

JANITORS WANT HARD COAL

They Claim Slack Will Not Furnish the Required Amount of Heat.

BOARD DECIDES TO MAKE AN EXPERIMENT

Expert Firemen Talk Upon the Subject of Coal and Opine that Janitors of the School Buildings are Now How to Use the Fuel.

For a few days slack coal has been used in the furnaces of the Webster, Walnut Hill, High and Hancock schools as an experiment, but on account of the objections of the janitors of the buildings the superintendent of school buildings has decided to discontinue its use until he receives further orders from the Board of Education.

The experiment had been tried with the intention of substituting slack for the other kinds of coal used if it proved a success. The heat given out is as great and the expense would be less than that of the best coal.

Last year $15,000 was expended for coal, three kinds of which were used, soft nut, soft lump and hard coal. Of the soft nut 1,500 tons were used at a contract price of $2.74 per ton, of the soft lump 1,800 tons at a contract price of $2.95 per ton and of the hard coal 300 tons at a contract price of $7.75.

In order to verify the statements of the janitors that heat could not be raised in time to warm the school buildings, a committee of the board of education and firemen in the large buildings in the city were sent to examine the matter.

Engineer Houck of the court house spoke about the matter following. The time that it would take to comfortably heat a building as large as one of the school houses depends upon the condition of the boilers. If they were kept clean, it would take more than 45 minutes, but by the use of slack a great deal of soot and dirt is deposited in the boiler, and they would have to be cleaned out at least two or three times a week, particularly the flues, the combustion chamber and the grates. The fire would have to be made up frequently and the water would have to be spread evenly over the grates.

Both the engineer and the fireman of the New York life building thought that sufficient heat could be raised in an hour. The fireman said: "Slack coal makes more work than other kinds of coal, but I think it is an easier fire to keep going. Fuel has to be shoveled in more frequently, but it burns well if put on evenly. Many of the janitors probably do not know how to use it. I can heat this building in 25 minutes with slack coal, although my fire is about only half as long as those in the school buildings. That, however, would not make much difference, but that an hour at most would raise enough heat."

The fireman in the city hall said that he was using slack coal and could raise enough heat to warm the building in an hour. He also thought that if the janitors knew how to use it, enough heat could be raised in an hour. He asked the question, "What time do you get up?" and thought that this had considerable to do with the matter.

More tons of slack coal would have to be used than of other coal, but all the engineers and firemen were positive in their opinion that it would be cheaper. Slack coal requires more attention, and gives more work, but sufficient steam can be raised in an hour at most, they all say.

WILL SUE FOR DAMAGES.

Clothing Company Will Ask the City to Contribute Cash to its Coeffers.

The proprietor of the People's Clothing company threatens to bring suit for damages against the city as a result of the enforcement of a resolution introduced in the council by Councilman Cahn and passed at one of the recent meetings.

It appears that some councilmen had been greatly bothered by runners and cappers for clothing houses during the past year. Most of these houses are on Farnam street, but for all that the runners were accustomed to ply their business right in front of stores of the councilmen. When some councilman was about to enter one of these stores one of the runners would step up to him and tell him not to buy there, but to go to the house he represented, where he could get the goods much cheaper. This method of business was not at all pleasing to the councilmen, as it did not tend to bring any gold into their coffers. Finally they got sick of the thing and determined to have it remedied.

The old ordinance provided that a license could be issued to runners for clothing houses, but it was amended so that there were no limits. The consequence was that they would wherever they pleased in order to get customers, and it was not unusual to find that the runners should not be allowed outside the sidewalks in front of the houses where they were employed. The amendment was passed, and was intended to be in force for the coming year this condition was incorporated. He forgot, however, that licenses were not to be issued until July 1, and consequently did not expire until July 1 of this year. As soon as Cahn discovered this he introduced a concurrent resolution canceling the licenses, and ordered the city clerk to refund him the license money, which resolution was passed. But Arstein did not by any means please with this and did not intend to give up. His runners went wherever they pleased as heretofore.

OMAHA'S BILL OF RIGHTS

Committees Finally Agree on the Amendments Needed to Make a Good Charter.

CONFERENCE REPORT WAS ADOPTED

Area of the City Limited to Twenty-Six Square Miles—Limit of Debt and Taxation Also Fixed—Day's Work Plan Abandoned.

Last night the charter revision committee completed its work by adopting the now amended charter, which it is proposed to bring before the legislature as soon as possible.

The committee was appointed over two months ago, and during this time has held ten or a dozen meetings, before which as many interests as cared to be present were listened to. The Municipal League, representing the taxpayers and citizens, claimed a hearing some weeks back. As a result subcommittees from both that body and the charter committee held a conference, at which the report adopted at last night's meeting of the two bodies was prepared. Discussions were made by both and the report was presented as unanimous. It was adopted unanimously by the meeting.

As reported, the amended charter is changed to some extent from that placed in the hands of the subcommittee by the general committee, the changes decided upon being substantially as follows: The city limits are confined to twenty-six square miles. The amendment proposing that the number of councilmen be reduced to nine was not adopted, and the number remains as at present. The right of eminent domain was extended to the state lines. The city is given the power to levy and collect an occupancy tax. The bonded indebtedness of the city is limited to $2,250,000, but in addition to this bonds to the amount of $100,000 may be issued for the erection of a city jail, public court and workhouse. Alley and the paving cannot be ordered except on petition of a majority of the property owners on the alley or street. The mayor and city council are given the power of creating permanent sidewalk districts, but permanent sidewalks shall not be laid in any district except on the petition of property owners owning the majority of the front lots in the district. The mayor and city council may compel the laying of sewer and water connections before the paving of streets.

METHOD OF RAISING REVENUE.

Property shall be assessed at the actual cash value. The tax commission shall be elected by the vote of the people instead of by the council. The council may not sit for one month. Proper notice shall be given when the assessment on property is raised. A maximum sum of $1,000,000 yearly may be raised by the city for the purpose of the city. Personal property shall not be liable for taxes on realty. Delinquent taxes on realty shall be sold for cash. The treasurer is given power to levy on personal property upon which there is a tax before the tax list is placed in his hands and to sell the same for cash. The owner is attempting to dispose of the property with the intention of evading the tax. Street cleaning shall be done by day labor, but other kinds of street work may be done by day labor or contract at the will of the mayor and city council. There shall be a five weeks' vacation for franchisees. Contractors or franchisees which cover a period of two years or over shall be submitted to a vote of the people.

The only objection to the report was made by Mr. Overall of the charter committee, who represented the labor interests. He thought that all street labor should be done by day labor, and desired that such should be incorporated in the charter. The sentiment, however, was against the report, and very little street work would be done during the next two years and as the amendment was at most an experiment no further change should be done by day labor. The report was adopted.

To PRESENT THE BILL, AT LINCOLN. The following was introduced by Mr. Connell and passed:

Resolved, That two members of the charter committee and two members of the citizens' committee be designated by the chairman, who, together with the chairman of the committee on the charter, be a committee to present the amendments which have been approved to the legislature.

Resolved, That the mayor and the city council shall be requested to confer in the action and to provide for the payment of the necessary expenses of the committee.

Chairman appointed on the committee Messrs. Poppleton, Wheeler, Connell and Dr. McCreer to act with himself and Mr. Overall.

On motion of Mr. Wheeler, Messrs. Connell and Poppleton were appointed a committee to prepare a letter to be sent to the members of the Douglas county delegation to the legislature, giving an outline of the bill and reviewing the work of the committee.

It is not to be contended that this is proof of the best climate on earth. Where the world's most stormy month of the year makes such a showing as above the saving in the fuel bill alone will pay the grocer's bill for the whole family.

The editor of the Morning Oregonian, who has lived in the city of Oregon for 20 years, writes of it as follows in his paper of November 20, 1894: "They who look upon Oregon now cannot but be struck by the beauty of the state. The same may be said of the Pacific States. They are having a fine winter. Nature is making amends for the mistakes of man. The tales of human life come and go; there are ups and downs in business, but Oregon is always bright. It is the same incomparable country that has attracted the attention of the world. No one who has lived in it can ever leave it. Every new-comer notices such a winter climate, in a country so productive, so full of all resources, is surprised and delighted. At every step, the beauties of the mountains, mountain ranges, the gorgeous greenery of our forests, contribute to the effect upon every beholder, and they who have lived here all their lives still look upon all these things with the delight of a youthful lover. Yet there is no intoxication in these things, no illusion, no excess of exaggeration. This is the country for which nature has done more than any other for the earth, and they who know Oregon know it."
