mother of the pugilist, when he was carried tremendous force that it sounded as if the into the house, predicted that he would never recover, while his young wife grew hysterical in her agony. They sat by the side of the unconscious man and wept and prayed as only women can. His eyes had looked on them for the last time and he never opened his lips.

Between 2 and 7 o'clock this morning faithful watchers stoed by the dying pugilist's side hoping that his eyes would give some sign of consciousness. Medical science racked its brain in search of a remedy, however violent, that would quicken the pulse and set the brain to working. At 3 o'clock Dr. Finney thought Bowen had improved and at that hour he did not think that the fight would have a fatal termination. In reply to a re-quest from the chief of police, Dr. Finney sent a certificate saying that Bowen was It was a message of relief to Lavigne and Duffy and the seconds, who had been arrested when Bowen's condition first became alarming and who were prayerfully awaiting to hear that the unconscious puglisst had come back to life. "OH, ANDY, SAY SOMETHING."

The doctor remained with Bowen to the end. His wife also stood by his bedside. Just as the hands of the clock were creeping round to 7 Mrs. Bowen leaned over the bed and said, "Oh, Andy, say something to me." and her ears were strained to catch the Andy shivered and groaned, his frame shook and then without ever having come back to consciousness after Lavigne had landed he breathed his last and the record of a tragedy was written. As soon as Bowen died a handkerchief was tied gently about his face and a message was sent to the police station by the nearest telephone, notifying the officers of the death of the pugilist. The police station officials sent word to the coroner. The news of his death spread with great rapidity. Crowds immediately began to congregate about the Bowen home, and the newspaper men and friends of the dead pugilist, with his relatives, were permitted to view the remains dead man showed signs of the rough treatment that he had received. Those who saw the fight said that it was not so much the blow which Lavigne had struck prom blow which Lavigne had struck upon the jaw, but the concussion produced by his fall upon the flooring of the ring. Bowen's body isy on its back when a reporter saw it early today, and whatever wound there was on the back of the head was not visible. The lips were swollen and there was a tinge of purple about him, and his rather large e scemed somewhat larger than usual igh there was no strong sign of pain it. Lavigne had been ar-rested, with his party, and had s'ept little. expecting every moment to get news from the bedside of the wounded pugilist. Lav-igno was terribly shocked when ho heard the news, and expressed his profound sym-pathy for Bowen's wife. In answer to a question he said that he did not feel that he had been the direct cause of the death of the pugilist. In other words, the blow of the pugnish. In other words, the blow which he delivered on the jaw of the dead man had not been sufficiently forceful to have cartied with it fatal consequences. He said he believed that when Bowen fell that his head had struck the pine Bowen's death, but that the concussion had been caused. He was not only scrry for Bowen's death, but he was in puck approximation as to what was in much apprehension as to what uld become of himself in connection with fight, and how long it was likely that he would be kept in prison. Friends as-sured him that he would probably have no difficulty in obtaining his release after the usual formalities of the law had been compilled with, and that he need not fear for lack of friends and influence to help him out of his unfortunate dilemma. At 9 o'clock Lavigne and his party were that he has not here to be in the set to prepare themselves to be taken to the Third precinct station.

Had the stage been in this condition when Fitzsim-mons knocked Hall out there appears to be little doubt that Hall would have been fatally injured, and with such a circumstance fresh in their memory it appears almost unac-countable that the managers of the club club should have taken such a serious risk as that to be incurred by permitting men to fight on an unpadded floor. When the men faced each other for the eighteenth round it was apparent that the end of the fight was near. Bowen had re-ceived so many hard right-handers over the heart that he was weakened and groggy when he left his corner. He was game, how-ever, and walked mechanically toward his strong young adversary. Lavigne opened with a left jab on the nick, and though the blow was not a particularly hard one, it brought a look of anguish to the face of the thoroughly-beaten little man. His mouth was partially open, while his eyes wore a wild, frightened look. His cheeks were bruised and swollen and his lips were A cut over the left eye was the only color on his face. Howen was staggered to the ropes by an onslaught of his powerful fee. While there in a helpless condition and tryto clinch, Lavigne planted his left over the heart and crossing savagely with his right landed a terrible blow on the point of the jaw. Andy Bowen was born in this city in Peo-ruary, 1863. There were no incidents of spe-cial importance in his early life, but from his earliest youth he had always shown a prodilection for athletic sports, including base ball and sparring, and it was his ambition to become a fighter of note. He began his carcer as a pugilist when he was but 16 years old. Among those he has defeated are: Mike Murphy, John Wilson, Frank Perder, James Boyle, Jimmie Oliver in Chicago in nine rounds, Norton of Chicago in two rounds. Charlie Wilson in three rounds Tommy Ryan (light weight) in three rounds, Charlie Johnson in thirty-nine rounds, draw Billy Myer, twenty-eight rounds, and a second decision on a foul.
