

WILL VISIT THE VILLAGES

Armenian Commission Will Not Be Satisfied with Hearing Evidence.

EXAMINATION OF THE SCENES PROPOSED

As Soon as the Testimony of Witnesses is Taken an Inquiry at the Homes of the Injured is to Be Had.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 14.—The Turkish commission which is making an inquiry at Moush into the alleged massacres of Armenians has already held twelve sittings.

As soon as the commission has finished the examination of witnesses it will visit the villages in the Sassoun district, where the atrocities are said to have occurred, and make as rigid an inquiry as possible into the charges. The work of the commission cannot be terminated for some months. Authentic news has been received at the British embassy here that the Armenians tried at Erzerjan and against whom judgment was given on the 15th of November, twenty were sentenced to death, six to imprisonment for life and twenty-one to various terms of imprisonment.

This court has given a decision in the case of the British consul at Erzerjan that before these sentences are carried out it will have a careful investigation of all proceedings in the case made in order that full justice shall be done to the convicted prisoners.

The judgment given in these cases at Erzerjan will be the subject of a court of cassation at Constantinople on February 23.

BOSTON, Feb. 14.—Word has been received in Boston from the delegation from which the European delegation has recently set out for the scene of the late massacre in the Sassoun district, that the delegates were in the city of Constantinople to take Armenian interpreters with them.

The Sassoun Armenians know of Kurdish and a little Armenian, but no Turkish. It will be important for the delegates to obtain any definite information from them through an official Turkish interpreter whose services are being offered to them.

The delegation thus equipped has gone to do its work.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 14.—Between the 12th and 13th inst. there were several cases of cholera here and twenty-nine deaths from the disease.

CANAL AND CABLE IN THE COMMONS.

British Government Questioned These Two Proposals.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—During the session of the House of Commons this afternoon Sir Edward Harland, conservative, asked whether the government was aware that Mr. Morgan's Nicaraguan canal bill had passed the United States senate and was now before the house of representatives, and that Mr. Morgan had introduced in debate the Nicaraguan canal bill, and whether, in view of the importance of the canal to British ship owners, the government would make urgent representations to the government of the United States against provisions in Mr. Morgan's bill detrimental to the interests of British shipping.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

Mr. Harland also asked whether the government would consider the propriety of urging upon the government of the United States the importance of the creation of a British and American canal to deal with the question of construction of the canal and its status when built.

ANOTHER SHOW FOR WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Resolution in S. Dis. Line Reconsidered in the Senate.

PIERRE, S. D., Feb. 14.—(Special Telegram.)—Today the woman suffrage resolution came up again in the house on George's motion to reconsider. Burk moved to lay it on the table, and the result in 28 yeas and 39 nays. The question then recurred upon the motion to reconsider, which was carried by a vote of 40 to 35.

Mr. Burk having charged the resolution yesterday's vote and several being absent, it being evident that the opponents of the measure had fallen to hold their majority and that the advocates of it had secured a majority, the resolution was postponed until next Tuesday was carried with practically no opposition. It is expected that the resolution will be passed on Tuesday.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 14.—It was the defense's turn in the Hayward murder trial today, the prosecution having closed its case last night, and there was eager curiosity to learn what tack Attorney Ervin and his assistants would pursue. The defendant's demeanor upon entering the court room was positively jubilant. He nodded to some lady friends in the front row, and then, spying his mother, went up to her, and said: "Good morning, little mother," and kissed her upturned lips.

When John Day Smith arose to address the jury in his deliberate fashion, Harry faced squarely around to the jury and scanned their faces as the words fell from the lips of his counsel. Before the court opened he found time to tell the reporters that the report in a morning paper that he had remarked: "They are going to hang me," was unqualifiedly false, and that he had never given utterance to any such statement.

The jury, called attention to a number of things the state had promised at the outset to prove and which, he said, it had not proved. He called attention to a number of things the state had promised at the outset to prove and which, he said, it had not proved.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars. Such scars as the mark of Catherine King's defense will leave on the minds of the jury, will be a permanent reminder of the crime.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

HARRY HAYWARD'S DEFENSE

Still Obedient and Evidently Has Hopes of Securing an Acquittal.

TESTIMONY AGAINST HIM IS ALL IN

Opening Statement of His Counsel—No Theory Advanced—Adry's Story to Be Shaken by Expert Testimony.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 14.—It was the defense's turn in the Hayward murder trial today, the prosecution having closed its case last night, and there was eager curiosity to learn what tack Attorney Ervin and his assistants would pursue. The defendant's demeanor upon entering the court room was positively jubilant. He nodded to some lady friends in the front row, and then, spying his mother, went up to her, and said: "Good morning, little mother," and kissed her upturned lips.

When John Day Smith arose to address the jury in his deliberate fashion, Harry faced squarely around to the jury and scanned their faces as the words fell from the lips of his counsel. Before the court opened he found time to tell the reporters that the report in a morning paper that he had remarked: "They are going to hang me," was unqualifiedly false, and that he had never given utterance to any such statement.

The jury, called attention to a number of things the state had promised at the outset to prove and which, he said, it had not proved. He called attention to a number of things the state had promised at the outset to prove and which, he said, it had not proved.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

When the jury was called to the stand his honor, ex-Mayor East, stepped up to him and shook hands with him with a smiling face. "I could not help but think that it was to give him character before this jury. I confess you could not have touched the blooded hands of the murderer and the assassin. I believe in the religion of Jesus Christ, who has promised to forgive sins, but has not promised to remove the scars.

MOSHER'S CONTRACT WAS VALID.

Confusion in the Penitentiary Management—Worse Confusion.

SALOONS RAIDED BY WOMEN

Crusade Against Vice in Sioux City Develops a Sious Phase.

ONE HUNDRED LADIES VISIT THE JOINTS

Brutally Treated by a Proprietor of a Liquor Den in the Presence of a Policeman, Who Sided with the Saloon Man.

SIoux CITY, Feb. 14.—(Special Telegram.)—Members of the Women's Christian Temperance union to the number 100 assembled quietly this afternoon at the Whitfield Methodist church, of which Rev. J. W. Mahood, the Sioux City pastor, is pastor, and about 4 o'clock marched down town in a body and proceeded to a tour of the city saloons. They started with the avowed intention of visiting every saloon in the city, but soon found the attempt too laborious.

For several days it has been known that the ladies were contemplating such a move. Mahood's investigation of the saloons and houses of prostitution has aroused the congregation all the women were ready for almost anything. The raiding of the saloons, however, was totally unexpected. The ladies marched down to the business section by twos, headed by Mrs. H. C. Johnson, and Mrs. H. R. Hathaway, officers of the society. At the first saloon the leaders asked for the proprietor, who presented himself, and the women proceeded to question him as to the lawfulness of the law.

At two or three places the women were received courteously but when they reached John Manderscheid's saloon an officer of the police department came forward, and seizing Mrs. Johnson by the arm, exclaimed, "Here you can't do this sort of thing. You have no right to enter this place. You are interfering with the business of the saloon." The women were then ordered to leave the saloon.

At two or three places the women were received courteously but when they reached John Manderscheid's saloon an officer of the police department came forward, and seizing Mrs. Johnson by the arm, exclaimed, "Here you can't do this sort of thing. You have no right to enter this place. You are interfering with the business of the saloon." The women were then ordered to leave the saloon.

At two or three places the women were received courteously but when they reached John Manderscheid's saloon an officer of the police department came forward, and seizing Mrs. Johnson by the arm, exclaimed, "Here you can't do this sort of thing. You have no right to enter this place. You are interfering with the business of the saloon." The women were then ordered to leave the saloon.

At two or three places the women were received courteously but when they reached John Manderscheid's saloon an officer of the police department came forward, and seizing Mrs. Johnson by the arm, exclaimed, "Here you can't do this sort of thing. You have no right to enter this place. You are interfering with the business of the saloon." The women were then ordered to leave the saloon.

At two or three places the women were received courteously but when they reached John Manderscheid's saloon an officer of the police department came forward, and seizing Mrs. Johnson by the arm, exclaimed, "Here you can't do this sort of thing. You have no right to enter this place. You are interfering with the business of the saloon." The women were then ordered to leave the saloon.

At two or three places the women were received courteously but when they reached John Manderscheid's saloon an officer of the police department came forward, and seizing Mrs. Johnson by the arm, exclaimed, "Here you can't do this sort of thing. You have no right to enter this place. You are interfering with the business of the saloon." The women were then ordered to leave the saloon.

At two or three places the women were received courteously but when they reached John Manderscheid's saloon an officer of the police department came forward, and seizing Mrs. Johnson by the arm, exclaimed, "Here you can't do this sort of thing. You have no right to enter this place. You are interfering with the business of the saloon." The women were then ordered to leave the saloon.

At two or three places the women were received courteously but when they reached John Manderscheid's saloon an officer of the police department came forward, and seizing Mrs. Johnson by the arm, exclaimed, "Here you can't do this sort of thing. You have no right to enter this place. You are interfering with the business of the saloon." The women were then ordered to leave the saloon.

At two or three places the women were received courteously but when they reached John Manderscheid's saloon an officer of the police department came forward, and seizing Mrs. Johnson by the arm, exclaimed, "Here you can't do this sort of thing. You have no right to enter this place. You are interfering with the business of the saloon." The women were then ordered to leave the saloon.

At two or three places the women were received courteously but when they reached John Manderscheid's saloon an officer of the police department came forward, and seizing Mrs. Johnson by the arm, exclaimed, "Here you can't do this sort of thing. You have no right to enter this place. You are interfering with the business of the saloon." The women were then ordered to leave the saloon.

At two or three places the women were received courteously but when they reached John Manderscheid's saloon an officer of the police department came forward, and seizing Mrs. Johnson by the arm, exclaimed, "Here you can't do this sort of thing. You have no right to enter this place. You are interfering with the business of the saloon." The women were then ordered to leave the saloon.

At two or three places the women were received courteously but when they reached John Manderscheid's saloon an officer of the police department came forward, and seizing Mrs. Johnson by the arm, exclaimed, "Here you can't do this sort of thing. You have no right to enter this place. You are interfering with the business of the saloon." The women were then ordered to leave the saloon.

At two or three places the women were received courteously but when they reached John Manderscheid's saloon an officer of the police department came forward, and seizing Mrs. Johnson by the arm, exclaimed, "Here you can't do this sort of thing. You have no right to enter this place. You are interfering with the business of the saloon." The women were then ordered to leave the saloon.

At two or three places the women were received courteously but when they reached John Manderscheid's saloon an officer of the police department came forward, and seizing Mrs. Johnson by the arm, exclaimed, "Here you can't do this sort of thing. You have no right to enter this place. You are interfering with the business of the saloon." The women were then ordered to leave the saloon.

At two or three places the women were received courteously but when they reached John Manderscheid's saloon an officer of the police department came forward, and seizing Mrs. Johnson by the arm, exclaimed, "Here you can't do this sort of thing. You have no right to enter this place. You are interfering with the business of the saloon." The women were then ordered to leave the saloon.

At two or three places the women were received courteously but when they reached John Manderscheid's saloon an officer of the police department came forward, and seizing Mrs. Johnson by the arm, exclaimed, "Here you can't do this sort of thing. You have no right to enter this place. You are interfering with the business of the saloon." The women were then ordered to leave the saloon.

MINISTER ISAAC P. GRAY DEAD.

Arrived at the City of Mexico Unconscious and Severely Hurt.

BOND BILL DEFEATED

House Gives a Decided Majority Against Issuing Gold Bonds.

CRUISING DEFEAT OF THE ADMINISTRATION

Republican Support Not Enough to Save it from Its Friends.

NO RELIEF POSSIBLE THIS SESSION

Forty-Five Majority Against the Third Reading of the Bill.

BRYAN'S COMPLIMENTS TO CLEVELAND

Says the Democracy Owe Him Nothing More Than to an Administrator Who Had Squandered an Estate—Party Lines Drooped in the Debate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The third attempt by the administration at this session to secure legislation looking to the relief of the issue of the currency, the currency bill for the reform of the currency system, was defeated last night by a vote of 45 yeas and 45 nays.

The bill for the issue of $50,000,000 of gold bonds and the retirement of the legal tenders, recommended in the president's special message, was defeated last Thursday by a majority of twenty-seven, and today the house, by a majority even larger, (47) refused to order a third reading of the resolution by which was proposed to authorize the issue of $50,000,000 of gold bonds to substitute for the 4 per cent thirty-year bonds sold by Secretary Carlisle under the contract with the Rothschild-Morgan syndicate. The action of the house today was the culmination of the exciting events which have occurred since the president sent his special message to congress, which resulted in the report from the ways and means committee of the resolution to authorize the issue of the gold bonds.

A special order was brought in as soon as the house met this morning to bring the resolution to a vote at 5 o'clock tonight. The debate upon the resolution, which lasted over five hours, was interesting and at times inflammable in character. The galleries were packed and there was much conversation on the floor, but the interest centered in the course which the republicans would pursue, it being conceded that the fate of the resolution rested with them. There was much maneuvering among their leaders. The republicans west of the Alleghenies, led by Messrs. Hopkins and Cannon of Illinois, started off with impetuous speeches against the bill, and in support of it the speakers of Mr. Wilson, Mr. Reed, Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Bryan were the features of the debate. An analysis of the vote shows that eighty-nine democrats and thirty-one republicans (120 in all) voted in favor of the resolution, and ninety-eight democrats, sixty-two republicans and seven populists (167 in all) against it.

Although it was known that an attempt would be made today to pass the resolution authorizing the issue of the gold bonds, the speaker called the attention of the house to the fact that the speaker called the house to order at 11 o'clock. This was probably due to the fact that the speaker called the house to order at 11 o'clock. This was probably due to the fact that the speaker called the house to order at 11 o'clock.

Although it was known that an attempt would be made today to pass the resolution authorizing the issue of the gold bonds, the speaker called the attention of the house to the fact that the speaker called the house to order at 11 o'clock. This was probably due to the fact that the speaker called the house to order at 11 o'clock.

Although it was known that an attempt would be made today to pass the resolution authorizing the issue of the gold bonds, the speaker called the attention of the house to the fact that the speaker called the house to order at 11 o'clock. This was probably due to the fact that the speaker called the house to order at 11 o'clock.

Although it was known that an attempt would be made today to pass the resolution authorizing the issue of the gold bonds, the speaker called the attention of the house to the fact that the speaker called the house to order at 11 o'clock. This was probably due to the fact that the speaker called the house to order at 11 o'clock.

Although it was known that an attempt would be made today to pass the resolution authorizing the issue of the gold bonds,