that the committee will refuse to throw the nomination to Brackinridge, as such action would, in the opinion of conservative democrats, completely disrupt the democratic party in this district. A number of bets against Owens were paid today. CINCINATTI, Sept. 18.-The Times-Star's special from Lexington says: The official re-turns by counties show 269 plurality for Owens, but Breckinridge's manifesto is understood to mean that the district com-mittee on Saturday is to go behind the returns made by the democratic county com-mittee. Here at Breckinridge's home today the Breckinridge and Owens men are equally divided on the Fayette county committee, and the only Settle man on it had the balance of power. The committee met today, and Settle telegraphed his con-gratulations to W. C. Owens, and Settle's friend on the committee umpired the count without going behind any returns. The Owens men are openly charging that the manifesto or declaration of contest was not issued until fate last night, till pressure had been brought to bear on district com-mitteemen who were opposed to going be-hind the returns from the respective counties. The Owens men claim that the frauds were against them instead of in their favor, and that money is being used to get the district committee to reverse the returns of the county committee. FLOWER WILL NOT RUN.

He Says He Thinks | a Stronger Candidate Can Be Found for Governor. ALBANY, Sept. 18. - Governor Flower today to be a candidate for renomination for governor. He made known this determination after a long interview with Senators Hill and Murphy. At the conclusion of the interview Governor Flower said to an Associated press reporter: "I am convinced that my nomination, if it should be accorded to me by the convention would not be so likely to command the full vote of the party as would the nomination of some other democrat, and I am too desirous of party success to be a candidate under these circumstances." At the conclusion of the conference this morning Senator Murphy said the declination of the governor to be a candidate had been wholly voluntary and that no influence had been brought to bear on him. Senator Hill left the executive chambe went direct to the residence of Hon. John Boyd Thatcher. This is said to have a great deal of significance, as Mr. Thatcher has been mentioned as a candidate for governor. Governor Flower later said: "This is an important year for the party. Republican victry in November would be likely to mean a perpetuation of republican control for many years in this state and republican success in the nation in 1896. Our ticket must have the earnest, aggressive sup ort of every democrat to insure democratic victory and the man should be nominated for governor who could command that support. The terms of the treaty with Great Britain have just been made public. A similar treaty is now being negotiated with this country and it is expected to be the second of the new treaties to be signed. Then will come a like treaty with Germany and other powers. The significant feature of this new series of treaties is that they for the first time

deal with the Japanese as a civilized nation entitled to the same treaty rights as the countries of Europe or the western hemisphere. All of the Japanese treaties now existing treat her as a half barbarous country and are relies of the days prior to her advance toward civilization in methods. The records of the State department show that the United States was the first to make a treaty of any kind with Japan and the first to send a minister to that country. This was within the last forty years, prior to which time Japan was in such a benighted condition that no diplomatic communication was had with her. In 1854 Secretary of State Lewis Cass aint Townsend Harris of New York as consul and afterward rs consul general to Japan. He was the first official of the kind Japan had ever seen. He took his life in his hands, by pushing inland, going to the seat of government at Yeddo, where he succeeded in making an advantageous treaty. This served as the basis for subsequent treaties with Great Britain, Prussia, France, Switzerland and other countries. In 1866 our minister, Mr. Portman, had the treaty changed, making the tariff rate 5 per cent ad valorem. Other countries secured the same change. LIKE THE BRITISH TREATY. These old treaties are still in force and are the ones which are about to be superseded by the new series of treaties. The treaties recognize Japan as a full treatymaking power and make commercial ar rangements with her accordingly. The old treaty gave the United States a uniform tariff rate of 5 per cent ad valorem for sending goods into Japan, although this country was left free to impose such tariff rates as she saw fit against Japan. The new treaty will raise the Japanese rates, on the principle that the government is now able to enact a just and enlightened tariff law of its own. The rate for imports from the United States is understood to be from to 8 per cent and to be a specific instead of ad valorem duty. This is the rate in the British treaty and the purpose is to have them alike.

Another important change is in opening up Japan to Americans and other foreigners The old treaty restricts foreigners to certain designated ports. Japan proposes to throw open her entire country, making only one reservation against the alien ownership of land, similar to the laws in some American states. With the reservation Americans and other for igners will be allowed to conduct business, lease land, etc., in any conduct business lease land, etc., in any part of Japan. On the other hand Japan desires by the new treaties to rid herself of the consular courts and other foreign tribunals which sit at the treaty ports and have jurisdiction over all cases, civil and criminal, in which a foreigner is a party. These courts were established on the theory that eastern countries were extremely cruel in their punishment, but as the Japanese judicial system is now patterned after that of eastern countries it is felt that full fustice will be accorded foreigners in Japan w out the continuance of foreign courts. With Britain, the United States and Germany Joining in the recognition of Japanese advancement, the country will in effect be officially received as one of the fully civilized treaty-making nations. OPEN TO BRITISH MERCHANTS. LONDON, Sept. 18.—The Times says the new trusty between Great Britain and Japan fixes the duties on all articles im-ported into Japan from Great Britain exseeding an annual value of $50,000,000 at a slightly increased rate, while Japan retains the right to fix her own tariff on articles of lesser annual value. The treaty will not be in force for twelve years. The abolition of foreign jurisdiction will not occur until a lapse of five years when it is ex-pected the new Japanese code will be com-plited and the new tribunals organized. In return for these concessions the whole of Japan will be opened to British trade and industry as eoon as foreign jurisdiction is abolished. In the meantime British merchants may travel through the country and make prospective arrangements for trade.

WANT LEAVE TO CUP PINE.

Injured Timber in the Burned Regions is Going to Waste Through Red Tape. WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 .- Commissioner Lamoreux of the general land office has been receiving many communications from homesteaders in the burned districts of Minnesota and Wisconsin concerning pine lands which they have taken but have not been finally patented or in which the title does not rest with the settler. Homesteaders are prohibited from cutting the pine until they acquire complete title. To this they make no objection, except in cases of fire, when the pine must be cut immediately or it will lose its fire has raged and the bark of the trees is burned they must be cut the following winter or the worms at once begin their ravages and by the second winter the trees are al-most if not wholly destroyed. The settlers have been inquiring of Commissioner Lamor-eux whether the department cannot grant them permits to cut the timber on their land so that it may be saved. The commissioner says that such permission cannot be granted and congressional action will be necessary before the settlers whose titles are not ye perfect can cut and save their timber. expected that a bill will be introduced and an effort be made early in the next session of congress to grant the homesteaders the relief they are asking. Commissioner Lam-oreux made a tour of the burned section while he was in the northwest. He says that there will be extensive lumbering in that region this year, as the owners of all timber lands where the flames swept the country know that they must cut the injured timber in order to save it.

Germany Presents a Good Field for Ameri-

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 .- Consul E. W. S. Tingle of Brunswick, Germany, has sent to the State department a sanguine report on the field presented for the exportation of. American made furniture to Germany. He represents that the Germans are very unskilled in the manufacture of furniture, despite the fact that they are in general eminently practical and excel in many forms of handleraft. Two reasons exist for this deficiency, the scarcity of wood in Germany and the fact that the Germans have not accustomed themselves to as many articles of furniture as are used in America. Be the reason whatever it may, the consul writes there is no good furniture in Germany, and he thinks there is an excellent field for the extension of trade in the American products. "The Germans are conservative," the con-sul says, "but they are not so wooded to conservatism as not to be willing to buy foreign article if they can get it better than at home and as chesp. Special stress must be laid upon cheapness, for thrift is perhaps the most predominant German characteristic, and the average German, instead of throwing away his money, carefully scrutiaizes the expenditure of every mark." The consul does not consider this trait an obstacle in the way of enlarging the commerce, because the commercial articles of German manufacture are not cheaper than the American in beauty, finish or strongth. Should the trade be established the consulbelieves it could be handled through com-mission houses in Hamburg, and recommends as the best means for developing it that the furniture makers' American send over experts to make a thorough study of the question. Book Held Up by Postal Authorities. MISS RUSSELL'S CASE.

British Consul Making Inquiries - Extent of His Power to Help Her.

Mr. Philip E. Burrough, British vice consul resident at Kansas City, having jurisdiction over the western parts of Iowa, Missouri and all of Nebraska, Kansas, Arkansas, Oklahoma and the Indian Territory, is in the city cerning the case of Miss Russell, who claims to be a British subject, who is now at the county jail for vagrancy and who is under suspicion of having stolen $75 from Miss Evans matron of the Young Women's H me. Mr. Burrough had a conversation with Miss Russell at the jail and is satisfied that she is a British subject. She claimed to have been born at Southampton, his own birthplace, and by questioning her about per-sons there he found that she was well acquainted there. He knows nothing ab ut her family connections, though her correspondence shows that her kindred are intelligent says that he can do nothing her immediate relief, a consular agent not having the power to interfere directly in criminal cases, it being agreed among all nations that in such cases local laws must take their course. Nor is he prepared to importune the representatives of his government of higher rank at Washington to do anything in the way of intercession at present. He, to some degree, shares the suspicion that she is an adventuress of some sort. He will, however, find out if she was really robbed on a Rock Island train, as she alleges, by consulting with the railroad company, for she told him the robbery was reported. He will also ascertain, if possible, all material facts connected with her case and place the information in the hands of his superior agents in this country.

GETT ING BABY TO SLEEP.

The Gradle Gut of Date, but Cradle Songe Remain Better I fant Food Brings Sounder Sleep, with Little Need of Rocking

In the old New England Cabla at the Midway Plaisance, among he quaint bits of furniture there was an old fashioned cradle such as busy mothers used to push their feet while they hummed a soft lullaby.

The cradle is out of date and the tiny, lace-draped crib has taken its place. Cradle songs remain. No better ones have been written since mothers hushed their tired ones to sleep with "Rock-a-bye, Baby," and "Bye, Baby Bunting," but the art of infant feeding has gone far ahead of the old ways, Mothers no longer give syrups to still babis's criea; little or no medicine is now given, but better food. Lactated food is now known to every mother. In the great majority of homes in this country and in Canada this hest of infant foods has found a permapent place

Next to healthy mother's milk it is the most perfect diet for infan's. Very often it is much superior to the natural breast milk, because deficient in nutritive qualities. It cannot contain any source of contagion. It is perfectly prepared to be pleasing to the weak infant stomach. It quickly makes solid flesh and bone, and tides sickly babies over summer days and nights when cholera infantum and diarrhea threaten the lives of every poorly nourished child.

The greatest repreach to practical medicen has been the fearful loss of infant lives at every return of the hot weather. The atention of the whole medical world has been directed to this great subject of proper inant feeding, especially during hot weather. Under the advice of the professors in the nedical department of the Vermont university, more especially that of Prof. A. P. Grinnell, dean of the university, and Dr. . M. Reberts, professor of diseases of children, and under the investigation and direct supervision of Prof. C. S. Boynton, the manufacture of Inciated food was begun. It has saved thousands of baby lives and enabled thousands more to grow up strong and big and blessed with sturdy constitutions.

A host of mothers have to thank inctafed food for the joy of seeing their drooping silent, white-faced little ones turn to brighteyed, charming babies, that eat and sleep and grow ina way to delight any mother's heart. Great numbers of such mothers have written that nothing else would agree with their children but lactated food.

A trial of less than two weeks will tell its own story in haby's weight, eyes, cheeks and spirits. Nursing mothers find lactated food just adapted to their peculiar needs. It nourishes both mother and child. And this is what one would expect from a knowledge of its rich, blood-making ingredients; using pure milk sugar as a basis, because also the basis of mother's milk; the added the richest gluten flour of wheat and oats. These are subjected to heat under pressure, and while in contract of the finest malt barley is added, makng thus a partially digested food that is asily assimilated by the feeblest stomach. Invalids and aged persons find lactated good the most grateful to their weak stomichs of any nutriment they can take Here is the experience of the sweet baby girl whose portrait is given above. Her nother, Mrs. E. E. Reynolds of Fair Haven, Vt., writes:

"Our little girl is a perfect picture of health, having used lactated food since she was two months old. She has always been perfectly well and we think it is largely due
