CIVIL SERVICE REFORMERS

Vigorous Campaign Now Being Inaugurated Throughout the Country.

CARL SCHURZ THE CENTRAL FIGURE

Made a Lengthy Address in Which He Condemned the Spoils System-Paid a

began with a secret session for the transac-

Carl Schurz, president of the league; Richard H. Dana, Boston; Henry Welch, New York; Mayor Walbridge, St. Louis; William Alken, Connecticut; Henry A. Richmond, exmember of the civil service commission, New York; Charles J. Benaparte, Baltimore; Judge William Dudley Foulke, Indianapolis; Charles M. O'Brien, Cleveland; J. C. Alton, Jamestown, N. Y. and William Potts, New York. Local civil service reformers were largely represented at both meetings.

The gathering is an exceedingly important one, for it has brought together distinguished advocates of good government from all over the country and practically marks the reopening of a vigorous civil service campaign opening of a vigorous civil service campaign throughout the land.

The evening service of the federation was held in Central Music hall, which was packed to the doors. The principal feature of the evening was the speech of Hon. Carl Schurz, who spoke as follows:

"The condition of things to be reformed is a obviously unreasonable, so flagrantly absurd and victous that we should not believe it could possibly exist among sensible people had we not become accustomed to its exist-ence among ourselves. The spoils system, that practice which turns the public office, high and low, from the public trust into objects of prey and booty for the victorious Lagrange, be called one of the greatest crimes in our history, if not the greatest. In the whole catalogue of our ills, there is none more dangerous to the vitality of our free

HOPED FOR MORE FROM QUINCY. "The observance of the four-year term aw relating to the presidents has most conclusively demonstrated from the point of view of the public interest the utter absurdity and victousness of the law itself Josiah Quincy, as first assistant secretary of state, having the consular appointments is charge, had during the first months of the present administration made an almost clean sweep of that branch of the service When speaking of Mr. Quincy's doirgs, I do when speaking of air. Quincy's usings, I do not mean to ignore the president's responsibility in authorizing what was done, bu Mr. Quincy, bearing the reputation of a friend of reform, was the official adviser an became the defender of it. I speak of him as such. I am sure I do him no injustice when I say that, in order to avoid the dan very of followings the ideas of the advanced. ger of following the ideas of the advanced civil service reformers, he followed the prac-tice of the most advanced spoilsmen, for no spoilsman in office has ever turned over the consular service from one party to the other with greater thoroughness and dispatch. "It was naturally assumed that an adminstration aspiring to the litle of a reform ad-ministration would, with regard to thos places, do what in 1888 the republican platform pledged the party and its candidate to do. How President Harrison failed to redeem that clear and emphatic pledge was at the time set forth by my lamented prede-cessor, George William Curtis—blessed b his memory—in words to which I have noth-ing to add. It was hoped President Cleve would abstain from changes in the serv ice not required by the public interest. But that hope has not, so far, been fulfilled. The interference of members of corgress with the appointing power has been largely to rated. It must not be overlooked, howing of the consular service, the chang-have, on the whole, been less rapid than under the preceding administration. The same may be said of the application of that rule by the postmaster general to the fourthclass postmasters. But the result of the proceeding, if further adhered to, will be-fore the close of the presidential term put all the offices concerned into the hands of the party in power. But the end of this administration is not yet and there are rea sons for hoping that its second half will be the most productive of good. CARLISLE HAS BEEN A SPOILSMAN. "As to the observance of the civil service law in the several departments of the national government, the Treasury department under Mr. Carlisle has, I regret to say, won an unenviable distinction. Beginning with an furnished the strongest proof of the necessity of putting the chiefs of division under the civil service rules. In this respect the Treasury department under Mr. Carlisle has conspicuously fallen below the standard ectment of the civil service law. In other actment of the civil service law. In other departments a very gratifying progress is to be observed, especially in the Postoffice department, which has been conducted by the postmaster general, Mr. Hissell, as to the observance of the law in a manner entitled to the highest eredit. On the whole, it must in justice be said that its shortcomings, notwithstanding it is President Cleveland's second administration, have materially advanced the reform cause.

The delegates arrived in large numbers this forenoon and went at once to the Commerce club. The business session was quite protracted and the visitors adjourned for luncheon shortly after 1 o'clock. The size of the audience was limited only by the seating capacity of the parlors.

Among the prominent men who were present at the opening of the convention were:

Let the will of the people be done, let it be done without a needless delay, and let the people's president lead in doing it. let the people's president lead in doing it. Then there will be no more spells and plunder; no more removals not required by public interest; no more appointments for partisan reasons."

The address was very warmly received, the speaker being interrupted at frequent intervals by enthusiastic applause.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave.
