BICYCLE AS A WAR HORSE

Its Utility Shown By Lieutenant Donovan's Trip from Cheyenne to Omaha.

GOT IN LA.T NIGHT WITH A GOED RECORD

Carried a Soldier's Accoutrements and Made the Distance in Five and a Half Days-Army Officials Deeply Interested-A Practical Test.

Lieutenent J. L. Dontvan, Seventeenth infantry, from Fort Russell, arrived in Omaha last evening and is quartered at the Mercer hotel. He traveled the whole distance on t bicycle, covering the 530 miles in five and one-half days, and put in four days in actual riding. On his arrival he reported to General Brooke, and after supper he related his experience to a group of army officers and reporters.

Lieutenant Donovan was ordered to report at Fort Omaha for the rifls competition which soon commences, and as he is an enthusiastic wheelman he wrote to General Brooke and secured permission to make the journey from Fort Russell to Omaha on his wheel. There has been a great deal of discussion in army circles as to the advisability of equipping soldiers with bloycles for putting them into field and other service. General Nelson A. Miles rides a wheel and is a warm advocate of its use in army service There are other supporters of the whee and army officers regard its adoption as only a matter of a shirt time when infantry will be provided with the silent steeds, thus in a measure revolutionizing field tactics.

The progress of the carrying of the mes-sage from President Cleveland to Governor Waits in Colorado was watched with a good deal of interest by Uncle Sam's defenders, but this did not give them a practical demonstration of the usefulness of the bicy-cle, as the relay riders were all experienced riders, carrying the lightest possible weight The relay race suggested the idea to Lieu-tenant Donovan to make the trip from Fort Russell to Omaha, and he proceeded to put

The lieutenant is a tall young man, who sesses a great deal of determination, and, after securing permission to make the attempt, he provided himself with a Victor forty-three-pound bicycle, upon which he strapped the same accoutrements as a private carries when marching. These weighed sixty-five pounds and consisted of a rifle and forty pounds of ammunition, an entrenching tool, a revolver and twenty rounds of ammunition, a shelter tent and poles, overcost, bag and blanket, a tollet bag, underelothing and an extra pair of shees and a quart canteen filled with water, besides three days' rations. Lieutenant Donovan weighs 165 pounds, making a combined weight of 230 pounds on the wheel. The rifle was strapped to the frame of the bicycle and did not interfere in any way with the rider. The other articles were strapped in front and at the side of the handle bars and were so arranged that they could be re-moved in a half minute if necessary. In relating his experience, the lieutenant said: DESCRIBES THE TRIP.

"I started out to give the army officers a practical illustration of the value of a wheel for army service, in making long marches, or for carrying messages. I have been five and one-half days on the road between here and Fort Russell and lost a day and a half by breaking my wheel and having to stop to repair it. I stopped a half day each time at McPherson, Grand Island and Frement. McPherson, Grand Island and Fremont. I rode to Omaha from Fremont today and had to travel a large portion of the distance over muddy roads. The journey has not fatigued me as much as five days' march would, and, me as much as five days march would, and, according to my cyclometer, I have traveled a fraction over 529½ miles. I do not feel worn out and could have completed the trip in much shorter time. I put in exactly fifty-nine hours and forty minutes with my wheel. This includes the time spent is repairing it. I had to walk twenty-eight miles and out my wheel on account of deep sand. and push my wheel on account of deep sand and mud. I rode over railroad tracks for ger Agent, Chicago. which retarded my speed, and, found the roads in pretty bad condition, I might say that the trip was made under unusually adverse conditions. I broke the sprocket chain twice today while wheeling through heavy mud, and came into Omaha with a loose pin, but I feel well satisfied, for I have given a practical illustration of what can be accomplished with a wheel in the army. A company of infantry could be put on a battle field fifty or a hundred miles distant in a half day or a day's time. This could not be done with horse, or by forced marches, and, after the men went on the field, they could discard their wheels and strap their accourrements to their shoulders Bicycles are as cheap as horses, require little attention, and a company could sleep or their wheels, as it were, when on a march and be ready to move on within an incredibly short time after receiving orders. This trip I think will be a strong argument in favor of the equipping of the soldiers with bi-cycles. I may return to Fort Russell in the same manner and will make the trip in much shorter time if I do."

Colonel Benham, who was an interested listener while the lieutenant was relating his experience, remarked: "It is a wonderful performance, and, I think, will result in the adoption of bicycles in army service. This record clearly outclasses anything accomplished by horses and our messenge service would be greatly improved by the equipment. The army officials are considerthe advisability and utility of equipping infantry with bicycles and I am greatly in of such a move. With bleyeles we could move out troops easily, silently and

An official report of the trip will be made to the heads of the departments and the secretary of war.

The heart of the big boy, who once upon a time was also a little boy and tasted of the joy of crawling under the big circus tent and, If he was born under a propitious star, saw the big show for nothing, is doing some throbbing, too. At daybreak yesterday morning rain was pouring in terrents upon the grounds, Twen-tieth and Paul streets. But Manager James Bailey of the Barnum & Bailey show was up early with his army of men. The grounds were ditched and drained and enough canvas was soon erected to shelter the horses and other animals and to enclose a dining room for the 700 employes nightfall the big show tent was up and the circus was nearly ready for business. All the tents are waterproof, so that the later rainfall of the day made no impression on the ground beneath. Tons of hay and straw were strewn about and there will be little evidence of mud at the performance today. inside the managerie tent the animals thoroughly enjoyed the quiet of the Sabbath. The pelican, adjutant, ostrich and were liberated from their cages and stalked with dignified air about. The elephants seemed to be enjoying the storm and ex-hausted the rain pools by drawing the water into their trunks and then playing over their backs with spray. Even the hairless horse and three-horned ox seemed to appreciate the blessedness of the gentle rain. Johanna, the gorilla gianters, seemed to be the only one who had the blues. Her keeper, Mr. McKay, said that she had been melancholy ever since she lost her husband, Chicko.

In the center of the tent the ethnological congress was gathered. They seemed to be having a very good time, jabbering away at each other whether they understood each other or not. They spent most of their time examining their trunks. They represent Egypt, Soudan, Arabia, Algeria and a whole lot of South African tribes, Among them are also Siamese, Singalese, Javanese and Burmere. The Eskimo family found it a little warm, as they were very industrious in handling palm fans. But they were in handling paim fans. But they were seated upon a painting representing huge fields of icebergs and the effect of this upon their imaginations made the weather bear-

This morning should the weather be favorable, the free street pagrant will be presented. PROFITS ON ONE SIDE ONLY

Omaha Firms Lose Morey by Making Deals with a Ewindler.

PRETENDED TO BE AGENT FOR THE SHOW

Took Rake Offs in Advance on Alleged Contracts for Supplies in Which Figures Had Been Raised -Caught by an Old Trick.

A circus always brings with it a train of sharps and pickpockets, and the one now in town is no exception to the rule. Yesterday afternoon while Agent Cohen of the show was supervising the evening meal, Bickman of the firm of Wright & Backman. butchers, of 2505 N street, South Omaha, entered and presented a contract signed by C. Hamilton for $63.45 worth of meat. Mr. Cohen emphatically declared that he was the only authorized agent of the company, that Hamilton had no power to make my contracts, and that the contract therefore was a fraud. Other cases of the same kind were later reported, and it appears that Hamilton has reaped quite a harvest n the city.

The way Hamilton works his victims is very shrewd. In the case of the butchers he inquired the price of the meat. When this was given he said that the price was ow and suggested that another cent a pound be added and the corresponding profits be divided equally between them and himself. The meney for the meat, of course, was to be paid after delivery. But Mr. Hamilton said that he would not be able to see the meat men again as he kept in advance of the show. So his profits were immediately paid over to him. What the loss was could not be learned exactly, but Backman said it was between $5 and $10.

G. Barth of 1010 North Twenty-fourth street had a contract, Mr. Chen said, of bout $90, and Hamilton & Knopf of 1773 South Twenty-ninth of about $50. Various other butchers were also "worked" in sums varying from $10 to $25.

"Hamilton" also contracted for lumber, bread, canvas and other supplies. In all, the show people say that he obtained about $1,750. It is hard to find out what the loss was in individual cases, as the victims are leath to admit that they were "worked." Besides, the nature of the deals made with Hamilton was such as to cause them to say

The swindler has been working his scheme since the beginning of the season, except for the last ten weeks. During this time he was, as supposed, in durance vile in Syracuse, N. Y. He struck a butcher there, with whom the show had been dealing for several years. This individual immediately understood the scheme, had him arrested and prosecuted him. The man drew sixty days. This would happen to him frequently if the victims would prosecute, but for the reasons stated above this is very rarely done. Detective Hock of the show and his associates ere on his trail. Hamilton has furnished himself with blank contracts, which appear all right but are entirely different from the genuine ones. He appears under different names.

EGYPTIAN DIVORCE

It is Even More Expeditious than the Sions Falls Ki d.

"In Egypt they have as novel a way of divorcing women as they have in marrying," observed a traveler to the Detroit Free Press. "When a woman talks back to her better-or worse-half, she is apt to get into trouble. I recall a case. The husband was a dusky fellow, servant to the American consul. He had been careless and his wife began to upbraid him. "'Cease, woman,' he said, finally. I will endure no more.'

"But she continued with renewed vigor.

"If you don't cease, he repeated, 'you know what I can do?' "Her tongue went on at a greater pace than ever. 'Woman, I cast thee from me,' he said. Now, I've said it once. Will you stop? You know what will be the consequences if I say

"As this was a great amount in that land, consul said in surprise: "'Why, what do you want with so much noney? "I must have it."

Major Burke, who also commanded a company in the dress parade, says that he believed that Captain Goodwin had been drinking, but he thought he was capable of performing his duty perfectly. AMUSEMENTS.

Realism has reached its zenith in "The Tornado," which tegen a half week's engagement yesterday at the Fifteenth Street theater. In fact, one might with truth say it is realism run rampant.

When seen here last year "The Tornado" was crude in parts, the scenes were badly worked and the cast composed of only or-dinary material. But a year on the road has changed these conditions, and the play has changed these conditions, and the play last night was greeted with the biggest house of the season. Little do the pair as of the Fifteenth Street theater care for the brill'ant wit of Sheridan, the srtistle dramatic construction f Pinero, or the lordly language of Sheridan Cnowles. They want something with blo d. knowles. They want something with blood, heart, vitality in it, semething that will not require too much thinking in its solution, something that is part of their lives. They get all this in "The Tornado." It is crowded with incident; the characters are well bestowed. It is a play that Hamlin Girland would revel in, that Howells might take a fancy to if he were not so supremely egotistic. While the stage carpenter, the gas man, the machinist and numerous supers work up strong climates in three acts, the work up strong climates in three acts, the height of the realistic is reached in a dis-secting room in a Chicago medical college. this scene alone would save the reputation This scene alone would save the reputation of any plsy. It is daring in the manner of its working out, for the heroine, who is a supposed soleide, is brought in by body-snatchers for the benefit of the medical students. The husband and hero is the demonstrator on this occasion. With scaipel in hand he is about to dismember an arm, the sheat is drawn saws from the white the sheet is drawn away from the white face of the subject and the doctor recognizes his lest wife. It is a dramatic situation, one that appeals strongly to the heart of the audience. After he is left alone with his dead the doctor proceeds to ascertain if life is extinct, and then to his overleaping joy a faint meisture is seen upon the hand mirror held to the lips. There could be no other way out of it than a startling climax, and Mr. Carter has worked his lead for everything there is in it.

The actors, while secondary to the picture, are in the main acceptable. Mr True James plays George Lamont with consider ble feel-ing, his work in the dissecting room being particularly commendable. Biff Boss, the juvenile part, is right eleverly played by particularly commensable. Bit boss, the juvenile part, is right eleverly played by W. J. Deming. Mr. Collins as the principal "arch plotter" received enough hisses to suggest a large goose colony, which are always desired by the legitimate vilhain. Mr. Ed Anderson afforded a great deal of fun as bolan McKinney. The ladies of the com-Dolan McKinney. The ladies of the com-pany, Miss Edith Ellis, Miss Dolly DeVerne and Miss Minnis Wilson, are well cast and their playing is meritor ous.

LABOR'S MUNICIPAL LEAGUE

PRELIMINARY MEETING HELD YESTERDAY

Effort Will Re Made to Perfect Plans this Week-All Those Who Belong to Recognized Labor Unions Eligible to Membership.

A meeting of prominent trades unionists was held at the Board of Trade building yes terday afternoon on the invitation of the committee appointed at the delegate meeting of labor organizations two weeks ago.

The question of forming a trades unfor nunicipal league was discussed at length, the argument being advanced that labor had more to hope for from honesty in official positi n than from partisanship, and that the best way to down the ward heeler and saloon bummer was to go to the caucus and primaries and see that good men were brought to the front and placid on all tickets. The opinion seemed to prevail that if common business sense and honesty were applied to the management of governmental affairs, labor would get what is its due. It was decided to hold a meeting some evening this week, the date and place of which will be published later. It is the intention to make membership in a ric gnized labor union the gauge of membership in the proposed league. Endorse Jacobson,

Two ways of washing.

One is the same way your grandmother washed -but there wasn't anything better, in her day. You rub soap into the clothes-then you rub them up and down on a washboard till you get the dirt worn off. This is hard workand while you're wearing off the dirt, you're wearing out you clothes too. The othe way is Pearline's. You put the clothes, into Pearline and water—then you wait. Pearline gets the dirt all out. A little rinsing makes them perfectly clean. Pearline does the work. There can't be anything so easy, so economical, or that keeps your clothes so / absolutely safe from harm and wear Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you.

"this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—rend it back.

Many are the adjectives it calls forth-"crazy," "fascinating," "bewildering," "de-lightful," "weird," etc. It is certainly the most remarkable place of furniture that the last decade has produced, and there is every prospect of an enormous sale for it. The secret of its comfort lies in two en-tirely different sets of springs which are so constructed that they work either alone or in combination, making a very apotheosis of
