COLLECTIONS AS A RULE NOT VERY GOOD

Traveling Men Who Started Out Rather Early Meet with a Fair Demand for Goods in Certain Lines-Doings of the Manufacturers.

While January is, as a rule, a quiet month and while jobbers were not anticipating much for the next thirty days after the coming of the new year, some of them, at least, have been pleasantly disappointed.

There has been no great demand for goods, but the country has been buying in a small way and the aggregate sales have been even larger than many dared to hope that they would be. Some of the local houses got their men out earlier than usual after the holidays, and, the weather turning colder. they found a considerable demand for seasonable goods. The dry goods people claim that their business shows a very material gain over business a year ago. The hardware people say that they are doing all that they had reason to expect, and trade in the grocery line is fair. The mild weather of the past week has been a detriment to business, in fact there has not thus far-this winter been enough stormy weather this winter been enough stormy weather to develop business to its full extent.

In the produce district business has been running along in about the usual channel. The snide commission houses, which became very bold a few weeks ago, have remained quiet ever since The Bee exposed their operations. The question which appears to be of the greatest interest to commission men just at present is the proposed pears to be of the greatest interest to com-mission men just at present is the proposed legislation against oleomargarine. With-out exception the commission men are in favor of the state legislature passing such laws as will cut down the consumption of imitation butter in the interest of the gen-uine article. The butter men all over the state are working to secure legislation of this character. FACTORY FACTS.

M. Levison, who failed in the grocery business in this city upwards of a year ago, and who is now engaged in business in the town of Acton, Ill., was in the city the other day and settled in full with all his former creditors. Among the creditors are several manufacturers, who speak very highly of a man who will travel several hundred miles for the sole purpose of paying up old obligations.

W. A. Page, president of the Manufacturers and Consumers Association of Nebrasks, writes from San Antonio under date on January 16, as follows:

"You wanted to know what I think of the south, and San Antonio in particular. I have visited, as you know, most all of the northern cities in the last six months, and I can say this fer San Antonio, that there are more signs of prosperity in this city than any place that I have been in for some time. There are no stores for rent in the prominent part of the city, the offices in the buildings are all taken, as are the dwelling houses. I saw a lady today that shipped her goods here from northern Texas, expecting to get a house to live in, but she told me that she was going to reship her goods to Sutherland Springs, where she hoped to find a vacant house. Houses that rent for $20 and $25 in Omaha rent for $40 an $40 and $25 in Omaha rent for $40 an $40 and $25 in Omaha rent for $40 ans $40 and $40 and

CONDITION OF OMAHA'S TRADE

AS DUN SEES IT.

Business Getting Down to a Cash Basis and that is the Pest. R. G. Dun's local manager, in his weekly review of trade, says:

"General jobbing trade has been slow, partly due to the extraordinary caution in extending credits, but likewise partly due to the general conditions. In Nebraska owing to the very general crop failure, houses are unusually cautious about extending credit to Nebraska merchants. Consequently the business is rapidly reaching a owing to the very general crop failure, houses are unusually cautious about extending credit to Nebraska merchants. Consequently the business is rapidly reaching a cash basis in this state. The only good thing that has come out of all these evil conditions is the trend of trade, both retail and wholesale, toward cash.

"One of the jobbing merchants of Omaha, who is closing out his business here, will probably resume, but he distinctly declares that he is done with a trade which dates four to six months ahead and sells on four months time. He thinks the time is ripe and the field a good one for building up a net cash jobbing trade.

"Retail trade has not been lively, though something is doing in all lines. The warm weather is a detriment to many lines, especially commission dealers. Since prices were restored December 31, there has been very little good oyster weather and the last few days have been entirely against trade in the bivalves, in poultry, veal, eggs and similar merchandise.

"The season has been favorable in one particular. The warm weather has made outdoor work practicable and kept down indoor expenses. The thousands who are dependent upon common labor for sustenance have thus found it possible to pull along with less discomfort than was anticipated. It is an ill wind, indeed, that blows no good, and we ought to congratulate ourselves that the winter is more than half gone and yet comparatively little suffering is reported among the poor. Nevertheless, applications for aid from the county are very numerous and a great many good prompts of the comparative of the comparati

Wheat Was Again Very Dull and Corn Was in Little Better Condition-Oats Attracted Some Attention Early in the Session.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19,-Wheat was again very dull. The duliness here and abroad caused a decline in prices. May closing 5c May corn closed %c lower, lower. outs 4c lower and provisions at slight de-clines. The clearances of wheat and flour from both coasts this week, as published by Bradstreet's helped to sustain the courage of buyers of wheat here at the start. The quantity exported was 3,564,000 bu., compared with 2,587,000 bu. last week and ,332,000 bu, on the corresponding week of the year before. The receipts were light, as has been usual of late, and light as compared with the movement a year ago, The trading was also light. Cables were Primary market receipts, 224,000 bu., compared with 336,000 bu, a year ago. Ex-port clearances from the Atlantic seaboard were small, amounting to only 220,000 bu, of wheat and flour, of which only 18,517 were in the shape of wheat, and 16,000 of that went to New Orleans. In a review of the butter and choose situation In a review of the butter and cheese situation the New York Commercial Bulletin says: The production of butter during the winter is not equal to the consumption, and large quantities of the surplus from the summer make are carried along and worked into consumption during the off season, which has a tendency to keep prices reasonably low during the season when the make is light. From time to time during the season stocks are compiled showing the quantity held in this and other cities, and such information would be very valuable if it could be obtained errectly. This, however, seems to be an impossibility, for the reason that helders of butter refuse to give the information, and in many cases it has been found that when the figures were submitted they were incorrect. The Mercantile Exchange until within a year or two reported the stocks on January 1, but the figures obtained after a careful carvass of the trade were found to be so misleading and different from the actual quantity known to be held that the exchange members resolved to do away with stock taking, and they have not attempted it of late. The Produce exchange, however, as continued to report the stocks of butter with other articles, and they estimated the quantity in this city as follows on January 1:
