Army of the Tennessee Meets and Listens to Talks from Some of Its Most

A INTERGENDERT ALEMAN Notes of the Day.

Royal Arcanum hall was handsomely and appropriately decorated with a profusion of bunting and flags, while the walls were hung with Lfe-size crayon pertraits of Generals Ulysses S. Grant, William Tecumsch Sherman, Philip Sheridan, John A. Logan, Russell A. Alger and a score of others.

Nearly 100 members of the Army the Tennessee were in their places when General G. M. Dodge called the society to order at 10:30 yesterday morning. In his brief words of welcome General Dodge said: "Comrades: We meet here on the anniversary of one of the great battles of the war, a battle which it is generally conceded was won by the gallantry of the Army of the Tennessee. In congratulating you upon our twenty sixth reunion and thanking you for se large an attendance, it is proper for me to say, as you are at my home, that I fully appreciate the effort so many have made to come so far, Sluce 1853, when I first saw the Missouri valley, I have made Council Bluffs my home, although since 1861 my duties and my busi-ness have taken me far from it. When I first saw this valley, this city was a Mormon hamlet just changing its name from Kaneville to Council brans. It was the principal autiliting point for the Pacific coast in this valley. I have seen thousands of white topped wagons from all parts of the the ountry assembled here waiting for grass o start on the plains before crossing the river to wend their way west. From here Brigham Young and his 500 started to seek home on the borders of the Great Salt Lake. This was in 1853-a wild, almost unknown country in which might was right, and when I first crossed the Missouri river vas upon a raft. I was greeted on the Nebraska side by the Omaha Indians, ceing that I was a tenderfoot they helped themselves to pretty much what they wanted preservation necessitated a very radical defense.

"The change from that day to this you can appreciate. It is with great satisfaction and gratification that I welcome to my old home that army that did so much for the ration and that was so kind, so partial and so complimentary to me. It is also a great satisfaction to me to see surrounding us on every side such evidences of the pleasure it gives our citizens here to have you with them. I add to that my own personal welcome and bid you make yourselves at home." After concluding his remarks General Bodge placed on the stand a handsome plush covered case, and the secretary read a letter from J. W. Jennings of New York presenting to the society a gavel made of wood from a tree which grew near the spot where the gallant and chivalrous McPherson fell on the batileHeld of Atlanta on July 22, 1864. The gavel is of highly polished hickory wood, head being fashioned in the form conic shell and ornamented with bands of solid silver.

ON BLOODY BATTLEFIELDS. Captain J. D. Fegun of the committee apcointed by Governor Jackson to visit battlefields of Chickamauga, Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge for" the purpose of locating and marking the positions in each of these battles occupied by Iowa troops submitted a voluminous report. The lowa logislature appropriated $25,000 for the ercotion of memorial tablets on these fields. The committee, consisting of J. D. Fegun, A. J. Miller, J. A. Young, F. P. Spencer and H. G. Ankeny, visited the battlefields as authorized Anicay, visited the battereds as authorized in September of this year and carefully examined every part of the field on Lookout Mountain and the right and left of Missionary Ridge. The commission reports that it ocated beyond question the position of Willlamson's brigade, Osterhaus division, on Lookout Mountain and at Rossville gap, as well as the spot where the brigade ouacked on the night of November 25, 1863, near Brazg's headquarters. Members of the commission who fought with Sherman on the left were satisfied that they found the position where they assaulted the ridge, near the tunnel, defended by Cleburn's troops of the confederate army. following tablets will be crected on the fields: No. 1, at the fork of the government road:

letter was read from Mayor Ochs of Chattanooga, Tenn., inviting the society hold its next annual meeting in that city. society to RECEPTION AT GENERAL DODGE'S.

The reception at the spacious home of General Dodge yesterday afternoon was democratic but elegant. Everybody was invited and all made welcome, and there was no exclusiveness of invitation or stint in welcome. It was a wide open opportunity for all to pay their respects to General Dodge, of whom Council Bluffs feels especially proud as a citizen whom the nation has henored. Opportunity was likewise given to meet and greet some of the other prominents thus called together by this notable gathering of heroes. From 2 o'clock until 5 o'clock the crowd came and went The lawn itself teemed with the hearliness of the welcome, the sward being made to bloom with small, br ght-colored flowers forming the words. "Welcome, Army of Tennessee." The interior of the house was made to bloom with beauty and to beam with suggestive military emblems. The half ways and passages, doors and windows stair railing and chandeliers, were festoone. with sm lax, caught up daintily with roses. Corners were filled with mounds of ferns and palms, and every sharp corner v rounded gracefully by pleasing groupings plants. In the hallway was a large Mal-tese cross made up entirely of yellow roses, with an edging of green. In the dining room the mantel was hidden beneath a bank of ferns and bergonias. The long table from which refreshments were served was beautified by three large floral pieces, pink roses predominating. The parlors were still more elaborately decorated. A large vase filled with American beauties won its full share of admiration. The piece of all others, however, which called forth the loudest praises was the floral reproduction of the badge of the Army of the Tennessee. It

Logan and the younger Shfrman had in pass a few moments before. He seemed to stand the battery of eyes bravely, though his face blanched a little with the natural aroused even in one used to hearing the highest praises of so honored a father. Mayor Cleaver of Council Bluffs extended the welcome of the city. He expressed the gratification felt by all citizens that Council Bluffs should have been thus honored, and also that the choice of the city was recog-nized as a special mark of gateem for one of its most honored and honorable citizens, Gen-eral Dodge, of whom all Humites were so proud. He set the hands going again, and some of the fect, too, when he alluded to the general as one who never didged a battle or a duty, in fact, was never known to dodge arything but a compliment.

was one of those plain, business-like ad-cases for which he is known. There were no attempts at rhetorical flourishes, but every word was weighted with interest. He mod-estly referred to the many gratifying manifestations of personal estiem and respect, and, in behalf of the society as well as him-self, thanked the citizens, for, he said, t was a peculiarity of the Army of the T e that it siways took pleasure in learning hat any of its members were respected a home as they were in the ranks. He pictured graphically the situation of Iowa at the breaking out of the war, when it was then on the frontier of eivilization. Its volunteers most part went into the organization of the Army of the Tennessee, and it was a noteworthy fact that among the many names inscribed upon the beautiful menument in honor of the heroes of Iowa, with but very few exceptions, all of these names were to be found upon the roll of the Army of the Tonnezsee. There were but few organized militia companies in the entire state, and among these was the Council Bluffs company of Guards, who were among the first to go into the field, and they entered the Army of the Tennessce. Thus it seemed that the Army of the Tennessee was a part of this city and state. Then, too, the sister state of Nebraska sent its gallant soldiers at swell the Army of the Tennessee. He al luded delicately to the presence of the near He alest living representatives of the great lead-ers of this army, not needing to name them to call forth further plaudits of recog-

The terrible strain of the years of struggle had developed that there was a national unity which could not be broken. The nation had builded upon a foundation which made the United States of today the wonder of the world. Now, Iowa, instead of being on the frontier of civilization, was in the center and would soon be in the center of popula-tion as well. The terrible struggles of war, and the results thus reached, had made such development possible, and this wonderful progress should be counted among the victories of war, in achieving which the Army of the Tennessee had done its part.

SHE SINGS SWEETLY.

Mary Logan Pearson, one of the prettiest girls that has ever adorned the stage at Dohany's opera house, the possessor of a magnificent soprano voice, and a namesake of General John A. Logan, delighted the audience by singing the "Star Spangled Banner," and delighted it still more by asking everybody to join in the chorus. This was done with a will, and Colonel D. W. C. Loudon was introduced to deliver the annual oration, which was a lengthy but well written production, and met with a cordial reception

Jules C. Lumbard, whose magnificent bass ice has charmed audiences in various parts of the country for the past forty years, then sang "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," and again the audience was given a chance to spread itself and its lungs. In reply to an encore he sang "Are Ye Sleepin', Maggie." prefacing his song with the romark that fifty years ago he used to sing it just so under the window of the chamber of the lady who 118. sat upon the platform, Mrs. John A. Logan Mrs. Logan gracefully acknowledged the truth of the statement and the audience applauded.

During the latter part of the program Mrs Logan made a few remarks, and then Colonel Fred D. Grant and P. Tecumseh Sherman, who is considerably too young to have taken Drs. Cleaver, Green and Houghton the Disaffected Ones-Dissatisfaction with the Action of the Foard of Directors the Cause.

The chairs formerly occupied by Drs. J. H. Cleaver, John Green and F. W. Houghton in the Council Bluff's Medical college are now vacant, and all because there did not seem to be any way of harmonizing the differences that have lately sprung up between them and the rest of the faculty. According to the story told by Dr. Cleaver, the disaffection was caused by the refusal of the board of trustees, which consists of Drs. Lacey, Macrae, Thomas and Barstow, to give him either the position of obstetrics or practice, for both of which he applied when Dr. C. H. Pinney and Dr. J. F. White died. He thought that as one of the chief promotors of the enterprize when it was first started he was deserving of some recognition, but as they were unwilling to give it to him he decided to pull off and let them alone, particularly since they alone had the ower of filling vacancies on the board, One of the members of the board, in confilling vacancies on the board. versation about the trouble, yesterday stated that Dr. Cleaver had the chair of women's and children's diseases, one of the best posi-tions in the faculty, and they all thought he ought to be satisfied. Dr. Green resigned because he was not appointed to the board of rustees, and no reason has been assigned for the action of Dr. Houghton. Altogether, things seem not to have been moving very smoothly in medical circles lately.

Nasty cod-liver oil and its fithy "emulsions" and mixtures, had been tried in nearly all these cases and had either utterly failed to bene-fit, or had only seemed to benefit a little for a short time. TRIBUTES TO THE ARMY.

In addressing the society General Howard expressed his regrets over the fact that he had not been able to meet with the society oftener in the past. His duties in the army had required his attention elsewhere. He was now about to graduate from the United States army and hoped to meet with the society oftener in the future. Alluding to his career he stated that he had served in every state in the union but one, and that he felt that if the United States did not belong to him, he, at least, belonged to the United States. Every throb beat of his heart was for his flag. It is the flag of our nation, he said, and nation was spelled with a big N. It was Council Bluffs art, too, and the young florist, J. F. Wilcox, who arranged all the decorations, was made to blush at the enthusiastic praise of General Dodge, who frankly declared that although he had seen many attempts in floral decorations had never seen so beautiful a piece, not so faithful a reproduction of a design. The refreshments were in keeping with the elegance of the other details of arrangements colored waiters, dainty dishes, everything erved with delicacy, yet with generous hos pitality. The ladies receiving were Mrs. General G. M. Dodge and her three daughters, Mrs. R. E. Montgomery, Mrs. F. S. Pusey and Miss Anna Dodge; Mrs John A. Logan, and Miss Mary Logan Pearson, "the daughter of the society," by title. The costumes worn were quite simple, no attempt being made at display. In fact, there was an informality in all the details of the reception, so that all alike felt both welcome and at ease. The Dodge Light guards attended the rea body, in dress uniform, presenting a fine appearance.

Among the musical features of merit was some pleasing mandelin seles by Aaron Lythe son of as gallant a veteran as man. lowa ever sent forth-the late Major Lyman LAST EVENING AT THE OPERA HOUSE. There was an inspiring gathering at the opera house last evening. The patriotic festooning and twining of the national tricolors transformed the interior into a Fourth of July scene. Added to the decorations of the singe were two pieces of artillery, stacked muskets, battle flags, etc., while locking over the scene from the background were the faces of Washington, Grant and Lincoln. and about them were portraits of other distinguished patriots and leaders.

Seated upon the stage were the many promihents whose presence has made the meeting of the Army of the Tennessee such a notable The opera house was crowded with event. people and erthusiasm. The band of the Second United States infantry gave a stirring opening to the exer-cises. Rev. Dr. Askin offered a prayer, crowding a good deal of reverent thought into a few sentences, and clothing them with his usual effective rhetoric. The few momeats of quiet was in strange contrast with the next number on the program, this being the reveille by Wall McFadden's drum corps, the reveille by Wall McFadden's drum corps, which, as General Dodge explained, was all there was left of the drum corps of the Fourth Iowa, which led forth a company from Council Bluffs into the field of battle. The drum corps called forth enthusiastic applause, and it was almost a dead heat between the drums and the crowd as to which could make the most naise.

which could make the most noise. The Dudley Buck quartet of Council Bluffs rendered "Comrades in Arms" in an admirable manner. Governor Jackson was given a round by the enthusiastic audience as he stepped to the front to deliver the address of welcome. It front to deliver the address of welcome. It was one of his excellency's must excellent, abounding in bright bits of eloquence. His words of welcome in behalf of the great state of Iowa were well enosen and nicely fitted into well rounded sentences, but when he came to memories of the past and the touching allusions and warm tributes to the great leaders of the Army of the Tennesser each tribute, each mention of a name was met with a response by the audience which ripped the dainty gloves of my fair lady and brought the blood into the old cal-louses of the horny-handed. He spoke of Rollins and Blair, of McPherson, and then of Logan, at which the crowd fairly shook the lights, and the concentrated gaze of so many hundred pairs of eyes sent the color many hundred pairs of eyes sent the color into the fair face of Mrs. Logan, who was one of the observed of all observers seated upon the stage. Then Governor Jackson gracefully recalled Sheridan, and following formation. his name came that of Sherman, when there was another enthusiastic outburst. It was the tribute to Grant, however, which was the climax of his eloquent address and of the manifest enthusiasm. It seemed that the hands would never stop their clapping and the voices their shouting. All eyes were fixed upon Colonel Fred Grant, and he had to undergo the ordeal through which Mrs.
