the praises of Bedford Place picnics

Salvation Army Changes. The headquarters of the western division of the Salvation army, the division including nearly all the western states and territories, will be transferred from this city to St. Louis in about two weeks. Brigadier General George French, commander of the division, has been in St. Louis for the past week negotiating for suitable quarters for his office staff. This latter consists of his secretary, Ensign Glosey, and two assistants. Beyond this, no other change is to be made, the garrison remaining here. Be-sides being commander of the division, Brigadier General French was at the head of this district, which includes Nebraska and Dakota. An appointment will be made to this office on the removal of the headquar-

Therefore Brigadier General French considered it his duty to remove. As it is, the greater portion of his time during the past years has been spent there. He makes the change with regret, as Omaha is the more central and conenient point for the headquarters.

AND HIS END WAS PEACE

Exiled from His Native Land the Comte de Paris Passes Away.

WAS THE HEAD OF THE FRENCH BOURBONS

After Bovering at Death's Door for Many Days He Finally Succumbs to Cancer of the Stomach-Autopsy

LONDON, Sept. 8 .- The comte de Paris is to Be Held.

The comte died at Stowe house, his London esidence, at 8.40 o'clock this morning. The disease from which he suffered was given out by the physicians as cancer of the stomach but it will probably require an autopsy to determine the exact cause of his death.

The death scene was one of quiet and peace on the part of the comte and of profound emotion to the circle of relatives about his bedside. During the night the comte several times appeared to have passed away, so feeble was his pulse and so deadly his pallor. Dr. Recomier had the most extreme difficulty frequently in feeling the light beats of the heart and the weakness of the distinguished sufferer during his last hours of sickness was so great that he was urable to speak, although he succeeded in making it apparent that he desired to utter a few more words of far well to those around him. The touching scenes which were witnessed at Stowe house on Thursday night when the dying man was not expected to live until Friday morning, were repeated this morning. The family and the old servants were all in attendance and to each one the head of the royal house of France feebly said a few additional kind words of farewell, after which the family knelt at his bedside and offered up heartf. It prayers for the dying. He rarely, however, referred to his approaching death, always trying to soothe the sorrow of those around him. Now and then a deep sigh would escape from the sufferer, and he would mutter the phrase he repeated during the past week, "C'est blen long," equival nt to saying he was very weary of waiting for death and that his dread majesty was very slow in oming to his relief.

This phrase was characteristic of the last illness of the comte de Paris. Death had mark d him beyond hope for many days past, but the sick man lingered on, hour past, but the sick man lingered on, hour after hour, day after day, the light of life flickering fainter every moment until at last it gently went out, so gently indeed that some time clapsed before the fatal verdict was rendered by the attending physician. Early in the night his mind seemed to be perfectly clear and he had no trouble in recognizing all present to when. trouble in recognizing all present to whom he was ever suggesting in new forms his words uttered when the family gathered at his bedside for the last time, it was then believed, on Thursday evening last. On that evening, which will remain ever memorable to the family of the dead man, he fre quently and earnestly enjoined them to lov each other tenderly, reminding them that united families are always happy families. The utterances of the dying man were s oving, gentle and touching that it was no wonder that they brought forth heart-breaking sobs from all who heard them.

The death scene was most touching. The comtesse de Paris closed her husband's eyes, and all the princes and princesses and in the order of rank stepped forward > . kissed the hand of the dead man PUBLISHED TO THE WORLD.

After the death of the comte a notice was costed upon the gates of Stowe house as collows: "The comte de Paris gradually sank during last evening and night. He suffered no pain and quietly passed away in the presence of his family, and the princes and princesses at 8:40 this morn The remains of the Comte de Paris will b buried at Weybridge, Surrey; the date of in-terment is not yet definitely decided upon. The last sacrament was administered to the Comte de Paris by Monseigneur Abulst, rector of the Catholic institution at Paris whose mother was one of the ladies in waiting upon the wife of Louis Philipps.

A very large number of messages were dispatched from Stowe house today after the death of Comte de Paris to distant relatives and friends. Yesterday a telegraphi-message was received from a number of French royalists who met and prayed for the dying man in the old cathedral of Laval, capital of the department of Mayenne, saying: 'Present to Mgr. Duc d' Orieans and Mme. La Comtesse de Paris our respectful homage.

words of this message, putting the name of the Duc d' Orleans, eldest son of the Comte de Paris first, shows, it is claimed, that the royalists of France already regard the Duc d' Orleans as king of France

There are, however, two other pretenders to the throne of France, Don Carlos, duke of Madrid, and General de Bourbon, who styles himself Duc d' Anjou, and who claims the throne. Their pretensions, it may b added, are ridiculed by the press and public even among the royalists of France.

The bells of Datford church and all those f Buckingham parish, in which Stowe house situated, were tolled all the morning. It was first expected that the remains of the late head of the house of Orleans would be interred in the mansion of the Orleans family built by Louis Philippe, in the chapel attached to the ancient castle of Dreux wenty miles from Chartres, in the depart ment of Eure et Loire, France, But per mission had first to be obtained from the French government, and it is understood that the matter was discussed at a meeting f the French cabinet today. In any already stated, the remains will be buried at Weybridge, Surrey.

The body of the comte de Paris repos on the bed on which he died. The tri-colored flag, over the triumphal arch at the entrance of the park at Stowe house was half-masted shortly after the comte's death

A special train will convey the remain o Weybridge on Wednesday or Thursday. At Weybridge there is a Roman Catholic church in which the bodies of Louis Philippe and his wife were placed before being trans ferred to Dreux. It is now believed that th body of the comte will by permission of th French government be eventually trans-ported to Dreux.

At Weybridge the remains of the comtesse de Nemours, wife of the Duc Nemours, uncle of the comie de Paris, aer buried. The ntese de Paris is overcome with grief

Sprung from a royal line of ancestors, whose flats once bespoke open sesame to the servile favors of three nations, he has led a life that in many ways carried out the proph ecies of his knightly lineage and yet failed the paramount realization of his heredity The comte de Paris is descended from Philip duke of Orleans, the only brother of Louis XIV, and also, of course, from Philippe Egalite, whose head rolled under the guillotine in 1793. The comte's visit to America caused con expressed by a friend at the time, "He ban-ished politics on his arrival and became a loyal citizen and lover of the republic. He was simply an officer of the union army

There are doubts in France as to the roya

Baraum & Bailey Show. For the second time in two years the publie will be treated to an absolutely new free street circus and spectacular procession. With the usual disregard of expense, and with the energy that has characterized every effort of Barnum & Bailey, they have designed another entirely now street parade for the pleasure of the people, and when it is stated that it is freely offered upon the same generous scale as the performances within the tents, one can easily imagine its magnificent splenders. All the crowned heads of the world—the reigning sovereigns-in coaches of state, in royal robus, on horseback surrounded with their ex-certs, the military uniforms of all nations, in groups and in picturesque oriental style, are represented in the most truthful and correct manner, together with a magnificent display of open dens of wild beasts and carved golden chariots, containing the splendid zoological collection, followed by the allegorial charlets, illustrating nursery rhymes and children's fairy stories. As th bills on the fences say, "It is worth coming miles to see, and once seen never forgotten. The parade will take place about 9 o'cle in the morning on Monday, September 10.

Essolutions Adopted by the Irrigation Cougress in Session at Denver.

FIRST REPEAL THE DESERT LAND LAW

National Commission Desired to investigate the Question and Also to Adjudicate Claims for the Water of Inter-State Streams.

DENVER, Sept. 8 .- At today's session of he irrigation congress Eldwood Mead of Wyoming, president of the congress, spoke in favor of the majority report, which advocates the reclamation of arid lands under government control.

William Hall of California, advocating the min rity report, argued that with the slow policy of the government in prosecuting pubic work and the necessary preliminaries to be gone through, the present generation would be dead and forgotten before the canals would be completed. He was apposed to the federal government having anything to say in regard to the reclamation of arid lands exept to control and distribute the waters of nterstate and international streams.

The time allowed for the discussion of resolutions having expired, the minority was voted down. The majority report was then taken up section by section

That portion of the majority report of th committee on resolutions to the irrigation congress pertaining to national legislation which is under discussion is as follows The national legislative committee of th

The national legislative committee of the irrigation congress is hereby instructed to prepare a series of bills for presentation to the congress of the United States embodying the following propositions:

1. Repeal the desert land law.

2. Withdrawal from settlement of all lands within the arid region not found to be capable of irrigation, all such lands except mineral lands to be held for cuchment areas, pasturage and timber.

3. Leasing pasturage lands, giving preference to actual occupants and cultivators of ment areas, pasturage and timber.

3. Leasing pasturage lands, giving proference to actual occupants and cultivators of adjoining irragible lands, and the sale of surplus timber, 'he proceeds arising from such sources to be devoted to the development of water supply for irrigation, within the state, and when no longer required for such purposes, to belong to the state.

4. That states be permitted to select lands for reclamation and make them the basis of security for the construction of irrigation works, title to such lands to remain in the federal government until it passes through the state to the actual settler, no one individual being permitted to acquire title to more than forty seres of land, except in case of lands so that local conditions necessitate the enlargement of the home unit because of the small value of the crops produced. The money received from such sources to be reserved for the purpose of discharging obligations incurred in the work of reclaiming public lands. This recommendation is independent of the Carey law, and is not intended to conflict with or medify the provisions of that law.

5. That when any state shall have reclaimed land under the plan provided in section 5, it shall form irrigation divisions, and when a sufficient number of settlers have actually located upon the land within such divisions, the state shall conditionally turn over the local administration to the authorities of said water division.

6. That before any state can avail itself divisions, the state shall conditionally turn over the local administration to the authorities of said water division.

6. That before any state can avail itself of the provisions it shall have a legally constituted state irrigation commission, vested with the administration of government, pastoral and forest lands, of such irrigation works as may be undertaken under federal authority, and be empowered to consider and authorize general plans of reclamation submitted by the irrigation department of any state. The national irrigation commission shall also be charged with the work of making an immediate investigation of the problem of interstate streams, and report to the congress of the United States as early as possible a measure providing for the speedy and final adjudication of questions between states, and a plan for the division of streams on a basis of justice and equity.

7. That the several territories be included in the provisions of the Carey law.

8. That an international commission be constituted, composed of the representatives of the United States, Canada and Mexico, whose purpose it shall be to thoroughly examine into and arbitrate questions arising between said nations because of the waters of rivers partly in each of

ns arising between said nations becau of the waters of rivers partiy in each of the two countries, or serving as a boundary between two, and to settle upon a basis and method for the equitable division of the waters of such streams when used for irrigation

9. That sufficient appropriations be secured for carrying on the work of gauging streams, selecting and segregating reservoir sites, and for prosecuting surveys to determine the locating of lands susceptible of reclamation. of reclamation, and such other work in the line of investigation and experiment as may be legitimately undertaken, and such appropriations to be expended under the direction of the national irrigation commission.

10. That reservoir sites, heretofore reserved by the government, which may become necessary for the use of states under the operations of the Carey law shall be released and made available upon application therefor by states or territories.

The minority report favors the cession of arid lands to the state within whose territory its lies, and provides for conditions or which such cession shall be made. The resolutions were amended and changed to read as follows and unanimously adopted: AMENDED RESOLUTIONS.

The national executive committee of the

The national executive committee of the irrigation congress is hereby instructed to prepare a series of bills for presentation to the congress of the United States, embodying the following propositions:

First, Repeal of the desert land law.

Second, Whereas, the public land states are already vested with power, under the Carey law, to undertake the reclamation and settlement of 1,000,000 acres each, and

Whereas, There is wide diversity of opinion concerning the best policy to pursue with relation to the remaining irrigable lands, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the proposition contained in sections 4 and 5 of the report of the majority of the committee on resolutions is reported back to the several state irrigation commissions, with instructions to endeavor to report to the fourth national irrigation congress a more definite and satisfactors vivin for the reclamation of selections of and deavor to report to the fourth national irrigation congress a more definite and satisfactory plan for the reclamation of arid public lands through the co-operation of national and state authorities.

Third, That there shall be appointed a national irrigation commission, vested with the supervision of such irrigation works as may be constructed by the federal government. The national irrigation commission shall also be charged with the work of making an immediate investigation of the problem of interstate streams and report to the congress of the United States, as early as possible, a measure providing a means for the speedy and final adjudication of questions between states and a plan for the division of streams on a basis of justice and equity.

Fourth, That the several territories be included in the provisions of the Carey law and any other laws asked for to be provided for in these resolutions.

Fifth, That a sufficient appropriation be secured from the general government for carrying on the work of discovering waters applicable to the reclamation of the arid lands and for the prosecution of surveys necessary to determine the location of lands susceptible of irrigation and the selection and segregation of reservoir sites.

Sixth, That reservoir sites heretofore reserved by the government shall be released and made available upon application therefor by states and territories.
