Pat Lyons, who is employed at the Unior Pacific round house, made the serious mis take of disputing Officer Weir yesterday afternoon. Weir had a dog which Mrs. Metcalf, of East Broadway notoriety, said was hers, but Lyons claimed it was his. He followed Weir to the police station, demanding the dog at every step, and when he reached there, Weir showed his "authority" thrusting Lyons behind the bars. Eye witnesses claim that the arrest was entirely without excuse, excepting to maintain the sort of dignity that wears brass buttons.

A company, claiming to present a play called "The True American," appeared at Dohany's last evening. Several of the com-pany, both male and female, showed the effects of recent liberal potations, and two of the women went through performances on the stage which might be expected in ques-tionable resorts, but hardly in a first class opera house. There was a fair-sized audi-ence when the performance commenced, but by the time one of the players, whose name was Sullivan, had delivered the knockout blow, which was the piece de resistance of the play, it had dwindled until the gallery gods had well-nigh a monopoly of the seats.

The proposition of the school board to grade down the hill by the High school is arousing more opposing talk than the importance of the suggestion would on its surface seem to warrant. It means, in fact, a quiet but certain settlement for all time of the perplexing question as to where the High school should be located. It is claimed by those who have measured the proposed excavation that it will cost $16,000. If this amount is expended in preparing the site there will in all probability be no further opportunity for the public to secure the change which many desire. There seems to be no very en-thusiastic desire on the part of taxpayers to increase their burdens, especially in these time, and as there is coupled with the proposi

NO. 12 PEARL STREET. Faith Healer Buck Interesting Crowds Nightly at Overton's Mission.

SIGHT OF THE BLIND RESTORED

Feature of the Entertainment that Failed to Attract the Audience Toward the Pearly Realms to the Disappointment of the Elder.

Elder Buck, the faith healer, is filling Overton's mission each night with a crowd of curiosity seekers, together with a few who seem to believe sincerely in his powers as a medicine man. The "speaking in meet'n' " is interspersed with enthusiastic singing and interlections such as "Amen" and "Praise the Lord." One of the features of the Wednesday night meeting was the singing of what he termed "The New Song." He opened the bible at random and hit that part of Revelations which tells of a strange song which should be taught to a chosen

144,000, and which no one else could learn. "Now," said he, "i'll show you a verification of that prophecy right now. Here's my little girl. She's only 7 years old, and she has never been taught to sing. I'm going to sing, and the Holy Spirit will put the words and music into my mouth. never have sung this tune before, and I never shall be able to sing it again, but this little girl will sing it right along with me, because the Holy Spirit will teach it to her as she goes along. The elder placed two chairs side by side on the platform, one for himself and the other for his daughter, who kept her eyes glued on his face for the next fifteen minutes. The song commenced, and lasted for about a quarter of an hour, accompanied by a clapping of hands by the singer. It was several points shy on melody, but in volume it lacked nothing. Every now and then the singer's voice would strike high G and break into several thousand flinders in a genuine Wagnerlan smash-up, but the singer note, and go on as though nothing had happened. There was apparently no attempt at a tune. The little girl, in the meantime, was assiduously trying to keep up with the pro-cession, and managed to keep within three tones above or two below her father, and finally the end came.

"Now, isn't that wonderful?" said the elder. "As I told you before, this little girl has never heard that tune, and this is the first time she ever sang in public, but you heard for yourself how she did it. And that is the kind of a song we're going to have in the New Jerusalem. How many of have in the New Jerusalem. How many of you want to go to heaven and hear that kind of a song? All of you get up."

Nobody got up excepting an old lady down in front and a grinning boy in the back seat, whose musical ears were below the average. The rest were all content to hear the new song on this side the River Jordan. Elder Buck had been trying to heal pa tients during the day, at $1 per heal, and one man who had been blind had been restored to sight. "Get up and tell us all about it, sister," he called out to an old lady, the wife of the man who had been so iraculously blessed.

"My husband has been so blind that some times he couldn't see anything, but now he can see things across the room," said she, "I went up to him and said: 'Husband, stick your finger in my eye, so that I can see what wonders the Lord has worked for you, and he came up to me, and he stuck his finger right in my eye, without missing the mark or having to feel around for it. COMMISSIONER WATTS EXONERATED. Board of Supervisors Indorses His Adminis tration of the Relief Fund. Colonels Lindt and Dailey made their arguments yesterday morning before the Board of Supervisors in the matter of firing J. J. Watts, commissioner of the soldiers' relief fund. The board took the matter under advisement, and just before adjourning passed a resolution denying the request of the members of Abe Lincoln post that Watts be turned off. This was foreseen by all who paid any particular attention to the progress of the investigation, for, particularly during its closing hours it was nothing more or les than a huge farce, carrie on at the ex-pense of the taxpayers, for the benefit of the core or more of persons who attended. It s claimed by Watts' friends that the disaffection commenced among the members of Abe Lincoln post when he refused to take $25 out of the relief fund to be used in fitting up a soldiers' room at one of the local hospitals. Upon making investigation he found that the room was not to be used exclusively for soldiers, and he consequently did not feel authorized to spend the publimoney in that way. The Grand Army men who were getting up the scheme had it in for him from that time on, and went so far as to get together a ponderous pile of affidavits during December, 1892, and January, 1893. For some reason or other the iffidavits have been sidetracked for the las twelve months, but last week were dragged out from their pigeon hole and pressed into active service. Besides attending to this matter, the board passed a resolution instructing the county treasurer to enforce the collection of de-finquent liquor taxes, and the county attorney to close up all saloons which were run with out the payment of the taxes.

The proposition of L. Swearingen, jr., to collect the costs due in civil cases for onethird of the amount realized was accepted. The board then adjourned until February 19 Tear Down Your Cards.

LUI KUN YIH'S FIRST SUMMARY EDICT

Every Commander in the Chinese Army to Be l'unished for the Successive Reverses-Emperor's Degree for the Salvation of the Capital.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 17 .- The following advices from the Orient have been received by the steamer Empress of Japan: The situation in Peking is growing more complicated since the arrival of Viceroy Lui Kun Yih, Li Hung Chang's greatest enemy and head of the Hunan faction. The first evidence of Lui Kun Yih's influence is the issuing of a decree condemning Admirals Ting Kung and Tao Tai to death, and all other officers in command of divisions yet alive who showed cowardics before, after or during battle. By this sweeping decree none of the generals or admirals escape. The decree states that as they are responsible for has been a big success. An edict issued a month ago by the emperor of China to those within the palace precincts has just come to light. During this time it has been jealously guarded from the public, as it was hoped and wished that the young emperor, despairing and dis-couraged, would change his mind and recall his utterances. The translation of this most extraordinary edict issued by the emperor during the war has been obtained. It was given out when Wing Thung Tsao and Wen Thung Shih memorialized the emperor, sugresting the removal of the capital westward. The substance of this proclamation is as

"When we first took charge of the affairs of the empire it was our intention to intro-duce many reforms. Suddenly and unexpectedly the Japanese have broken the peace, taken away our Corean dependency and taken ossession of the borders of our empire,
"We have sent our generals on whom we rusted with their armies to punish the nemies of peace and drive them away, but we never intended to disturb the peace of the Japanese empire, and this our ancestors and all foreign nations will know.

"Little did we expect that our generals were incompetent and in many cases untrustvorthy, and that the soldiers were insubordinate and ill supplied with the arms adequate, and large sums of money were appropriated by us to equip them, and it is for these reasons that the Japanese have gained victory after victory, and place after place, which causes us real concern and makes our ancestors restless in their honored graves. "All this affliction and trouble is because we are unworthy and have employed unfit exciting chase, during which they attempted to blow up a Rock Island passenger train, have been identified as the men who robbed Joyce's jewelry store at Fayette in the early part of December, securing $300 in cash and $1,559 worth of jewelry. If, however, the worst comes and the enemy secure our sacred altars then there remains nothing for us but to perish at the altar of our fathers and be gathered home to them, fighting to the last, as they did before us, for our country and our honor. Officer Davis, who had a description of Harris given him by a pawn broker where Harris pawned some jewelry, went to South Omaha and fully identified him as the person wanted. The South Omaha authorities turned Harris over and he is now in the jall in this city. The robber stole from Mr. Niday one gold and one silver watch, an overcoat and some shirts. He took his time about leaving the house and stopped long enough to change shirts with Mr. Niday.

FAURE IS PRESIDENT

anger of the democracy.' SKETCH OF THE NEW PRESIDENT. M. Felix Faure was born in Paris on January 30, 1841. He was formerly a ship owner of Havre and was president of the Chamber of Commerce of that town. During the Franco-Prussian war he was a chief of battalion of the Garde Mobile and led from Havre to Paris the volunteers who assisted in putting down the Commune. He was first elected to the Chamber of Deputies as a republican in 1881, and at the time formation of the Gambetta cabinet of No vember 14, 1881, he became under-secretary of state in the then new ministry of commerce and the colonies. He relinquished office with the other members of the cabinet in January, 1882, but he was called to fill the same office on September 24, 1883, in the last cabinet presided over by M. Jules Ferry, and resigned with the rest of the ministry on March 31, 1885. M. Faure was elected to represent the Seine-Inferieure in the elections of October 4, 1885, and for the third time became under secretary of state, this time in the Tierard cabinet. In the elections of September 22, 1889, he was elected to represent the second district of Havre, and in the Dupuy cabinet, which resigned just previous to the resignation of M. Casimir-Perier, he was minister of marine. Faure was slated for the presidency of the Chamber of Deputies in the event of the election of either M. Brisson or M. Waldeckousseau. The national assembly is composed of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies. The Senate is composed of 300 members and the Chamber of Deputies of 584 members. A president is elected for seven years by a majority of the votes of the national assembly: There have been five presidents of the third French republic. M. Thiers was elected August 13, 1871; resigned May 24, 1873; died September 3, 1877. Marshal MacMahon was elected May 24, 1873; resigned January 30, 1879; died October 17, 1893. Jules Grevy was lected January 30, 1879; re-elected December 2, 1885; resigned December 2, 1887; died September 9, 1890. M. Carnot was elected December 3, 1887; assassinated at Lyons, June 24, 1894. M. Casimir-Perier was elected June 27, 1894; resigned January 15, 1895.

CAUSES PURELY LOCAL. French Ambassador Says the President's

Resignation Will Not Affect Other Nations WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.-Ambassador Paternotre of France talked interestingly today concerning the significant features of the resignation of President Casimir-Perier. "It should not be understood," said he, that the resignation of the president will have any far-reaching effect on the country. The republic is absolutely stable and secure and this event is one affecting only the ad-ministration of the government and not the government itself. It is no new thing for the presidents of France to resign. All of them, with the exception of Carnot, who was assassinated, resigned. "President MacMahon resigned, President Thiers resigned, President Grevy resigned. It is not surprising, therefore, that Casimir-Perier should resign, although his resignation was unexpected. The French system is so different from the United States that no comparison can be made between the president's position here and there. The French president selects his cabinet from the majority, and when there is a change in the majority there is a change in the cabinet. The president himself has but very little power, far short of those of the president of the United States. In this country the constitutional system is such that there need not be complete agreement between the cabinet and the legislative branches. The cabinet and the legislative branches. inet and the legislative branches. inet may have one view on an important public issue and congress may have a view directly to the contrary. But in France the cabinet is responsive to the legislative branch, and the president, as a part of the cabinet at the time, follows them. The est or effect outside of the borders of France so that the results of the resignation will have no significance outside of France. And even there, as I have said, it will affect only the machinery of government."

It was addressed to Senator Buffet and dwells upon the dangers of the present crisis, claiming that the president's letter of resignation is an indictment of the present constitution. He adds: "The hour is near at hand when the country will wish to return to the form of government which was the glory of its and is the guarantee of its future Continuing the manifesto says: dence, in making me represent the monarchy the day that my country calls me I shall find all confidence and in my devotion the force to fill my whole task. "My life and blood will belong to Franceto that France which my ancestors made great and respected. That will be the work of tomorrow. The task of today will be to overcome immediate dangers." The manifesto concludes with an appeal to the friends of the monarchy to vote for the candidate who is best able to maintain internal order, social peace and France's honor abroad.
