

friends on the other side we say, 'You have allowed your machine to be taken into bad and unskillful hands.' In reply they virtually say, 'We have no right to tell you how to vote.' We say in conclusion: 'We claim the same right as you and the same discretionary powers. That is all.'

Judge Holcomb quoted from Thomas Jefferson to show that today the independent party was in the majority. Jefferson was willing to accord to every citizen of the United States. That was the sum of independent doctrine. They asked only that this government be administered in behalf of the greatest good for the greatest number, and that it be done in accordance with the will of all the people. No person could honestly say that if this doctrine were carried out it would injure any one, republican, democrat or popular.

FIGHT WITH MONOPOLY.

Because of course of conduct in the present administration of this government, it was apparent that his friends on the other side had drifted away from safe moorings. They seemed no longer able to come back to the fundamental principles of good government. Unwise laws had grown up, and the people had been led to believe that it had been found that the people were now engaged in a struggle of industry against capital. Upon one side is found a corporate monopoly battling against the wise and just lesson taught by Justice to the effect that the individual should not be injured by his more powerful neighbor.

The struggle would always go on. It was inevitable. But it lay with the people to regulate these matters. It was with them to say when it became too burdensome, and it was their God-given right to correct it. And that contest was before the American people today.

The speaker quoted from a writer in the Century who said that the wealth of this country was now concentrated in the hands of a few, as follows: Twenty-five thousand men controlled one-half of the wealth of this country; 250,000 controlled all the other wealth, and in thirty years, that 250,000 would be reduced to fifteen thousand. These control a majority of the dollars and cents in that country. All this would be brought about by man's stupidity, selfishness and greed. The right of man to earn a living should be protected.

Judge Holcomb quoted at length from the words of Dan Cameron, uttered in the United States senate, concerning the silver question. As the richest man in the senate, since the death of Leland Stanford, Mr. Cameron was placed in a position as being alarmed at the present magnitude of the struggle between gold and silver. It was the opinion of this eminent senator that something must be done, and that immediately, to check the encroachments of the banks and the moneyed classes. The speaker was not reading from a newspaper, but words uttered in the United States senate by a man who had given the subject deep study and careful attention. On the other hand, the opponents of the independent republicans and democrats, as far as possible, did nothing to check the silver question. They were in default as to what particular field they occupied. (Applause.)

The speaker's eloquent friend, Hon. W. J. Bryan, advocated this important silver question, in and out of season. Republicans claimed that he was not reading from a newspaper, but words uttered in the United States senate by a man who had given the subject deep study and careful attention. On the other hand, the opponents of the independent republicans and democrats, as far as possible, did nothing to check the silver question. They were in default as to what particular field they occupied. (Applause.)

OPPOSITION OF NEBRASKA VOTERS.

Judge Holcomb said that he had not intended to discuss national issues, but had, perhaps, been led astray through the earnestness of his convictions.

He desired to talk candidly with the people of South Omaha; to advise them to see to it that no legislation should be convened to legislate against their interests. They should be their duty to see that the next session after election was formed for no special class, but to meet the views of all.

It should be their duty to see that a check was placed upon the corrupting influence and intimidation in Nebraska, which would elect men to office who would not make a sufficient number to their own personal good.

They should carefully see to it that every cent be administered in the interest of every citizen, whatever every laborer, farmer, manufacturer and citizen in the state. When they subordinated this great cause, they subordinated everything that served to make an honest government and incorruptible executive.

Their duty, then, was to call in all their forces to make a barbed-wire fence around the people of South Omaha. Shall this prediction come true? Such a capital is placed above labor? Such an adjustment is wrong. There is no party so willing to place capital as the independent party, and labor should not swing to the right or left, but should pendulum, side by side. Nor should there be any legislation against the interests of any industry in Nebraska, and the humblest laborer should have his God-given rights.

STATE'S REAL ENEMIES.

The speaker alluded to the cry of "War on Nebraska's monetary interests." But who, he demanded, were making this war? According to the report of Governor Crouse, the state treasury had already been depleted to the amount of $65,000. That is, there were outside warnings to that amount now drawing 7 per cent per annum, and may be raised and expenses curtailed. Republicans in favor of prosperity were willing to tax the people to death to secure it. (Applause.) There had been $226,000 lost in the Capital National bank. They were now before the state, promising more reform—more economy. But they would conduct the plans of the future in the past—and no better.

The issue now before the people was a question of good or bad government. What kind of government do we want in the future? On the 6th of November next the people of this state should stand forth delegated with all the powers a sovereign could confer. No influence of any kind should affect the sovereignty except a voter's conscience.

Grants County Democracy Two Congressmen for the Sake of Harmony.

NEW YORK DEMOCRATS PATCH UP A PEACE

Ex-President Harrison, Governor McKinley and Chauncey Depew Billed for Speeches by the Republicans—Stevenson and Carlisle for the Democrats.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—This has been a day of conferences among the democratic leaders with a view to straightening out the tangles resulting from the nomination of factional democratic candidates in this city and Brooklyn. Senator Hill addressed himself to this task early this morning and had the energetic aid of Senator Faulkner, chairman of the democratic congressional committee, who came over from Washington last night. The latter was the active mediator in the negotiations. Private conferences were held with Senator Faulkner by Mayor Gilroy and Police Commissioners Marin, representing Tammany, and ex-Mary Grace and Francis Scott, who ran for mayor against Grant in 1892, on the reform ticket, representing the Tammany democracy. They agreed to agree upon a policy of concession. Terms of compromise, it is announced, are practically decided upon by which the knots will be cut and the dems united on single congressional candidates in the district. All that remains to be done is to get the support of the county. The Tammany delegation, which had been sent to the city, has withdrawn its candidates in the others. The indications at headquarters point the withdrawal by Tammany. Sen. J. Dan Bankhead, of the Tammany and J. C. Carlisle, DeWitt Warner, Robert Monroe, and ex-Congressman Dunphy are mentioned as in the negotiations.
