NO SHOW FOR BACHMAN YET

Trying to Avoid Remaining in the County Jail All His Life.

MOVE IN HIS BEHALF MADE YESTERDAY

Judge Scott Not Willing to Afford the Prisoner Any Relief from the Pecu-Harities that Make the Case so Hopeless-Other Court News.

An attempt was made yesterday afternoon to terminate the imprisonment of Charles M. Bachman, so far as the paternity case in which he was the unsuccesswul defendant is concerned. Bachman is confined in the county jail for this, for adultery and for contempt of court. Last year upon a complaint by Sadie Keller he was convicted and or dered to pay $2,000 in installments of $20 per month for the support of his illegitimate child, and not being able to do this or to procure bonds, was committed to jail. Being a married man, he was also prosecuted for adultery, and convicted. Judge Scott gave the longest sentence possible, one year, his time for this offense not to begin until he had paid or given bonds for the payment of the fine in the paternity case. For certain language used in court he was ordered to pay a fine of $10. Bachman's chances were therefore, good for being an inmate of the county jail for the balance of his natural

One of the attorneys who prosecuted Bach man vesterday afternoon offered an affidavit stating that the child was now well cared for, and asked that Bachman's time on the charges of contempt and adultery he per mitted to run. Judge Scott requested the attorney to carry his compliments to Bach man and inform him that so far as the pres-ent occasion of the criminal department was rned. Bachman might remain in jai for the balance of his natural life.

Worley sat glaring at each other yesterday in Judge Scott's court and between them reposed a gentleman's and a lady's hat which two articles had contributed very largely toward the indictment of Mr. Worley for adultery. Worley is a clerk for Johnson Bros., coal dealers at Ninth and Leavenworth streets. For a year or more he has lived with his family at the corner of Twentyseventh street and Patrick avenue and opposite has lived a family named Weideman. The neighbors became very intimate during the early part of the present year and by February 18, when their troubles began, alvisited each other's house. the mind of Mrs. Worley there was a dark suspicion and the suspicion was that the relations between her husband and Mrs. Weideman were altogether of too tender a nature to be becoming to either. She there-fore, unknown to him, kept a very close watch upon the life partner of her joys and sorrows, and on the night of February 18. after dodging through vacant lots and sun-dry dark and dilapitated coal sheds which ornament an alley near their home, she was rewarded, according to her statement on the stand yesterday, by seeing him meet Mrs. Weldeman in the shadows cast by one of the coal sheds. She saw enough to satisfy her-self that her spouse was unfaithful to the vows he had plighted to her before a justice of the peace twelve years before, and to sat-isfy him and his companion that they were certainly discovered grabbed their hats and ran to her home. Next day she appeared before the grand jury and had both indicted. Worley denies it all and claims to have sim-ply met Mrs. Weldeman by accident on Patrick avenue when he was returning to his the alley with the woman and that the first intimation he had that his wife had any suspicions of him was when she ran up stealthily both their hats off, remarking that she nov

On the night of August 25, 1893, it is alleged, in a petition now on file, that Michael and Joseph Shea visited the vicinity of Inland and Trumbull, in Clay county, and drove off all the cattle they could find. Among the victims of the raid were Dennis M. Francisco, Jacob Wintemote and Stephen Phelps. A thorough search was made, and was found that the cattle had been driven to Juniata, and from that point shipped over the Burlington road to the commission house of Garrow, Kelly & Co. at South Omaha. The firm disposed of the cattle on the South Omaha market for $700. The members were notified by the real owners of the stock of the circumstances of the case, but refused to pay over the proceeds of the but refused to pay over the proceeds of the sale. Evidence Against Forriers Schultz and Mc Cabe, Charged With Arson The preliminary hearing of William Schultz and J. H. McCabe, who are charged with setting fire to their store in the Withnell block early Saturday morning, was begun in police court yesterday afternoon. Only four of the witnesses for the prosecution were examined and the indications are that the hearing will occupy at least another day. Most of the afternoon was occupied with the examination of Chief Redell of the fire department. gave a detailed history of the fire and of finding the boxes of combustibles in various parts of the store. He examined these at the time and found that they gave out a strong dor of kerosene oil.

Attorney B. S. Baker, who represented the prisoners, put the chief through a long crossxamination, but brought out no additional facts. The cross-examination was directed oward trying to show that the fire was so ot that if the excelsior and papers had been oaked with oil they must have been entirely destroyed.

Fire Reporter Delos Beard testified to going to McCabe's house to get him, shortly after the fire broke out. At that time McCabe wanted him to wait until he dressed and a minute later appeared fully dressed as though he had been dressed all the time.

John Rasgorchek, a tailor, said that he met on Farnam street Thursday night and that McCabe had two cloaks on his arm. He could not say whether he was delivering them to a customer or was removing them the stock. The hearing will be resumed at 9:30 this morning.

Members of the literary society of the Mount Pisgah Baptist church, Twelfth and Jackson streets, held a meeting Monday evening, at which they adopted the following

Whereas, In the death of Hon. Frederick bouglass, the nation has lost one of its ablest, purest and most distinguished citizens, a man who, by the inherent qualities of mind, rose from human slavery, ignorance and poverty, to become a defender of liberty; an advocate of equal justice to all classes, races and kinds. He was the acknowledged thunderbolt it seemed in the hand of Providence to strike the shachand of Providence, to strike the shackles which bound 4,500,000 of people. Hence to liberty, justice and freedom, his death is an irreparable blow. But with grief and mingled tears and lamentations, we bow our heads submissively to this shock;

UNITED WORKMEN FIGHTING

Are in a Pretty Row Over Postponement of Grand Lodge Session.

BAD REPORTS ABOUT HEAD OFFICERS

Alleged that Some Embezzilng Has Beer Done-Grand Master Tate Mandamused to Call the Grand Lodge Together in May.

Members of the Ancient Order of United Workmen in Nebraska are at present considerably agitated over a question that threatens to involve the entire organization throughout the United States.

Stripped of all factional differences, it is he right of subordinate lodges to postpone a regular session of the grand lodge without amending the constitution, which requires an annual meeting.

Out of this question has grown a multiplicity of issues in the ranks of the Nebraska members of the order which will be taken to the court of last resort before they are settled to the satisfaction of all concerned.

The history of the trouble in the order is the result of the plan adopted last fall by the Nebraska branch to aid the destitute members in the western counties. The 304 subordinate lodges voted on the proposition advanced by the Grand Island lodge to not hold the session of the grand lodge this year and to devote the expense incident to the meeting to the drouth sufferers of the state

It costs about $9,000 to hold this meeting. All but twelve lodges voted in favor of the lan. Eight of these dissenting lodges later changed their votes with the majority and the grand lodge officers agreed to hold no session for 1895.

As a precedent for this move, its advo cates cited the fact that Colorado and Kentucky members had last year postponed their grand lodges. In addition to this authority the supreme lodge officers favored the scheme individually, without having considered the matter officially.

Of those voting in favor of thus aiding Nebraska drouth sufferers there were over 18,-000, while the lodges opposing the idea num-bered less than 700. As a further inducement for the action of the Nebraska mem-bers in this line the lodges of other states agreed that in view of the sacrifice made by branches in this state, they would con tribute to the fund for the purpose of relief. Thus far in accord with that plan they have sent into Nebraska about $20,000 and more is expected. Most of this has already been paid out to the destitute Workmen of the state. UGLY RUMORS SET GOING.

Early in the present year some ugly rumors were put in circulation about a big "job" hind the postponement of the grand lodge session; that under the cloak of charity crookedness was being connived at and that too, by members high in the councils of the order; that those who should be directing the course of the organization for the advantage of all, were guilty of a breach of trust There were even whispers of some of the grand lodge officers being guilty of embezzle-

These charges were not made openly, but it was said by dissatisfied members that the grand lodge officers were in favor of post-poning the session this year because it would enable them to hold office for one year longer than the term to which they were elected. Out of this grew rumors that the officers in this manner expected to be able to prevent an investigation of their books and thus keep secret the alleged embezzlement. The rumors gained ground in spite of the monthly publication in the state organ of the order of its financial condition, which indicated that all was as it should be.

to give these vague rumors tangible form by serving notice on the grand lodge of an intention to ask the courts to mandamus the officers to call the meeting as required by the constitution, notwithstanding the vote to the contrary. The Lincoln lodge voted in Members of lodge 80 of Lincoln were first the affirmative on the proposition to post pone the meeting. William Gray, C. F pone the meeting. William Gray, C. F. Burris and H. M. Casebeer signed the petition in the Lancaster county district court touching the subject. None of the alleged motives credited to Dame Rumor were embodied in the petition. It merely recited that the officers refused to call the annual meeting as required by the constitution of the order and asked for an order requiring them to do their duty in this line.

Grand Master Tate was in the east soliciting funds for the destitute Nebraska mem bers at the time. The difficulty at once pre sented itself in this form; the money neces sary for the holding of the grand lodge ses sion had already been expended for the aid of the poverty-stricken members of the order and if the court required a session to be held in spite of the almost unanimous vote to the contrary, the situation of the members in the drouth-stricken parts of the state would be even worse than at first, since they would have to be assessed for the session and failing to pay they would have to leav the order

STATEMENT OF COMPLAINERS In justification, those who demanded that the grand lodge session be held now, recite this story: About one year ago L. A. Payne grand recorder, was found short $800 in his accounts. It was first thought that the shortage was only $400, and the grand officers went to the bank, and on their personal notes secured this amount and put it into the general fund. Some were under obligations as Payne's bondsmen, while others did it to assist a friend and brother. Later they discovered that his alleged shortage would be $800. Unable to make up this amount, they took from the general fund the $400 placed there and returned it to the bank and secured the note given for the purpose of raising the money. Some of the Lincoln members assert indirectly that when the grand officers took from the general fund the money they placed there to make good Payne's shortage, they became guilty of embezzlement, and that it is this that they expect to cover up by postponing the grand

He was replaced received is accounted for. He was replaced to the deputy George H. Barber. Since beby his deputy, George H. Barber. Since being deposed Payne has made good a part of the alleged shortage and is arranging to pay the balance. The case was not tried on its merits in the district court, but it was held that the grand officers must call the meeting. Arrange ments are being made to carry it to the su preme court, since it is important to know whether the order in any state may adjust its affairs to the best advantage of all its members, without each time amending the constitution. In the meantime, in order to echnically comply with the court's order, notices are being prepared to have the subordinate lodges select delegates to the grand lodge session, which the constitution provides shall be held the second Tuesday in May.

PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., March 20 .- (Spe cial.)—The granting of a peremptory writ of mandamus at Lincoln by Judge Hall re-quiring Grand Master Tate of the Ancient Order of United Workmen to call the regular annual session of the grand lodge in May meets with the favor of several hundred Workmen in this city, among whom the belief is almost unanimous that the time is ripe for a thorough investigation as to the business methods which prevail among the grand lodge officers of the order. WAS HIS SECOND VISIT.

Mr. Lininger Talks About His Latest Trip Through Mexico. Hon. George W. Lininger and wife have returned from a six weeks' tour of Old Mexico, during which many of the principal cities of the republic were visited. "I return home," said Mr. Lininger, "firm in the belief that there is no better place than Omaha in which to live, and that the people of Nebraska and the west generally are infinitely better off in every essential regard, materially and socially, than are the peo-ple of Mexico. I made a tour of Mexico a year or two ago, so that the two visits enabled me to gain considerable information concerning that country and its people.

"When I left home the newspapers reported that Mexico was about to go to war with Guatemala, and that extensive military preparations were going on in the City of Mexico. My friends intimated that I migh experience some personal discomfort tour. When I reached the City of Mexico however, everything was in a tranquil state Nobody seemed to be thinking of war. The storm had blown over, and Americans in that city expressed themselves as greatly amused at the reports contained in our news "I happened to be in the City of Mexico

We will give you the best 47-inch serge in with the kindly offices of President Diaz and his cabinet on that occasion. Diaz had or-dered out a division of the army, and his soldiers lined the streets the entire distance from Minister Gray's home to the railway station. The serivce at the residence was very brief. The remains of the minister were carried to the hearse and driven to the railway station, President Diaz and his cab-inet walking the entire distance. Upon arrival of the cortege at the depot gates an Episcopalian minister offered a fervent prayer, when the coffin was transferred to the train. For twenty minutes the president and his cabinet stood with uncovered heads about the car until the train departed. Among the Americans in the City of Mexico I heard many expressions complimentary to President Diaz for the part he took at the obsequies of Minister Gray, who was his warm personal friend. It was also interpreted as giving evidence of the president's high regard for the American nation.

"I called on President Diaz a week later at the executive office. I had no business, but simply wished to pay my respects. I sent in my personal card and was pleased at the prompt request to enter the rooms of the president. My partner, Mr. J. M. Metcalf, and our ladies went in. I was particularly impressed by the courtly and gracious man-ner in which the president received us and also the absence of any red tape attending our call. After the interview I asked for a permit to visit the castle Chepultepec, the executive mansion. One of the cabinet ministers gave me, without hesitation, a permit for myself and twenty people. Our visit to the mansion was enjoyed. "Mexico is a city of great wealth. The rich people are very rich and the poor des-perately poor. There are many beggars and there are also a great many palatial resi-dences and exquisite turnouts. I am of the belief, however, that Mexico is not the field for the investment of American capital Many wealthy Americans have invested ther to their cost. Mexicans have little regard for the sacredness of contracts. There are, of course, some Americans with large invest-ments in mines and in coffee plantations which furnish about the only field for profit able investment of foreign capital. "I was particularly struck with the street car system. While the care are drawn by mules the average speed is good, the service prompt and in all respects satisfactory. Lines run out in all directions for from ten to twenty miles. I rode out to a suburb fifteen miles from the city, the fare being 18 cents. There is a system of parcel delivery, operated by the street railway com-pany, which is carried apparently to any length. Truck gardeners thus bring in their products to the market. In fact, all classes of freight are transported within the city and between the city and the suburbs at nominal cost. A wholesale merchant, for instance, may have a side track leading to his warehouse door. Cars are run in and his goods and wares are thus conveyed to the steam railway station or any point on the street railway system. The fare is 5 cents per passenger between the principal points

"I come home to find certain people well nigh daft on the silver question. One man at St. Joe, said to be a convert through 'Coin's Financial School,' has organized a silver league of 1,000 voters. These people should go to Mexico, where they will get a living exemplification of the beauties of free silver and a silver standard of currency. Everything that labor produces in Mexico is cheap. Wages are so low that no American could exist under the conditions. Most of the manufactured goods and articles of com-merce consumed by the Mexican people are imported and are very dear. The common people have a continual struggle for bare ex istence. The government pawn shop is the best evidence of this fact. Every kind of personal property is pledged at this pawn shop, appraised by government officials, held for a specified time and if not redeemed is sold to the highest bidder. It was estab lished for the benefit and protection of the poorer classes, and under the wretched conditions of the Mexican people it is certainly a great boon to them. I found the monetary system of Mexico of especial advantage to the rich and of great detriment to the poor. In theory, the silver doctrines advocated in certain quarters may have some attractive features, but the practical effects of a monetary system under a silver standard will convince any man that no greater disaster could befall the United States than the adoption of the heresies of our apostles of
