Burial of John Huntington the Occasion of a Sensational Sermon.

DR. STEPHEN FHELPS ON THE TRAGEDY

He Defends the Good Name of the Young Man and Calls to Book Some Who Should Have Protected Him in His Need.

Seldom has such a crowd been seen in any church in Council Bluffs as filled the First Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon on the occasion of the funeral of John R. Huntington. The young man's great popularity, coupled with the sensational features of his taking off, had awakened almost an unprecedented excitement, and that genuine sorrow was felt at the sad event was evidenced by many tearful eyes throughout the service. Theasket was brought into the church by the pall bearers, while the organ pealed forth a dirge. It rested in front of the pulpit, surrounded by tributes of affection in the shape of a large number of magnificent floral designs.

After the choir of the church had sung "Abide with Me" and "Lead, Kindly Light," Dr. Stephen Phelps made an address in which he paid a beautiful tribute to the dead man's character. His text was: "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches," and he gave it as his opinion that the young man had, indeed, led a name that all the great ones of the world that week could not tarnish. He believed he was innocent of the crime of which he had been suspected, and although there was a deep mystery surrounding the whole affair, he comforted the grief-stricken relatives by the thought that while now they could only see through a glass darkly, they would one day see the strange design of Providence in bringing about the terrible event of last Sunday morning.

In a part of his remarks Dr. Phelps made some rather sensational utterances, and a dramatic way in which they were given caused a feeling to spread through the audience that came dangerously near indignation toward the men who are responsible for the young man's death, whoever they may be. "If there is any money missing," said he, "and that it is missing has not yet been proved, the hand lying at my feet grasping the money of this man, I will give it to you, sensitive to evil or imputations of evil. The shooting was not planned beforehand—it was born of a frenzy. Who is responsible for that frenzy? God? No, it was the man who answered. He felt the waves of frenzy stealing over him, and his eyes looked in vain from one to another of the group before him for help. These who should have been there to protect him had left him to fight his battle alone. If they had had any idea of the thoughts that were surging through his brain how willingly would they have said the word or done the deed that might have prevented the horrible event."

WHEN MEN ARE COOL. "They say he looked cool; men sometimes look the coolest when they are most wrought up. Twice I have been in the port of taking human life, but I never was cooler in my life. In the still, moving river there is a power not dreamed of in the laughing torrent."

"Why is it that business has come to the point where they must hunt our young men down? Responsibility demands a suitable return. Where thousands of dollars pass by the hands of our young men, with every temptation to crookedness held out before him, how can there be any justice in paying him only $45 a month? If the young man had not been breaking the sabbath under compulsion of his employers this shooting would not have taken place. Employers should stand by when their men are in trouble, and not leave them to merciless people who hold their positions because they are experts in the art of treading on the feelings of their fellow men."

As Dr. Phelps gave utterance to these sensational remarks the effect produced was almost electrical. With his hand upraised to heaven, every feature of his face showing the earnest conviction in his mind that what he was saying was the truth, it could almost have been imagined that he was calling down a curse upon the heads of the men who were responsible for the death of young Huntington. He himself, after the burning words had left his lips, seemed to feel that perhaps he had put his convictions in too strong language, for he said: "Why have I said all this? But the great audience showed by its rapid attention and earnest gaze that it sympathized even more than he knew. Among the floral tributes was one from the Citizens' bank, the Gate Ajar. After the choir had sung "Blest be the Tie that Binds," an opportunity was given to view the remains, and for fully half an hour the friends were passing in a procession about the casket. The body was taken to Fairview cemetery, followed by an imposing cortege.

HAPPY AS TURTLE DOVES.

Henry and Martha Gittings' Domestic Troubles Aired in Court. Sarah C. Peterson of Boomer township is suing her father, Henry Gittings, in the district court, for $800 wages which she claims are due her. She has already obtained a judgment, but the money itself has not seemed to materialize as fast as she wished, and yesterday she brought with both her father and stepmother, Martha Gittings, brought before Smith for an investigation as to their financial condition. The plaintiff in this suit lived with her father and stepmother for a number of years after she became of age, with the understanding that she was to receive $2 a week. After her account had run up to between $700 and $800, none of which had been paid, she began to want what was coming to her, but her father refused to pay it. To her amazement, she found on her way to Madison, Mo., that he had deeded all his property in Boomer township, amounting to $3,500 or thereabouts, to his wife, so that a judgment would not hold good for anything.

She is now seeking to have this deed set aside, and all her brothers are helping and sympathizing with her in her efforts. Mr. Gittings is a white-headed old man of 70 years, while his wife is some twenty years his junior. He has commended no fewer than three divorce suits against her during the past few years, and in one of them he declared that she was the devil incarnate. But he is living with her yet. On the stand yesterday she was surrounded by several witnesses that Mrs. Gittings had beaten her aged spouse with a poker until the blood oozed his face, and had frequently bitten him on the neck, which was covered with black and blue spots. The case had not been completed when the hour of evening adjournment came, and Mrs. Gittings will probably go on the stand again this morning.

Suing on Grandson's Bond.

A suit was commenced in the district court yesterday in the name of the State of Iowa to collect the sum of $500 from Dick Grandson and S. B. Wadsworth. A little more than two years ago the grand jury indicted Grandson and his pal, Sober Burns, for robbing the toll gate keeper at the east end of the motor bridge. Burns is now serving a sentence in the penitentiary, but Grandson was more fortunate and succeeded in putting up a $500 bond, with Wadsworth as surety. He was turned loose, and when the case came up for trial no Grandson appeared. He was heard of no west, and Sheriff Hazen traveled about 6,000 miles in the effort to get hold of him. He went to Butte City and Silver Bow, Montana, Cheyenne, Denver and half a dozen other places, and although he found that Grandson had been there just before him, he could not get within three days of him. Finally he lost all trace of him. Now the state is trying to make the bond good.

The jury in the district court, before which was tried the $10,000 damage suit of William Grimmelman against the Union Pacific Railway company, came in shortly after midnight Wednesday night with a verdict of $5,000 for the plaintiff. It is understood that an effort will be made to have the supreme court reverse the decision once more.

Bank Burglars Failed.

PERRY, Ia., Dec. 20.—(Special Telegram.)—A bold but unsuccessful attempt was made early this morning by burglars to blow open the safe in the treasurer's office of Dallas county at Adel. The office is located in a building separated from the court house. The iron shutters were removed with a crowbar. The burglars had succeeded in drilling part secretary and treasurer, George Van Housen, at the time they were discovered were endeavoring to remove a broken drill. They had previously taken a hand car and placed it in a convenient place, which they hoped to make their escape. No clues have yet been obtained. The safe contained about $10,000.

SIXTEEN YEARS IN COURT.

Celebrated Jones County Calf Case Concluded in Iowa. DES MOINES, Dec. 20.—(Special Telegram.)—The supreme court today filed a decision in the celebrated Jones county calf case, which has been a source of litigation for so many years in this state. The case this time is entitled Robert Johnson Miller et al, appellants, Herman Keller, defendant. It has a history that dates back to an action for malicious prosecution begun in Jones county, May 23, 1878, against E. Miller, David Miller, George W. Miller, Alie Miller, John Foreman, S. D. Porter and Herman Keller. The action was against all of the defendants jointly, and on every trial, except as otherwise stated, judgment was jointly rendered against all of the defendants. The first trial was in 1878, and was jointly made by all of the defendants. The case was first tried in Boone county, and the jury disagreed. The second trial was in the same county and the verdict was against the appellants and against all the defendants.

The verdict was set aside and a third trial had in Boone county, Iowa, and in the same verdict as the last named. This verdict was set aside and a fourth trial had in the district court of Boone county, Iowa, where the same verdict was rendered. On appeal to the supreme court the case was reversed. The case was then brought up in the circuit court of Boone county, Iowa, and a verdict found for the plaintiff and against all the defendants as before. On appeal to the supreme court the case was reversed and the sixth trial of the case was had in the district court of Boone county, Iowa. This trial the jury was directed to find for the defendant, Herman Keller. The jury returned a verdict in favor of Keller, for $1,000 in favor of Keller, against the appellants. The appellants, other than Keller, filed a motion for arrest judgment and for judgment against Keller on the grounds that special findings were in conflict with the general verdict. The court overruled the motion, and the judgment was affirmed. The case has cost many thousands of dollars and the original parties to the suit are nearly all dead.

Sad Plight of an Aged Iowa Man.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Dec. 20.—(Special Telegram.)—William Jayne passed through this city today on his way to Madison, Mo., where he is searching for the old gentleman several days. He is 67 years old and recently became demented as the result of a paralytic stroke. Last Wednesday he wandered away from his home at Marengo, and striking the Iowa city road, walked forty miles, until taken care of by people in his vicinity. Being unable to speak, he could furnish no clues for his identification and was taken to the Johnson farm, where he was held until he was found by his sons. During his journey he had been set upon by train robbers who robbed him of his money and clothing, substituting their own rags. When found he was in his stocking feet and had no other clothing, owing to exposure and the long walk, is critical, and it is doubtful if he recovers.

Supreme Court Decisions.

DES MOINES, Dec. 20.—(Special Telegram.)—The following opinions were filed in the supreme court today: H. B. Brown against Davis, Sharkey and John Jones, affirmed. Seed, executor and guardian, appellant, against the Grand Lodge of Iowa, Ancient Order of United Workmen, Bellevue district, affirmed. Jane Cook, contestant, Delaware district, affirmed. James H. Frost, appellant, against B. P. Heintz et al, Muscatine district, reversed.

Desperate Attempt to Commit Suicide.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Dec. 20.—(Special Telegram.)—Mrs. M. H. Chase attempted to commit suicide this evening by taking carbolic acid, but the bottle was taken from her before she succeeded in doing so. She then seized a revolver and tried to murder her husband, who succeeded in disarming her before she could fire it. No cause is assigned. John Flaherty was run over by an electric trolley tonight and probably fatally injured.
