Money is not Wealth

It is only good for what Comforts and Necessities it will exchange

How foolish people are. They will drive an old knock-kneed horse for years. He eats, and costs as much to keep, as a sound animal. They get along with dilapidated furniture; faded and shabby carpets; bare windows; and quite likely an old stove which eats up more fuel in a year than a new and economical consumer would cost them; broil their wives and servants over a roaring fire in a July day, when a Gasolene Stove not only does better work without heating, but with far more economy; they scrub or paint an old rough floor, when a beautiful covering of Lincolum would not only look better, but actually pay for itself in a short time with labor saved; they eat off of nicked and cracked dishes, when a whole and complete Dinner set could be bought for almost nothing. In a word, they deceive themselves by thinking they are economical, when they are actually extrovagant in their shiftlessness, or perhaps we ought to be more charitable, and call it thoughtlessness, while all the time the children are growing up and getting accustomed to such makeshift habits and surroundings; grow untidy in dress, careless in habits and generally thriftless. Largely your fault, friend, because you have not made your children's Home and its surroundings the methodical, systematic and attractive place you ought to make it, AND MAY.
