

TIGERS LAID OUT FOR GOOD

Old Epa's Boys Ran Away from the Team Now Representing Princeton.

YALE WINS BY TWENTY-FOUR TO NOTHING

Trenchard's Men Were Unable to Withstand the Onslaught of Princeton's Forces—Accidents Few and Not Serious—Story of the Game.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—In spite of the rain and cold today, Manhattan field was as crowded as it usually is on Thanksgiving at the foot ball game between Yale and Princeton, and fully 20,000 within and without the grounds saw Princeton's colors dragged in the mud and snow for a score of 24 to 0.

It was a miserable day, cold and raw. Princeton was playing from the beginning to the end, and rarely was the ball in Yale's territory and then only for a few seconds, when it was either rushed out of danger or punted far down the field by Butterworth.

The rest of seven days had done wonders for the Yale men, and they went into the game as though the Harvard game had been a month away instead of only a week.

The improvement was remarkable, and especially in the case of Butterworth, for he bucked the line with his old-time vigor and was punting as well as at any time in his career.

In spite of the fact that the ball was slippery and hard to hold, little fumbling was seen on the Yale side and the men were generally sure catches.

On the other hand, Princeton did not seem to be doing anything worth while when it had the ball. Time and time again Butterworth's punts were missed by Poe, and once his fumble resulted in a touchdown.

The team that lined up against Yale was not for an instant to be compared with that of a year ago, and Yale did better. This tells the whole story.

ROARED BLUE AND STRIPES ALIKE. As a general thing about 15,000 spectators for both that wanted to see the game, the scramble for good standing room was great.

In half an hour after the gates were thrown open, the grounds were crowded. The Yale men were on the outside of a fringe of humanity which lined the whole field.

At 1 o'clock the Yale men were on the field in their blue and stripes uniforms. Everybody who could had hoisted an umbrella, and as eighteen inches of rain had been given to each occupant of a seat, it was manifestly impossible to get out of the umbrellas.

Down on the field there was a sextuple fringe of umbrellas, up on the bleachers overlooking the grounds there was a mass of umbrellas, and the air was filled with a great place to view a game from a distance.

BOB ISOM USED HIS KNIFE

Crack Lightweight Jockey of the Coast Fatally Slain by a Rival.

TROUBLE BEGAN IN THE HOME STRETCH

Quarrel Continued in the Dressing Room Till the Cutting Commenced—Talent Gets a Setback of the Most Pronounced Type.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—Young Bob Isom, the crack lightweight colored jockey, furnished the sensation of the day at the races today by stabbing Robert Combs, another jockey, in the back and inflicting a serious, if not fatal, wound.

Isom rode San Luis Obispo, Combs and Isom rode San Luis Obispo, Combs and Isom rode San Luis Obispo, Combs and Isom rode San Luis Obispo.

Isom talked back and Combs proceeded to carry his threat into effect. Felix Carr, another colored jockey, handed Isom a knife, and the boy plunged it into Combs' back.

Isom was arrested and Carr was also taken into custody. Isom once out a jockey in Chicago. The races were exciting, but everything that happened today, crack jockey Isom, was the only favorite to win during the day.

WHERE DOCTORS CARVE THE DEAD TO LEARN OF THE LIVING

ALL DONE IN THE INTEREST OF SCIENCE

SIGHTS AND FEELINGS IN THE DISSECTING ROOM OF A MEDICAL COLLEGE WHEN STUDENTS PRACTICE UPON SUBJECTS WHICH DIE

Their Way to the Picking Vats

Man's usefulness does not always end with death, nor does every corpse return to the traditional dust. Even the most worthless man in life becomes valuable after death—to medical students at least.

There are several places in Omaha where dead bodies are put to scientific use. These places are the dissecting rooms, and are generally connected with some of the medical colleges, and occasionally a student gets a "subject" that is particularly interesting and takes it to his own office for dissection.

A great many bodies are annually disposed of in Omaha for scientific purposes, but the supply is said to be scanty, and in fact it is alleged that Iowa colleges send to this state for "subjects." Sometimes these bodies are not secured through the usual channels, but are secured through the aid of a reporter to public charity, and pauper and a sensational story of grave robbery comes to light, but as a general thing this is too grotesque and untrue to be believed.

A few reporters managed to secure admission to the dissecting room of one of Omaha's medical schools on night recently, where he was permitted to witness the work in full operation, of cutting up corpses. The room was a large, airy, well-lighted building, and all outside appearances there was nothing going on inside. Upon opening the door a strong flood of light poured forth, as well as a strong odor of carbolic acid.

HERE'S WHERE THEY WORK. All over the room were long, narrow tables on which were the "stiffs." The students worked over and leaned on these bodies with the utmost familiarity. The different families of the anatomy were scattered in all directions of each. Over in one corner a Japanese student was studying the brain of a subject, while a colored man was learning the various parts of the eye.

Soon other students appeared, and in a short time some one was working on each of the dozen corpses in the room. A stout, burly fellow was working on a subject, and by having the location of the internal organs outlined upon the skin. A couple of first-year students were given a chance to carve these organs. The room was a busy scene.

PREPARING THEM FOR THE KNIFE. The reporter explained that when a "stiff" was brought to the college for dissection a half pound of arsenic was injected into the body. This was done to keep the muscles and arteries and veins, making them assume a natural appearance. He said that this reporter had seen a student dissect a body that had been dead for three or four days, and that the muscles were as firm as those of a living man.

HIRSCHFIELD KNOCKED OUT

Judge McConnell Decides the Suit for Annulment of Marriage Against Him.

VERDICT A POPULAR ONE AT FARGO

Crowd in the Court Room Heeded the Judge's Admonition and Kept Quiet, but Those Outside Held a Jubilation.

FARGO, N. D., Dec. 1.—The Hirschfeld case is ended and the young bride and the Montana millionaire has been declared by a court of equity to be a legal wife. Judge McConnell gave the decision denying the annulment of the marriage contract immediately at the conclusion of the arguments of the counsel. The decision was given orally, the court stating that he did not care to point out that much of the testimony that was unworthy of credence. The plaintiff's claim, he said, that two armed men forced him to accompany them to the office of a justice of the peace, where they were married under duress, must be substantiated so clearly that there was little room for doubt, or it must be shown that the plaintiff's mental condition at such a time was such that he was incapable of making a contract.

There is no doubt but that surgery and medical attention would have been given to the plaintiff, arrived from Helena last night. This morning he was put on the stand and denied the testimony of Mrs. Hirschfeld as to the facts of the case. He testified that on the day Aaron left her, he said Aaron had left in the morning and not in the afternoon as defendant testified. Dr. E. M. Darrow, president of the board of insanity commissioners, gave expert testimony for defense on the plaintiff's own witness testified to having been engaged by Hirschfeld, and this agency was not a part of the case. The jury returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, who came here as a witness for plaintiff, but testified for the defense. Judge McConnell also decided not to admit in evidence the telegram of Dr. Hirschfeld to Helena and Fargo for the reason that it was desired to close the case today and to secure the telegrams would require several days.

WALLER WON THE LONG RACE

Rides Almost 435 Miles in Twenty-Four Hours at Madison Square.

IRELAND WILL NOT REPLY

He Has Nothing to Say in Answer to Bishop McQuaid's Attack.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The big five days international races closed tonight. The five days have passed with a quiet, unexciting, but good racing has been the rule. The twenty-four hour race, in which twenty-four men started, was to close at 9:30 o'clock, and the audience was good at that time.

Waller won the long race, riding almost 435 miles in twenty-four hours at Madison Square. He was the only man to complete the race, and he did so with a good time.

IRELAND WILL NOT REPLY. He has nothing to say in answer to Bishop McQuaid's attack. The Irish people are not interested in the attack, and they will not reply to it.
