Some days ago the members of the executive committee of the people's party got to gether and pulled down a portion of the legis-lative ticket which was put up at the regular convention of that party. In addition to this the name of H. G. Bell, the people's party candidate for county attorney, was dropped from the list, the idea being to do a little fusing all along the line. Soon after this some of the members in the rank and file pose of determining upon a line of action they concluded to put into the political field authority to fill vacancies upon the ticket and in which all others are represented. Stronger they were not entitled to be designated by the name of candidates of the party.

The petitions and the protests all went to County Clerk Sackett, who yesterday handed down the following opinion in the premises:

In the maiter of the objections of E. E. Thomas, James Harrigan and H. G. Bell to petitions of Charles Johnson, Michael Nelson, Augustus Payne and Avery A. Perry, and the same relators objecting to the petition of George F. Wittum:

e petitions objected to have been legally filed in this office and are in apparent con-formity to the provisions of the statute governing the nomination of candidates for office The objections thereto are in proper form and have been duly filed within the time specified by law.

It is contended therein that these candidates not having been placed in nomination "by any convention, caucus, primary meeting or the name of the "peoples independent party" upon the official ballot.

In the absence of any decision upon the estion I am of necessity to be guided wholly by the language of the statute and a determination thereof involves simply the construction to be placed upon its provisions. I find that section 5 of the act known as ie "Australian Ballot Act" says: "Candidates for public office may be nominated otherwise than by convention, committee or primary meeting, in the manner following: A certificate of nomination containing the name of a candidate for the office to be filled. with such information as is required to be given in certificates provided for in section 3 of this act, shall be signed." etc. "Such certificates may be filed as provided for in ction 4 of this act in the same manner and with the same effect as a certificate of nomination made by a party convention, committee or primary meeting. Section 3 provides as follows: "The certificate of nomination, which shall be in writing, shall contain the name of the office for which each person is nominated, the name and residence of each person, and if in city the street, number of residence and blace of business, if any, and shall design nate, in not more than five words the party principle which such convention, com-

If the language of section 5 means any-thing it means that the certificate of nomi-nation therein provided for must contain the name of the candidate and the information set forth above, which is all the "informa-tion required to be given in a certificate" by the provisions of section 3, and includes the party or principle represented.

It is not, in my judgment, the intention of the statute to give any political party the monopoly of designating who of the members of that party are to be permitted to be candidates for office, otherwise the pro-visions of section 5 are of no force and effact, but for the very reason that political parties are too often dominated by elements and combinations which prevent the nomination of those men who are best qualified for the position sought to be filled and who will be accorded the support of the best element of citizens in the community in which they are to run for office provision has been made that they may be nominated otherwise than by convention, and to say that a can-didate for office under these conditions. although he may be an excellent man, mus lay axide his political convictions and brand himself a counterfeit is manifestly not in barmony with the genius and spirit of a form of government which seeks to secure the "greatest good to the greatest number.

To place such a construction upon the language of the statute may be inimical to the interest of "political parties," but it is certainly in harmony with the greater interthe people at large, whose welfare considered of paramount importance to that of any political party.

The objections are therefore overruled.

Mr. Schurz began by telling his hearers he was there as a private citizen, not engaged in active politics, to tell them why he thought David B. Hill should not be elected governor of the state of New York and Everett Wheeler deserved support.

"There is in this municipality," said Mr. Schurz, "a great struggle going on which is to decide whether the city of New York shall be swned by the inhabitants thereof or by Tammany hall. It has long been popularly believed that Tammany hall is a nest of rapacious freebooters. Recent disclosures of corruption, blackmall, robbery, of vice and crime, planned and protected for revenue; of terrorizing, of cruel oppression practiced upon the poor, the weak and the helpless, have gone far beyond popular expectation. Some days ago J. M. Coats and C. A. Jacobson were nominated by petition as candidates for the state senate, but yesterday both of these gentlemen concluded that they would not enter the race, and filed petitions with the county clerk asking and demanding that their names be withheld from the official ballot, which is ready to go to the hands of the printer.

When the people's party convention was held in this city James Callahan was nomi-nated as the assessor from South Omaha precinct. On October 24 Mr. Callahan informed the county clerk by messenger he was not a candidate for the honor. information did not reach its destination the legal way and there was a refusal to file the withdrawal. Whisky in Bond Cannot Be Taken on Processes from State Courts.

OPINION BY ATTORNEY GENERAL OLNEY

Another Stumbling Block in the Way of the South Carolina Dispensary Law-Manufacturer Alone Can Take it Out of Bond.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29 .- The attorney general today rendered an opinion on the South Carolina dispensary case presented by Governor Tillman, in which he sustains the opinion of the Treasury department, holding that the state has no authority in law to enter government bonded warehouses for the purpose of seizing whisky declared by the state law to be subject to confiscation. In eral says; "The legal status of distilled liquors in a bonded warehouse of the United eral says: States and under the control of the collecto of internal revenue is definitely settled and stated by section 934 of the revised statutes of the United States, which declares that all property taken or detained by any officer of other person under authority of any revenue law of the United States shall be irreplevin able, and shall be deemed to be in the cus tody of the law and subject only to orders and decrees of the courts of the United States having jurisdiction thereof. It cannot be held, as has been suggested, and perhaps might well be, that since the tariff act of 1894 the taxes due on distilled liquors in a United States bonded warehouse can be paid only by the distiller. Whether that be so or not, a tender of such taxes by a sheriff is necessarily ineffectual as against statute above quoted, since it is beyond the power of an internal revenue collector to accept it and thus nullify the provisions and define the policy of a statute which aims to absolutely exempt such liquor from the process of a state court. Such tender, while for the reason stated the collector is incom petent to accept, must be also ineffectual because no officer of South Carelina has been given the right or power to make it, the leg-islation of South Carolina not authorizing any

No Farthquake News from Argentins. WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.-Dr. Zeballos, the Argentine minister here, has received no report from his government of earthquakes in the provinces of San Juan and Rioja. He is hopeful, therefore, that they have not reached the dimensions of a disaster, as those cities are among the most prosperous in the country. A little over 100 miles to the south of the city of San Juan, capital of the prov ince of that name, is Mendoza. In 1861 Mendoza was a thriving city of 28,000 inhabitants, but was utterly destroyed in that year, only about 2,000 of the inhabitants escaping death in the catastrophe. Mendoza and San Juan are almost equi-distant from the great active volcano of Aconcagua. regions in the plains along the foot of the Andes are all subject to frequently recurring arthquakes, and the buildings in the cities ave to undergo constant repair from the amage by earthquakes. San Juan and Rioja are important eitles, the latter being the enter of the wine industry. The two provices are devoted to fruit raising, canning and wine making.

windm'll. Figuring on Erlesson's Horse Power. WASHINGTON, Oct. 29 .- It will be several days before the exact horse power developed by the torpedo boat Ericsson can be known. The engineer and officers who con-ducted the trial have brought a large number of indicator cards, taken on the run, to the Navy department, and have begun their calculations to ascertain the total horse power. The engines were designed for about 1,800 or 2,000 horse power, and it is believed that they met the expectation of the designers.
