

STATE FAIR & ATTRACTIONS

Some of the Most Profitable Exhibitions Ever Seen at Lincoln.

SHOWING OF DROUTH-STRIKEN REGIONS

Residents of Those Counties Claim There is No Occasion for the Alarm Manifested by Outsiders Over the Situation.

LINCOLN, Sept. 11.—(Special to the Bee.)—The combined attractions of the fair and the grand attraction parade and speech making has drawn a tremendous crowd to the city, and the streets are almost impassable.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free. This breaks all previous records for a second day.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

and never returned. Upon inquiry it was discovered that he had gone north to the latter place, and that was the last seen of him. He is described as being about 30 years old, about five feet nine inches high and light-brown mustache, rather dark complexion, and speaks very little English. The team was a light gray pony and a strawberry roan.

PIOS PERSECUTION.

This is the Claim of an Expelled Hastings Church Member.

HASTINGS, Sept. 11.—(Special to the Bee.)—The trial of John Weingart, before a committee of the Methodist church here, was scheduled to come off yesterday afternoon. When the court convened it was found that the charges upon which Weingart was to be tried bore the signature of W. A. Snook. Snook disclaimed the signature and refused to appear to prosecute. These charges alleged nonattendance at divine service, and had been signed, it seems, by Mrs. Snook in her husband's absence. It was proposed by her that the matter be all right. Snook, on returning, disavowed his wife's signature of his name, as he did not wish to present the charges.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

to be London, were the participants. London, being considerably under the influence of liquor, became abusive, and Hickey struck him, wherefore London drew a dirk and made a lunge as if to slay, severing one of his ribs. London immediately escaped. His home was at or near Harbin, and telegrams have been sent, every direction giving a description of the man. Hickey was taken to his home, and is now lying in a very critical condition, with but slight chance of recovery.

INCONVENIENCED THE VETERANS.

NEBRASKA CITY, Sept. 11.—(Special Telegram to the Bee.)—Congressman Bryan spoke here tonight to a fair-sized audience. With Bryan's pronounced anti-Morton views the crowd was a compliment here at the home of the secretary of agriculture, but there was no demonstration or enthusiasm. The band, followed by a straggling crowd, marched down Central avenue to the opera house, and then inspiration from their lungs in hope of drawing a crowd. The crowd came and Mr. Bryan was introduced by R. H. Miller, a pronounced anti-Morton man. Mr. Bryan was well received by the audience, and said the first time he had ever addressed a Nebraska City audience, was when J. Sterling Morton was candidate for congress. Now he was called here for another office. Mr. Bryan's speech was along the line of his usual talks and created much enthusiasm among the anti-Morton men.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

TUBERCULOSIS IN CATTLE

Difficult Matter to Eradicate the Disease Under Present Conditions.

SUGGESTIONS FOR DIAGNOSIS AND CURE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The results of investigations made with the object of determining the value of the remedy, as the variations of temperature of an animal during the course of the day frequently so great that the temperature is taken only once before a tuberculin injection is merely a matter of chance if a high temperature, natural to the animal, is independent of the action of the tuberculin injection, is not erroneously taken for a reaction. The most convenient place where the skin is thin, and a large, strong needle gives more satisfaction than a small, fine one. Seven or eight hours after the injection, has occurred, or until eighteen or twenty hours have passed since the time of the injection.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Trains from every direction were loaded down with visitors, and this afternoon the grounds were thronged. It was Old Soldiers and Children's day. Over 10,000 people paid admission at the gates, while soldiers and children went free.

Considerable interest is beginning to develop in the races, and the grand stand annex to the exhibition will prove a source of considerable revenue. Judge Culbertson of Chicago is the starting judge.

Yes, it will be a picnic for the boys, and a bonanza for their parents, to know that the new Fall Suit that has been promised can be had for very little money.

$17,000 Boys' and Children's Clothing for $11,000

It was a big purchase, but it our eastern buyer had not been on the lookout and seized the opportunity in the nick of time, our Omaha friends would not have the chance we now offer. Hirsh, Elson & Co., the best known Chicago manufacturers of fine Boys and Children's Clothing was heavily overstocked, and the NEW TARIFF LAW on wool coming into force January 1, 1895, saw them in a dilemma and heavy losses staring the firm in the face.

So our buyer, after considerable trouble, bought $17,000 Boys' and Children's Fine Clothing for $11,000. Just think of it! Read the prices and see if you ever saw the like. Come see the goods and we promise you will make your son the present of a Fall Suit at once.

BIG SPECIAL SALE BIG BOYS AND CHILDREN CLOTHING FOR

- Little Boy's Suit. 3 shades children's suits, ages 4 to 14, usually sold for $2.00, big special sale price $1.25. Boys' Junior Suit. An elegant suit velvet junior suit, ages 3 to 7 years, usually sold for $2.00, big special sale price $3.50. Little Boy's Suit. 2 shades children's suits, ages 4 to 14, dark effects, usually sold for $2.25, big special sale price $1.50. Boys' Junior Suit. Junior suits in blue and black tricot cloth nobby dress, ages 3 to 7 years, usually sold for $2.50, big special sale price $3.25.

A PICNIC FOR THE BOYS THE DOY

BIG SPECIAL SALE BIG BOYS AND CHILDREN CLOTHING FOR

- Boys' All Wool Suit. 4 shades all wool boys' suits, extra pair pants to match, usually sold for $2.50, big special sale price $1.75. A Big Boy's Suit. 200 boys' suits, ages from 14 to 18 years, long pants, heavy woolen goods, dark effects, usually sold for $4, big special sale price $2. Double Broasted Suit. 150 assorted double and single breasted worsted suits, dark effects, in plaid, stripes and solid colors, usually sold for $5.00, big special sale price $2.50. A Long Pant Suit. 350 boys' suits, ages from 14 to 18 years, long pants, solid, substantial goods, usually sold for $4.50, big special sale price $2.00.

The M. H. Cook Clothing Co., Successors to Columbia Clothing Co., 13th and Farnam Sts., Omaha.

CONSTRUCTING A BIG DITCH

Ground Broken for an Immense Irrigation Canal in Dawson County.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 11.—(Special to the Bee.)—Active work has commenced upon the Farmers' & Merchants' Irrigation company's canal. In Dawson county. Three hundred and 100 scrapers have been bought, and work will be given to 250 men upon the ditch. The ditch starts near Cozad and runs twenty-eight miles east, and will water 50,000 acres. Ten thousand dollars in bonds were voted in Lexington precinct, and $7,000 in Grant precinct to aid the construction. The capital stock is held entirely by local farmers and business men. While this is the largest ditch ever being built, two smaller ditches are being constructed that will water 20,000 acres, adjacent to Lexington, and two companies are incorporated for extensive building north of Lincoln. It is safe to say fully 200,000 acres will be put under irrigation in this county before another year.

Freemont Firemen Celebrate

FREMONT, Sept. 11.—(Special to the Bee.)—The Grand Union company celebrated the eleventh anniversary of its organization at Mannerherk hall last evening. The hall was neatly decorated with flags and the banners of the different companies of the fire department. The Dorsey Hose company has several quartets furnished music. The hall was well filled with the guests of the popular hose company, and President George Starbuck presided at the meeting, with a neat address of welcome and called upon George L. Loomis, president of the fire department, who, after a short address, called upon Mr. J. C. Martin called the meeting to order and introduced Hon. John H. Powers, the popular candidate for state treasury, who made a short speech and gave way to Mr. Davis, who spoke on political subjects from a popular standpoint for two hours and a half and discussed them well. He closed with a neatly worded tribute to the immortal Lincoln. He made a good impression in Fremont.

A. L. Shulls left today for a permanent residence in Kansas City.

R. B. Schneider of Fremont has been elected president of the republican state finance committee. The charity club is arranging to give a dramatic entertainment at the opera house. A party of friends was given at the home of Mrs. Jacob Harms, wife of Jacob Harms, who died at the family residence on Sunday night, was held today at the Danish Lutheran church. Mrs. John E. Harms, of Birkhoff township, exploded his gun yesterday, putting out one of his eyes and otherwise injuring his face. He was taken to an Omaha hospital for treatment.

Valley Notes and Personal.

VALLLEY, Neb., Sept. 11.—(Special to the Bee.)—Guy Andrews, who has been spending the summer with Whitmore Bros. of this place, has gone to his home in Hanover, N. H. Frank Richardson has commenced the erection of a handsome brick residence. Mrs. J. C. Peterson met with a serious accident last evening. She was sitting in her wicker chair on the stairs leading to the cellar when she fell head first to the bottom. She was picked up in an unconscious condition and is still ill. Miss Katie Keefe has returned from a visit with friends in Sarpy. Uncle Joseph Hakney, who resides two miles south of town, has a cherry tree in full bloom. The Valley Cornet band left this morning for the state fair at Lincoln. Mrs. S. R. Bunch is visiting with friends at Madison. A heavy frost visited this vicinity last night. Mrs. John Nesbit of Tekamah is a guest of the Clark family.

Rain at Exeter.

EXETER, Neb., Sept. 11.—(Special to the Bee.)—Yesterday morning rain fell here, the first of any amount for nearly two months. It will freshen up the late pastures considerably. Another such rain right away would cause a loss of fall wheat to be sown. J. A. Craven swore out a warrant against Joe Knox for assault. He was arrested Saturday and committed to jail, where he is held on $5,000 bail. The constable took him to Geneva for trial. Ayer, Ind., last week, where they will be fed for market. He accompanied the shipment. W. Raymond has purchased a four and feed store in Lincoln and will remove his family to that place soon.

Failed to Notify His Friends.

SURPRISE, Neb., Sept. 11.—(Special to the Bee.)—John Calk, a farmer living four miles north, took French leave of his neighbors a few days ago, leaving several parties to mourn his departure. It is now ascertained that he has departed for some place, but he has not notified his friends. He is also accused of taking with him a span of horses, wagon and harness, on which certain parties hold a mortgage. The cashier of the Surprise bank, John A. Steel, has gone to Pittsburg, Pa., on a pleasure trip. It is reported that there is a man living near Ripley who is offering $1 per head for old horses, which he kills and feeds to his hogs.

Stabbed with a Dirk.

BEATRICE, Sept. 11.—(Special Telegram to the Bee.)—An affray occurred in this city between 12 and 1 o'clock this morning which bids fair to develop into a case of murder. Stockton's barn, notorious for the gang of toughs who congregated there, was the scene of the difficulty, and Al Hickey, a resident of the west side, and a man whose name is not known, but is supposed

Western Union Manager Who Stood Off the Army

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 11.—The Examiner says: Benjamin Shearer, manager of the Western Union telegraph office at Reno, Nev., and his corps of assistants, have been dismissed from the service at the instigation of the War department of the United States. He and his operators were at the same time indirectly charged with conspiracy in the matter of the charges were not pressed. During the recent strike of the A. R. U., in which the regular army took a prominent part, a corps from Utah was stationed at Reno for the alleged purpose of protecting the railway company's property. Some moves of the troops were to be made and Adjutant Bowling, who was in charge of the signal corps of the department, was obliged to telegraph for instructions. He received his corps up to the telegraph office and demanded that Shearer and his operators vacate the office while he, with the operators connected with the telegraph office, received the necessary instructions over the wires. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees of the office should have access to the wires. The adjutant in his reply would not quite understand the position taken by the telegraph manager, yet he was obliged to inform his messengers of the ordinary way. He explained to his messengers that he had received the necessary instructions over the wires from headquarters. Shearer refused to leave the office. He considered that he and his men were performing a public duty in the business of the office, and the rules of the company were that non but employees