THE OMAHA DAMLY BREE TRIBAY, NOVEMBER 30,

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

"In Mizzoura," the play by Augustus

Thomas, with which Mr. Nat C. Goodwin will open his engagement at the Boyd this vening, is a charming sketch of southern life, which has been pronounced by the press and public of New York and Chicago as fully equal, if not superior, to "Alabama," the work which made the fame of the author. The story is a strong one of serious interest, and, in this respect, "In Miszoura" is quite unlike any play in which Mr. Goodwin has ever been seen here. His character, Jim Radburn, a Pike county deputy sheriff, involves much dramatic as seputy sheriff, involves much dramatic as well as comedy work on the part of the actor, and has compelled him to make a wide departure from his familiar stage methods. In making this departure he has achieved the success of his theatrical career and shown that he is as able to arouse the tear of sympathy as to prevoke the laughter of an audience. He has established his claim to a versatility which has characterized few actors of the modern or ancient stage.

and shown himself to be an artist of wonder ful resources. It is elaborately staged and the company interpreting it is unusually atrong for the support of a star. "In Miz-zoura" will be presented here in the same careful manner as in New York and Chicago and no doubt the verdict of the two cities will be endorsed by the playgoers of Omaha.

At the matinee tomorrow afternoon Mr. Goodwin will present Henry Guy Carleton's fine comedy, "A Gilded Fool." At the even-fine comedy, "A Gilded Fool," At the even-ing performance Mr. Goodwin will appear in a double bill, the evening's entertainment opening with "David Garrick" and closing
