John R. Black will attend the transmississippi congress at St. Louis on the 26th as delegate from the Board of Supervisors of the season, and the Blaffites, of course, remember that in sizing up the eleven. Individual players, of course, however, strong, cannot make as strong a team as edifices in the United States. The art museum and the Massachusetts School of can those who, while inferior, have the advantage of thorough discipline. In the last game with Creighton, though, a marked imfamous Common and the retail business conprovement was noted, and the game was wen solely by superior team work.

Creighton college next jostled elbows with the locals, and the game with this team was the prettiest seen on the home grounds. A year before the teams had struggled for ninety long minutes without scoring, and this game was really a continuation of the other. The first half ended with a clean score, the locals missing it by relying entirely on end runs. Once Creighton had the ball within half a yard of Council Bluffs' goal line, and then lost its only opportunity to score. The locals made a fine rally, took the ball away from the visitors on downs, rushed it through the center for five, then ten yards, and a pretty end run took the ball back to the cen-

A couple of weeks ago the boys wandered down to Nebraska City, and were nicely taken in to the tune of 22 to 6. The team was demoralized by the absence of some of the regular players and the inability of the captain to play. In addition, they claim they were not treated fairly by the crowd, which obstructed their plays, and by the umpire and referee from Nebraska City.

Saturday the Creighton team was defeated on the Omaha Y. M. C. A. grounds by 6 to 4. The victory was won solely by the team work of the locals, as their opponents averaged at least fifteen pounds the heavier.

Council Bluffs has a heavy center in Blanchard, Zinc and Aitchison, weighing 167, 185 and 176, respectively. Otherwise the line is very light, averaging only 150. The backs average 135, and the team 155.

Backs average 135, and the team 155.

There isn't much to Captain Ben Sawyer, the full back, but what there is of him is clear grit. Sawyer is bothered with a constitutionally game knee, which even Phil King's old bandage can't always help. It was this knee that kept him from playing at Nebraska City, and it is still bothering im. He is a good and daring tackle, a fair runner, and, notwithstanding his grand stand hair, plays in close sympathy with the rest well this season for hard, conscientious play, and has made a good reputation. He is an-Gleason, at quarter, is sure on receiving and passing the ball, but is too light to be of much assistance to the men in the line, or in Interference. He has shown much im-provement in the season. Aylesworth, at left end, is the best posted man on the game in the eleven. He was not able to play in the earlier games of the season, and his absence weakened the team very much. The man who safely gets around Aylesworth's end must be a good runner and have good interference. Knox, at left tackle, has done fairly well so far, especially in team work, but he hasn't had the opportunity to distinguish himself by any especially brilliant plays. What he can do remains to be seen.

Burglars and Chtoroform.

Burglars sometimes chloroform their victims in the hope that their work will be the more easily and effectually done, says the Medical Record. As the plan is to ad- fur. minister the anaesthetic while the patient sleeps it is no wonder that failure attende the effort. Happily it is one of the most difficult feats to accomplish, requiring the greatest care and the highest degree of skill. By many good observers it is claimed skill. By many good observers it is claimed to be impossible. The latter may be looked upon as the rule, especially with novices. Hefore primary insensibility is obtained the victim awakes from the irritation of the inhaled vapor, whence force is necessary for the completion of the purpose. In the mean-

Taking all the chances, however, chloroform in the hands of a burgiar should be considered as dangerous to his victim as a club, an ax or a bullet, and its administration should be punished to that extreme limit of penalty which is due to the employment of other murderous measures.

In the second half the locals held their antagonists very nicely, and the game was much closer. A week later eleven of the young lawyers of town undertook to give the High school team a little exercise in twenty-five minute halves, and most admirably succeeded. The attorneys, who had a number of college men in their ranks, wen by a score of 4 to 0. This naturally disgusted the High school element, as the year before the lawyers had been beaten 6 to 0. ATTENDED HIS OWN FUNERAL.

How a Drummer Reached Home to Find Another's Body Being Buried for His. Two drummers had scraped an acquaintance in a train, says the New York Herald. Both had told stories of experiences, when one asked: "Did you ever attend your own funeral?"

"Why, no," replied the other. "Well, I have. It happened this way. I was in Buffalo three years ago, and telegraphed my firm in Connecticut that I would take a certain train for home that Luckily for me I changed my plans at the last moment and did not leave, some business having cropped up that would require my presence there for a few more days, and I telegraphed my firm accordingly. That train was smashed up in a collision, and a large umber of persons were killed.

"I arrived at my home four days later, just as a funeral procession was leaving it. For a moment I was too astonished to move, but finally mustered up sufficient courage to ask a bystander whose funeral it was. What was my amazement to learn that it was my own. 'Do you live in New York?" "Yes, sir. I have lived here all my life."
"Ah, poor man! I don't see how I can help you, then. If you had been a nonresident, I could have asked you to dine with me at the club."

He Saw the Man After All.

At one of the Louisville theaters the other evening, says the Courier-Journal, a dapper, well dressed young man was seated with a couple of society girls in a front seat in the parquet. As the curtain went down after the second act he was observed to grow rest-less and to cast anxious glances toward the entrance. Suddenly an usher came dashing down the aisle, conspicuously waving a note in his hand, which he delivered to the gen-'leman in question. The latter opened it knotted his eyebrows seriously and handed it to his lady companions for inspection Then, seizing his hat, he hastened back the door. When he re-entered the theater the door. When he re-entered the theater a few minutes later, wiping his mustache, with wear, and he had a hungry (and especially the handkerchief, observant ones among the thirsty) look in his eye as he approached audience quietly nudged each other and re-
