MUST PROTECT THEMSELVES

St. Louis and San Francisco Bondholders Issue a Statement.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE REORGANIZATION

For the Best Interests of All Unity of Action is Essential - Depositors of Bonds Incur No Financial Liability.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The committee formed for the protection of the 4 per cent consolidated mortgage bonds of the St. Louis & San Francisco railroad, consisting of Francis Peabody, Jr., of Boston and J. Kennedy Todd and Frederick Whittridge of this city, state the situation in regard to the bonds is as follows:

The mortgage was intended to secure $50,000,000 of bonds to be issued for the purpose of raising the mortgage. Of that amount $14,000,000 have been issued, of which $4,000,000 were exchanged for the 7 per cent stock of the St. Louis & San Francisco company and Atlantic & Pacific second mortgage bonds. The remainder were issued, so the committee is informed, directly to the Atchafalaya company to the extent of $1,771,100 in payment of the floating debt of the St. Louis & San Francisco company, and a further amount of $5,000,000 for the guarantee by the Atchafalaya company of the entire issue of $50,000,000. The balance of the bonds so obtained by the Atchafalaya company were purchased for certain Atlantic & Pacific bonds, leaving about $6,000,000 in the legal possession of the Atchafalaya company. Most of them are doubtless pledged. About $8,000,000 are therefore in the hands of the public here and abroad, of which the committee already represents a large number.

The committee considers it necessary to move before the board of directors in view of the approaching plan for the reorganization of the Atchafalaya company, and to co-operate with the legal proceedings contemplated with foreign holders who are working in harmony with this committee. To make such action effective it is desirable that as large a number of bonds as possible be deposited subject to the order of the committee under its plan. No liability is incurred by the bondholders who may assent to the plan except for the payment of 1 per cent for expenses.

MORE OUTRAGES REPORTED

Stories of Turkish Brutality Told by Refugees Coming In.

ATHENS, Dec. 7.—A further story of outrage by Turks has been told here by an eyewitness of the occurrence. An Armenian has just arrived in this city from Hadjin, an Armenian town, from which he escaped shortly after the outrage was perpetrated. Hadjin was a town of 5000 wooden houses situated near Marash. The refugees state that on the night of October 23 four Turkish officers and two gendarmes set fire to the town, using petroleum to cause the flames to spread to the houses. An Armenian named Garabed, who lived with his mother, witnessed the incendiaries at their work and tried to help. A Turkish official, who refused to permit any assistance, Garabed was seized by order of the officials and thrown into prison. Three days later Garabed was released and fled to the mountains of the village of Zeitun. Their fate is unknown.

FROM BEHIND THE CURTAIN

Part of the Performance the Public Are Not Familiar With.

ANOTHER VIEW OF 'THE BLACK CROOK'

Something About the Inner Workings of the Great Spectacular Which is Now on at the Hay-Theater.

There are thousands of people who see the "Black Crook" while sitting in the cushioned chairs of the parquet and dress circle of Boyd's theater, but there only a few, aside from the actors, who have any idea how the big spectacular production appears when watched from behind the scenes.

Back of the drop curtain there are all kinds of people, mortal and immortal, and a wealth of scenery, spangles, glitter and glory. Yesterday when a Bee man gained access to the stage at the Boyd there were devils and fairies, amazons and super flying around in what seemed to be an endless confusion. The canvas castles, trees and mountains slipped back and forth across the stage with an airy disregard, and here, there and everywhere at once a gentleman in black was coaching the ballet, managing the stage hands, engineering the innumerable electric wires, and a battery of living orders, and answering questions. He was concise, collected and cool calmness personified. When the seething crowd of queer looking beings and mixed up scenes was apparently at its worst, he drew back with a warning "hush!" and the scene was again a picture of peace and a moon silvered valley, silent and deserted, covered the stage.

BOYD MAY BUILD ONE

Has Under Consideration the Erection of a Popular Priced Theater Building.

EX-Governor James E. Boyd returned from Chicago yesterday morning, and stated to a reporter that he had been approached by several Omaha business men with a proposition to build a popular priced theater in Omaha, and was now busy considering the same. The governor said also that he had been strongly advised by prominent theatrical men to get involved in the theatrical business in Omaha; that management of the new and cheap priced theater would mean larger profits for both the resident and traveling companies; that the theater would be a public utility; that he had already had an investment of nearly $200,000 in theatrical property in Omaha, and had been in the business here for many years; that he was a safe one of a theater. They want a safe one of a theater.

AS GOOD AS THE BEST.

When the English government, a few years ago, began the construction of eight enormous battleships of 14,000 tons displacement, says Caseler's Magazine, the United States, following the construction of the construction of three battleships which were to carry the heaviest armor and most powerful ordnance. These vessels, the Indiana and Massachusetts, were ordered by the Messrs. Gresham and the Oregon, by the Union Iron works, are nearing completion. They are of 10,300 tons displacement, and are designed to successfully meet in battle the best ships of other nations.

The hull is protected by a belt of heavy Harveyized nickel-steel armor, seven and one-half feet thick, extending forward and around the bases of the armored redbuts. The belt is three feet above and four and one-half feet below the water line. Forward and abaft the belt are three-inch nickel-steel decks, sloping at the sides to four and one-half feet below the water. There is also an armored deck over the belt. Coal bunkers are protected over the belt, and belts of cellulose six feet thick are worked on the slopes of the armor deck forward and aft. Above the belt armor, and extending from redbut to redbut, the side is protected by five inches of armor. The vessel is cut up forward to add to the maneuvering power and enable her to readily disengage herself from the enemy after ramming.

Rising from the armored citadel, made by the eighteen-inch belt, are armored redbuts, seventeen inches thick, extending from the main deck three and one-half feet, giving an armored freeboard of fifteen feet two inches. These redbuts protect the turning and loading gear of the heavy 15-inch guns. The armor on the redbuts is four 13-inch guns, eight 8-inch guns, four 6-inch guns, six 1-pounder guns, two Gatlings and six torpedo tubes. This represents a weight of armor superior to that of any of the latest battleships laid down by other powers.

WANQUETED AT BILLINGS

Omaha Commercial Club Members Given a Royal Reception Last Night.

MONTANA DISPENSES TRUE HOSPITALITY

Visitors from Nebraska See Much to Marvel at and Hear Many Words of Encouragement—Ties that Bind Are Now Valuable.

BILLINGS, Mont., Dec. 7.—(Special Telegram)—A delegation of about twenty-five members of the Commercial club of Omaha arrived in Billings last night over the new line of the Burlington, which has recently been completed to this city. They were met at the station by a committee from the Business Men's club of Billings, and today has been devoted to entertaining the visitors. The delegates from Omaha, the great Yellowstone river valley, and were both surprised and pleased at all they saw. They were shown some of the finest and most productive ranches in the world, and are so pleased with Montana that they have decided to pay it a second visit soon.

When the Omaha jobbers ascertained the number and character of the business houses of this city they were brought to a full realization of the importance of Omaha in the completion of the Burlington to Montana. When told one business house alone in Billings paid annually $40,000 for railroad freight they could scarcely realize how a city of only 2,000 inhabitants could do such a large business.

Tonight the visitors were entertained in the handsome parlors of the Billings club, where a banquet was served, which, according to the verdict of the Omaha gentlemen, could not have been excelled in the Gate country. In the popping of champagne the Omaha and Montana gentlemen were both together by commercial ties which are sure to result to the mutual advantage of both cities.

After the banquet the guests were formally welcomed to Billings by Judge A. W. Millburn, chief justice of the Montana supreme court, and by the following Omaha gentlemen: A. B. Smith, assistant general freight agent of the B. & M.; C. F. Weller of the Richardson Brothers company; E. S. Brown & Co.; C. O. Daniel Farrell, Jr., of Farrell & Co.; Euclid Martin of Paolin, Orendorf & Co.; John S. Brady of McCord, Brady & Co.; Charles A. Coe of the Morse-Cox company; and George M. Tibbs of M. E. Smith & Co.

Judge Matheson, I. D. O'Donnell, one of the most successful ranchers in Montana, and Hon. Powell McCormick, also spoke, welcoming the visitors, but the speech of the evening was made by Hon. T. H. Carter of Helena, who was in Billings to attend to business in glowing terms the meaning and results of the binding together by bonds of steel the great states of Montana and Nebraska. At the close of his remarks the Omaha gentlemen gave three cheers and a tiger for Billings and Montana, which were responded to in kind by the members of the Billings club on behalf of Omaha and Nebraska.
