George Ruff, the sexton of Wyuka cemetery, testified to having covered up the coffin when the burial took place, and that he had first lifted his private mark on the grave on the Sunday following the Thursday on which the burial took place.

The further hearing of testimony was adjourned until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

PREFER MUSTACHE TO MUSIC

Rubenstein Thought Teachers Should Not Waste Their Time on Ladies.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—William Steiny has contributed some of his personal recollections of Anton Rubinstein to a musical journal, which will be published tomorrow.

"On" day Mr. Rubenstein came to me bearing in his arms a large bag of gold and silver. He then told me that having heard in Europe that the majority of the people in America were 'rascals' and that their paper currency in most instances was not good, he had exacted in his contract that his money should be paid to him in coin, semi-monthly in advance.

"Before he left New York for his tours through the country he called at Steinway hall one afternoon about 5 o'clock for his mail. A bulky registered letter had come from him and it contained letters from his children, a long letter from his wife and newly taken photographs of his family.

"Meanwhile it had grown late and everything was closed for the day. Four other musical gentlemen whom he personally knew came some time later and he had to be set down at the grand Steinway hall to play for us. Twelve o'clock at night found us there spellbound, for such heavenly playing we had never heard before.

"Then and only then we realized what four celebrated men could do. Goethe, who wrote the poem of the 'Erl King,' Franz Schubert, who had composed the melody; Franz Liszt, who had transcribed it for the pianoforte, and Anton Rubinstein, who could play it.

"At the risk of being called sentimental I must say that on that memorable night it appeared to us as if we heard the voice of the little child, the clattering of the horse's feet, the wild entreaties of Erl King as plainly as if we had witnessed it all ourselves.

"On Wednesday, September 14, 1892, I visited Dresden and received an invitation from him to call and see him at his hotel. He received me at the grand Steinway hall and said: 'Now, friend Steinway, let us have a chat about America, the great country which I have never forgotten, and from which I receive almost weekly tokens of friendship.'

"After describing to him the immense progress in America toward appreciating really good music, and that especially to the education and culture of our American taste for music, I was staggered by Rubinstein's reply.

"Well, friend Steinway,' said he, 'I think ladies ought never to study music as an art. At least they ought not to take up the time of teachers who are able to teach and have more quickly than most the capacity to add. There is no question but that there are twenty musical ladies to one musical man, and my own experience is that they have more quickly than most the capacity to add.
