GRATEFUL-COMFORTING. EPPS'S COCOA.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a defleately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to discusse. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

ANNA COULD IS A COUNTESS

Large Number of Friends of the Contracting Parties Witness the Ceremony.

Wedded at Her Brother's Home in New York Amid a Profusion of Roses and Lilles - Her Dress and the Guests.

PLIGHTED HER TROTH TO DE CASTELLANE

NEW YORK, March 4.- The marriage Miss Anna Gould, the daughter of the late Jay Gould of this city, to Count Paul Ernest Bonifacio de Castellane was selemnized today at noon, Archbishop Corrigan officiating, at the residence of her brother, George J. Gould, Sixty-seventh street and Fifth avenue. The archbishop was assisted by his secretary, Father Connelly, and Father Newsy acted as master of ceremonies. The archbishop were the full robes of the office.

At half past 11 o'clock less than 100 intimate friends assembled at the house. The residence was artistically decorated throughout with a profusion of tropical plants, smilax, asparagus plumes, maiden hair and over 20,000 La France roses, lilies of the valley and Japan lilies. The wedding took place on he first parlor floor, the ceremony being per-The bridal procession formed in the library, a room of ample dimensions on the second floor, afterward exhibited. The guests received the first intimation of the formation of the bridation of the formation of the string orchestra. The first number given was the Largo by Handel, by orchestra and organ, and "Elsa's Dream" from Lohengrin, which was sung by Rosa Sucher, the operatic soprano, to the accompaniment of the string orchestra. The bridesmaids wore Gainsborough the accompaniment of the string orchestra. This was followed by the bridal march from Lohengrin and the assembled guests witnessed the bridal procession descending the flowers, dead or the control of the string or the string over the top of the brid. The was companiment of the string or the string over the top of the brid. The flowers dollowed by the bridesmaids, Miss Beatrice Richardson, Miss Adelaide Monigomery, Miss Catherine Cameron and Miss Helen Gould. They brides the bride then followed. I shall be sh ushes of flowering roles. When they teached the dais at the Fifth avenue end of the room the music stopped. The ushers stepped to each side and the bridesmaids stepped before the ushers. Here, awaiting the approach of the bride, stood the bridegroom, attended by his brother, Count Jean Castellane, while on the dais stood Archbishop Corrigan, wearing his ecclesiastical robes. GAVE THE BRIDE AWAY. Mr. Gould placed his sister's hand in Count le Castellane's hand and withdrew to the left, where his wife and her two little daughters stood. The earemony was abridged by the fact that the bride has not, as it has been frequently stated, surrendered her own religious faith. When the time came for the bride to have placed upon her finger the wedmusical cadences of the orchestra added a charm to an impressive and beautiful ceremony. After the benediction had been spoken Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" filled the room and the bride received the good wishes of the archbishop and the two officiating priests, which were followed immediately by hose of her sister, Miss Helen Gould, and her brother George. The count, radiant and happy, led his wife into the alcove, where, ander a wreath composed of lilies of the valley, they stood ready to receive the congratuations of their friends. After the conclusion of the ceremony the chestra burst forth in the Mendlessohn wedding march, orchestra and organ. The wedding breakfast followed. The bride's table, at which were seated the bridal party of ten, was in the form of a fleur de lis, richly covered with cream colored satin, hung with cream satin valence, with gold applique. The fleur de lis was prone its side and the open space between the bulb and petal was filled with maure orchids edged with ferns, and beneath and shining through the mass of flowers were small electric lights of one candle power each. On the center of the arge part of the spearhead was a heart of white orchids edged with fern and pierced with a gilt arrow, tied with a butterfly bow of delicate cream colored ribbon and caught in the ribbon was a spray of orchids, and through all shone tiny electric lights. The bar across the fleur de lis was also of orchids with reflecting electric lights.

The service used at this table was of gold. The other guests were served at eighteen smaller, round tables, eight at a table, and each table had a silver bowl filled with maure crchids in the center. Each walter wore a white rosette in his buttonhole and white gloves. BRIDE'S BEAUTIFUL GOWN. The bride's wedding gown was a heavy ivory satin, duchess style, trimmed with Point d'Angleterre lace, which was twelve inches wide, and of rare and beautiful pattern. The skirt fits very tightly over the hips and flares out at the bottom. The train is round, and is about three yards in length. | money

The gown is lined throughout with heavy lyory slik, fashioned at the bottom with three full ruffles of full lace. These ruffles are trimmed with bows of satin ribbon. Point d'Angleterre lace forms a drapery over the bodice, beginning a little back of the right shoulder. It then crosses to the left side and passes under an empire belt, which is made of satin. At the bottom of the belt the drapery begins again, and is extended over the left side like a jabot, and is carried around the front of the skirt in van Dykes, which are looped and fascened by small bunches of real orange blossoms. The sleeves are cut in the latest fashion, the top of the sleeves being very full, and the under part very tight. The sleeves buttoned very close over the wrist. The collar was a playing facing which was of Point d'Angleterre. The bodice of the gown is fastoned at the back under a roll of satin and two bows of lace. The bridal vell was a rare old lace, presented to the bride by the Marquis de Castellane, and was fastened at the crown of the head with a bunch of orange blossoms.
