SUPREME COURT CONVENES

Feveral Important Cases to Come Up at the Present Session.

WHEN EX-TREASURER HILL MUST ANSWER

Given Until October 4 to Reply to the State's Petition for the Recovery of Funds Lost in the Mosher Bunk Wreck.

LINCOLN, Sept. 18 .- (Special.)-The September session of the supreme court opened this morning and several Omaha attorneys are in attendance. The forenoon work consisted in the hearing of motions and the making of orders. In the case of the state against ex-State Treasurer Hill he was given until October 4 to file his answer.

The case of Harry Hill against the state, from Plattsmouth, was passed until the Fourth district shall have been reached, which will be on October 2.

This morning George Cook secured a judgment of $15 against Water Commissioner Percival for damages alleged to have been caused by the shutting off of the water from his residence in house-cleaning time. He showed a receipt for the payment of his water rent, and demanded $200. No defense was made.

Henry Cox has asked the county court for a judgment of $1,000 against Thomas A.

L. B. Freeman, the present administrator of the estate of John H. Varnholt, asks judgment in the district court against the former administrator in the sum of $2,709.24. He alleges that Alex Halter, the former ad-ministrator, has refused to make an accounting and has been unfaithful to his trust. LINCOLN LOCAL NEWS.

In the absence of Mayor Weir, Acting Mayor Woods presided at the meeting of the city council last night. The city engineer reported that in compliance with the resolu-tion of the council at a previous meeting hhad discharged two of the employes of his department. The demand of the sisters of the Holy Child convent for $2,500 damages for the change of grade was referred to the city attorney and the proper committee. The claim of Hanses Calvert for $2,000 for injuries sustained on Tenth atreet while it was being paved several years ago was reported by the judiciary committee, which recommended a settlement for $500, which the claimant is willing to accept.

The work of registering the students has kept the authorities at the State university busy yesterday and today. The rush was a little greater than on previous years and the indications are that the attendance will be larger than on any other year in the history of the institution. All the professors are at their posts and the arrivals are getting located as fast as could be expected.

Hon. G. M. Lambertson was the attract tion which drew a fair audience to the meeting of the Fourth Ward club which was held in Grand Army of the Republic hall last night. His address consisted of two divisions, the first being a roast on Congressman Bryan, and the second a culogy of Tom Majors. In the course of his remarks he said: "Mr. Bryan seems to be an issue in this campaign. I speak of him personally, since neither the term of him personally, since neither the term populist or democrat quite seems to fit him. He considers himself too big for either label. He seems to be running with both the hare and the hounds. It is a wonder that the democrats follow Bryan. When he ran for corgress two years ago, did any one ever hear him say a good word for Cleveland, the ablest and the best man in the party or for any memthe best man in the party, or for any mem-ber of the democratic ticket? Could you tell whether he was for Morton or for Van Wyck for governor? Suppose that the democratic convention nominates a ticket this fall and endorses Bryan's candidacy for the senate, will Mr. Bryan support openly on the stump the democratic nominees or will be continue to represent he character in 'Pilgrim's Progress' of Mr. Facing Both Ways?

Coming down to Holcomb, the speaker was convinced that he would prove no better than Allen, who had been an advocate of free silver, free trade the Sugar trust and of Coxey's army. Tom Majors he considered a good, strong man, and one who would preserve the credit of the The annual meeting of the Young Men's Church Howe's Barn Burned.

AUBURN, Neb., Sept. 18 - (Special.)-The large barn of Church Howe & Son at Walnut Grove stock farm was totally consumed by fire with all of its contents except the horses, which were saved. Between sixty and seventy tons of hay, 500 bushels of corn, some twenty carriages, buggles, sulkies and carts, twenty sets of harness, saddles and blankets, together with wagons and farm implement which were stored in the barn, were con ary adjoining, which contained about 2,000 ushels of wheat, which was destroyed. The barn was a model in every respect, 60x130 with twenty-foot studding, with all modern improvements, containing stabling for seventy-five head of horses. Three other barns and the dwelling near by were several times on fire, but by the sudden changing of the wind and the herculean efforts of the neighbors these were saved. The origin of the fire is a mystery. Fire was first seen coming from the hay loft, but only one of the men had been in the loft that morning and he is not a smoker. The loss is about $14,-000, with $8,000 insurance in the Phenix of Brooklyn, Home of New York, Liverpool, London and Globe and the Underwriters.

DOUGLAS COUNTY VETERANS.

They Meet at Bennington and Talk Over Old Times.

BENNINGTON, Neb., Sept. 18 .- (Special.)-Bennington is in the hands of the old soldiers of Douglas and surrounding counties. The surrender was unconditional, and the Douglas county vets who fought and bled and all but died for their country will have full and endisputed possession of the city from now until Thursday morning, when the first an-nual reunion of the old soldiers in Bouglas county will be a matter of history. Ever since old Sol rolled out of his downy couch this morning every highway and byway leading to this city has been alive with vehicles loaded down to the guards with sur-vivors of the late "unpleasantness" and their children and their children's children.

The soldiers have their camp in Benning ton park. At 2 o'clock this afternoon H. C. Timme, acting mayor, on behalf of the citikeeping of the "old boys." On behalf of the Grand Army of the Republic Hon. D. H. Mercer, member of congress, addressed the people in one of his happiest veins. Mr. Mercer was not mixed up in the late war, his age barring him, but he claims identification with the old guard on the score of

H. C. Wheeler read an original poem adapted to the occasion, and Major Fox-worthy's quartet of Lincoln sang a war song or two, and then Lieutenant Governor Majors told how the rebellion was put down and the part he played in the melee. It was understood that politics was to be eschewed during the two days of the reunion, but the wily Thomas could not resist making a little hay while the chance was so good. Comrade Russell of Schuyler paid his respects to the Douglas county contingent of the Grand Army of the Republic, and after more music and short talks by other vet-erans the assemblage adjourned for supper. MEETING OF THE STATE ASSOCIATION

Men Who Handle the People's Wealth in Ses sion to Consider Their Interest and Prospects-President Bentley's Annual Address - Small Change.

The Nebraska Bankers' association began its third annual convention vesterday at the Young Men's Christian association lecture There is a good attendance of financiers from over the state and many important subjects are to be discussed and considered during their two days' meeting. This association was organized in Omaha January 22, 1891, by A. L. Clarke, S. C. Smith, W. H. Sumner, Henry W. Yates and

F. H. Davis. The second meeting was held in Lincoln in 1892, but owing to the World's fair no convention was held in 1893.

The object of this association is to promote the general interests of the banks in this state and to secure uniformity of action, discuss questions of importance to the banking and finarcial world, commercial usages and customs, and to protect each other against crimes and raids of criminals. Any national or state bank, trust company or savings bank or banker may become a member of this association on payment of regular initiation and dues.

The officers of this association are: C. F. Bentley, Grand Island, president; A. E. Cady, St. Paul, vice president; Henry F. Wyman, Omaha, treasurer; Charles E. Walters, Omaha, secretary. Executive council; ters, Omaha, secretary, Executive council;

Among the important papers prepared for this meeting are: "Honest Money and Hon-est Legislation Make Honest People," by C. E. Adams of Superior; "The Practicability E. Adams of Superior; "The Practicability and Cost of Irrigation for Nebraska," J. A. Fort of North Platte; "The Reciamation of Fort of North Platte; "The Recismation of Arid and Semi-Arid America by Irrigation," by J. T. O'Brian, Kearney; also an address by Congressman E. J. Hainer of Aurora.

After holding an informal meeting in the morning it was found that a large number of the delegates were delayed by late trains and the convention adjourned until 2 p. m., while the local bankers took charge of the visitors and excepted them over the city. visitors and escorted them over the city. PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

Rev. Joseph T. Duryca opened the afternoon session with prayer, and President C. F. Bentley of Grand Island delivered his annual address, as follows:

"Since we last met the business interests of this country have been subjected to a severe strain; a financial crisis has convulsed this country, testing the strength of many wrecking the feeble, but involving some really sound concerns." The speaker went on to state that many concerns had been caught in the financial malstrom by a lack of conservatism in their dealings, and thought that the lesson had been of enough severity to not again let them forget the principles of a sound banking system. He dwelt on the subject of speculation as leading many finan-cially solid men into disastrous investments, and defined the difference between the specand defined the difference between the spec-lator and conservative business man by say-ing that the former gambles on a chance, while the latter hedges against it. "Beginning with the partial loss of crops in 1890 and the Baring panic in the latter part of the same year," said Mr. Bentley, "we were confronted with conditions that startled us. Though these conditions were far from comforting, yet in the light of sub-sequent events they were doubtless of no small advantage to this state and others simi larly situated. The financial stringency that then prevailed caused us to more closely scan the permanent worth of securities and credkinds of property, and to question whether certain enterprises were not being unduly developed as compared with the development of our chief industry—agriculture. The effects of financial disorder in Argentine Republic and Australia and the efforts of Australia to place its currency on a gold basis, has exerted serious influences on American

Mr. Bentley then spoke of the prosperity of the previous twenty years, and the amount of foreign capital which had beer attracted to this country. Inflated values followed, and insolvent men imagined they were millionaires. Banks and other financial in-stitutions became involved, and then every thing declined, bringing about the presenterists. The bank stands exposed on all sides by the fear of its depositors and the demands and needs of its borrowers.

"In our state, opportunities for legitimate enterprises have been open on every hand, and both capital and labor reaped rich re-turns. That there should have been no greater disaster than has been among the financial institutions of this state speaks volumes for the prudence and conservatism of our business men. But it is not the part of wisdom to cover up our mistakes, or try to condone our faults. We cannot emphasize the fact that if we had been more con-servative we would not have met with any disaster in these trying times, and more than one failure has been the result of ignorance of business laws.

"After the severity of the storm had passed us we at once began to adjust ourselves to the new conditions and look forward to a return of our former prosperous condition, and the result of the growing crops, but this hope has been doomed to bitter disappoint-ment, for in many sections the crops are all but a total fallure, and this fact will seriously retard the advancement of the state for the time being.

"No duty can weigh more heavily on any one than the obligation which rests on a banker to see that the funds entrusted to his care are properly invested, and that the confidence of the depositors may not be misplaced. Charged with such a duty, ignorance and weakness become criminal, and the deliberate perversion of a bank's funds beomes infam operative banking systems of England and Germany while discussing the subject of small loans, which is now quite an important part of the present banking system. These banks are conducted much the same as building associations manage their affairs, and are the means of giving the people a practi-cal education in general banking laws and received from the executive committee, the secretary and treasurer, showing that the affairs of the association were in a prosperous condition, and that the membership was rapidly increasing. Miscellaneous business reports of various committees and addresses followed from the different members.

A letter was read from ex-Comptroller of A letter was read from ex-comptroner of the Currency Hepburn, in which he advecated a revision of the present banking laws. The bankers thought that he offered some wise suggestions. C. E. Adams of Superior gave a good review of the financial question and hoped to see a board appointed to take financial leg-istation out of the hands of congress and place it into the hands of an especially appointed committee.

Fully 100 attended the banquet at the Millard last night. Henry W. Yates made a pleasant speech and realled on Colonel Cornish. The colonel responded in a humorous vein and was followed by E. H. O'Brien and others. The convention will meet at 10 o'clock this morning.

A la Sullivan--Corbett.

Sullivan—you remember him, don't you—he is the man that licked everybody on the face of the earth and thought some of getting up a scrap with the man in the moon. Nobody could lick Sullivan-no, indeed-the boys up here bet all they had on Sullivan and then walked home. Corbett licked him, you know that. You will observe that above there are 3-Sullivans-and in Omaha there are as many "old clothing houses"—but there is above also but 1-Corbett, as there is but one "live clothing house" in Omaha. They've licked everybody thus far but at last they've met their match and we are the people who are knocking them out. We knocked them down in the first round with a body blow in the shape of our all wool suit for $5 and when they get too frisky we slap them with it yet awhile. Then there is that $8 Sawyer cassimere and the $10 silk mixed cassimere and the $4.50 fall overcoat-Oh, we're in it with them and we're champions, too. None have trained so well—bought so well—none can deliver as hard hits-genuine low priced bargains. Watch the boys hedging—they're all coming to our side now and are falling over each other to see the finish, make and style of the best and lowest priced clothing on earth.

Why She Went to England and Why She So

B. Wells, the young woman who is devoting her energies to the continuance of the work which has engaged the greater part of the life of Fred Douglass, arrived in the city yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. During her stay she will be at the residence of Rev. John A. Williams, Twenty-third and Decatur streets. Tomorrow evening Miss Wells will deliver her lecture on "Lynch Law in America," under the auspices of Bishop Worthington Lyceum at Y. M. C. A. hall.

Miss Wells was seen yesterday afternoon by a representative of The Bee. She is an attractive young woman of a rather quiet de-meanor and is a fluent conversationalist. She appears to be thoroughly imbued with the spirit of the crusade in which she is engaged, but she was very quiet in her conversation about the wrongs done to the colored people.

Miss Wells returned from a lecturing tour through England where she said she was received very cordially, about September Her tour lasted about three months, and was undertaken at the solicitation of a lady philanthropist of that country. Since her return to this country she has lectured but rarely, consuming the time in recuperation. On Monday, however, she lectured in Des Moines, where a large audience greeted her, which after her lecture adopted a resolution denouncing lynch law. From this city she returns to Chicago, which is her hime, and on October 1 she will start upon a lecturing tour, which will embrace the cities of the north and east and some in the west In answer to a question as to her object in lecturing in a country 3,000 miles from the one in which the crusade is being pushed, Miss Wells said: "I had tried for a long time to bring the attention of the pulpit, press and the national bodies to the lawlessness existing in the country against the negroes. In almost every case I was snubbed, and I came to the conclusion that the public was not in condition to receive the principles I am advocating. Therefore when I received the invitation I thought it an opportunity I should not neglect, but when I perceived that public opinion was becoming aroused here I returned immediately, dropping everything. When I arrived in Eng-land the people there had no idea of the outrages committed here against the negro and I had difficulty in convincing them. My work was chiefly smong the religious bodies that have branches in the United States. Through them the public in this country was reached and influenced. "About the future? Well, it is a moral force which we are using and success is sure if public opinion becomes sympathetic. At present lynchings and burnings of negroes take place and the guilty parties are never punished. What we are striving for is to obtain the equal rights which the statutes give us. The laws say that all citizens, whether white or black, shall be treated equally. Since my return I have found pub-lic opinion to be much more favorable and of course my work is to foster this. Both the pulpit and the press have given me much more encouragement than before my departure to England. do not like to lecture, because I am no public speaker. The continuous traveling is very wearisome. But I think it is my duty to undertake the work. There does not appear to be any one else to do it, and there-fore it is necessary for me to do it." No Irrigation Bonus to Be Voted.
