MAKING PROVISION FOR OLD AGE

Self-Sacrificing Devotion of the Most Powerful and Remarkable Character in the Public Life of England—Burns Sketched and Interviewed.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—(Special Correspondence of The Bee.)—"Oh, father, see how the police are knocking that poor young man about."

These words were spoken just eighteen years ago by Clapham Common by a fair-haired English girl returning home from church with her father Sunday morning.

A young fellow, dark, vigorous and athletic, was struggling in the midst of an excited mob to escape from the officers arresting him, for defending the rights of free speech in an extemporaneous harangue.

That a man who should have really accomplished so much in such a short time in the elevation of his fellow beings should have received his first education at the hands of the Common is not surprising to those familiar with the history of the chosen home of the "Low Church party" during its golden age.

Improving the Working Classes. "I am working," said Mr. Burns, "for the well being and welfare of the working classes."

REFORMING LONDON. "John Burns will not be able to make London as beautiful as the fair bride of the Adriatic."

gentle energies of artisans' dwellings of the Peabody type, but he would give light to London, create a soul under its ribs of death, and make an end of its misery...

When I rang the bell of the modest brick cottage on Lavender Hill it was answered by an elderly woman with a cordial word of welcome...
