LOOKING FOR A LOST CHILD

Tennessee Lawyer Runs Off with a Daughter Whose Custody Was Denied Him.

SUPPOSED TO BE CONCEALED IN THIS CITY

Step Father Journeys from the Sunny South to Take a Little Girl from Her Natural Father, by Whom She Was Stolen.

During the last few days a man has been in this city on a mission, behind which lies a story. The man has been stopping at the Mercer hotel, registering under the name of "H. D. Sullivan, Louisville, Ky." He is in and found a policeman and Svenning was ar-search of a 7-year-old girl, who was kid- rested and taken to jail. When his trial napped some three years ago. The girl is

Some eight years ago there was living in the city of Chattanooga, Tenn., a newly married couple named Young. The husband was a lawyer, and while he was considered to be wrongfully, unlawfully and maliciously arsomewhat wild in his ways, the friends and rested, with force and without reasonable would have a joyous future. But not very long after the marriage the husband began to a divorce. About three years after house in which his divorced wife was living in order to see his daughter. One afternoon, about a year after the decree of digranted and the lather and child left the house. Instead of going to the store, how-ever, he boarded a street car, and since then neither father nor child has been seen by the mother. Relatives of the woman saw them getting on the car, but instead of following him they went to a lawyer to attempt to get the child by legal proceedings. Young, however, immediately left the city with the child, and only traces of them have been found since that time.

About three years ago the divorced woman was woeed and won by a man named Harris, who is a mester mechanic in one of the coal promised her to do all he could to recover the child. The hope of again seeing her daughter that was infused by this promise had the desired effect, and Mrs. Harris has now almost recovered her health, For the last three years the two have lived as economically as possible in order to save as much money as they could to begin the search for the kidnaped child. The search was begun several weeks ago. Harris went to the home of Young's parents in Atlanta, Ga., and from his mother discovered that Young had gone to Guthrie, Okl. He was told, however, that Young had left that city and was now in Omaha. Harris reached this city last Saturday and continued the search here. During the daytime he has gone about with Detective Haze and in the evenings he has been visiting places of amuse-ment in the hope that he might run across the man he was in search of. He was so confident that the man was here that Mrs. Harris was sent for, and arrived in the city Tuesday morning. Harris has seen Young only once, and although he is sure that he would be able to recognize him it was thought | Clarke & Co., to appear in court, in order

Harris has a photograph of Young which he has shown to a large number of people in the city. The photograph shows Young to be a man of about 35 years of age. His face is thin and shows marks of the dissipation he is said to have induiged in.

Several people to whom the photograph has been shown claim to have seen the man lately. Employes of the office of the clerk of the district court say that they have seen him in the office, but do not know him. A man answering his description is a frequenter of the Paxton hotel and the employes state sitively that he is the original of the pho-graph. They do not, however, know his name. Harris himself says that he saw a man in the salcon of the hotel who he is sure was Young, but he did not speak to him, as the primary object of the search is to get

Harris has visited all the orphanages in the neighborhood of Omaha, but so far has not seen a child that answers the description of the lost one.

It will not be possible to arrest Young on the charge of k dnaping the child, as it is his own. But as the courts have given it to the mother an application for a writ of habens corpus will be made to the county judge providing the little one is located.

Contractors Murphy and Fanning Being Sued for False Imprisonment. In Judge Hopewell's court Svenning Hageland is trying to persuade a jury to award him $2,000, which, it is designed, shall be paid out of the pockets of Hugh Murphy and Charles Fanning, for false imprisonment.

In 1892 Murphy was paving Leavenworth street from Sixteenth to Twenty-ninth street with brick. The street had been paved with cedar blocks, and before putting down the brick pavement Murphy was tearing up the wooden blocks. Charles Fanning was the foreman of the work. One Sunday in the month of October when the street was filled with a lot of the blocks Svenning wandered forth and into the street to lay up a stock of the blocks as kindling wood during coming winter. He was busily engaged in this occupation when Fanning came along and noticed him. He immediately hustled

GETTING LITTLE HELP.

Aidow in a Pitiable Plight Through Poverty, Accident and Neglect.

Ella Lyman, a widow living at 507 North Twelfth street, seems to be having a hard time of it lately. She has been supporting herself and a small son by taking in washing. A week ago last Saturday she was walking down Cass street near the school building, and slipped on the ley walk, breaking her right arm. She went home, but having no money did not send for a surgeon. That night neighbors heard of her misfortune, and the next day the city physician was called in. He said that it was a case for the county to take care of, and left without doing anything for the woman. The next day Officer Storey, who is patrolling that part of the city, learned of the woman's misfortune and destitution, and purchased coal for her out of his own pocket. He also got a doctor to go and attend her, and about dark Monday evening the county physician called, but then his services were not needed. The county authorities were notified and agreed to take care of the case. They have sent her some provisions, and a week ago sent her a half ton of coal that would not burn in any stove. It is the refuse slack that comes from the mining dumps, and is fit for no other purpose than to be used in furnaces where there are big drafts to make steam. The woman has to keep fire all night, and this slack smoulders like an ash heap, giving out little heat, but plenty of smoke. The neighbors say that Mrs. Lyman supports her-self when she is able, and they are quite inlignant at her treatment by the authorities

THEIR WAGES WORRY THEM.

Army Officers Who Are Eothered About the Income Tax.

Army officers generally are considerably perturbed over the recent ruling of the attorney general on the income tax, in which he holds that not only officers receiving over $4,000 a year were subject to the tax, but also those whose perquisites bring their income to an excess of that amount. Colonel Stanton at headquarters yesterday

"This ruling affects all brigadier generals, colonels and, in fact, all other officers whose incomes amount to over the sum specified, no matter what the source of such excess may be. It appears that there is something very arbitrary in this ruling, but as we have as yet to be officially notified of its full meaning comment would be premature.

"The fact remains, however, that the at-torney general's action means that the com-mutation of quarters and the mileage allowed officers are included in computing an income. Ordinarily only major generals, brigadler generals and colonels who have served ten years or more would have an in-come of more than $4,000 a year. Under the decision of the attorney general the list will include all officers of the rank of major and above, and some captains." "The whole

Another officer remarked: "The whole thing in a nutshell is that officers are compelled to pay out of their pockets the amount necessary to secure transportation when they are ordered on duty to some other station. When they reach their destination they file with the paymaster their vouchers for mileage, and before this can be paid the pay-master will have to deduct 2 per cent of the amount, provided the officer's income is more than $4,000, even though the officer's expenses aggregate more than he is paid. Another case is as follows: In the matter f quarters, although the government may fail to supply an officer with quarters, or he may be ordered on duty in a city, that officer is given a certain sum of money for comnutation of quarters, and must then rent his own house. If this commutation money added to his pay proper brings his income up to over $4,000 down falls the 2 per cent ncome tax. "In another quarter, too, it would seem that the adjutant general is occasioning some concern, as a contest is now going on between his corps and the inspector gen-eral's department over the inspection of college work by officers of the army. This duty has for years been performed by offi-cers of the last named department, but the adjutant general believes that inasmuch as the officers are detailed for this duty by his department that it should have the superision of their work."

Officers of the line, though, do not concur with him, for the reason that if in-spection by his department of officers on college duty should be made because the orders detailing them emanate there, then he could go further and ask to perform spection duty no matter for what duties de-

Located a Bad Well.

As an instance of the necessity of some sanitary inspection aside from that of food and milk, the commissioner of health cites the case of a well near Thirty-third and Half Howard streets, the contents of which were recently analyzed. The analysis indicated that there was more than twice as much free and albuminoid ammonia in the water as there should be in water that was fit for con sumption. This indicated that the water had been contaminated by the drainage from some animal deposit and was emphatically detri-mental to health. Its continued use, the come gave would lay the foundation an epidemic of typhold fever, as well as inflammation of the kidneys.
