While the grand old organ at the First Presbyterian church was filling the room with its music last evening eight young men, each attired in black and wearing the clerical white tie, marched in and took seats in the front pews, which had been reserved for their occupancy. These young men were: Harry A. Carnahan of Central City, User E. Fattoosh of Omaha, Alvin M. Hen ien of Cozad, John R. Jones of Manilla la.; George T. Noyre of Irvington, David Dastler of Rushville, Charles E. Rice of trawford and Frederick Tonge of Omaha they comprised the graduating class of the Omaha Presbyterian Theological seminary and the occasion was the second annual mmencement of that institution The platform was occupied by the officers ind members of the faculty of the seminary hile the body of the church was filled by riends of the young men and members o he Presbyterian churches of the city. The preliminary exercises consisted of a hymn nurchase. cripture reading and a prayer, after which the class orators, Messrs. Oastler, Rice Jones and Carnahan, who had been selected a vote of the students and members of the faculty, were introduced in their turn, their themes being respectively: "Hope," "Dry Bones Animated," "Personal Element girls aged 10 and 17 respectively, who dis appeared from their home at Bartlett, Ia. in Christianity," "A Misconception of the Truth." All addresses were much comlast Sunday. They were traced as far as the river, where all clew was lost. Their rela-tives fear they have drowned themselves In presenting the diplomas to the members of the graduating class, Dr. John Gordon chairman of the faculty of the seminary said that while it was a pleasant duty tha he had to perform, it had many unpleasant features. It meant, he said, that eight young men were about to go out into the world to work for God. This was something that was pleasant to contemplate, but separating from the students was a trying ordeal In dismissing the graduates Dr. Gordor compared the task with that which fell upon Jesus, when he sent the apostles out to preach the gospel to the world. The world, Mr. Gordon informed the students, was a world full of devils, full of graves, the same old world full of sick folks which had existed for ages. The young men, he said, were going forth as sheep among wolves. Notwithstanding this, he cautioned them to be as barmless as doves. With the close of Dr. Gordon's address he eight graduates of the seminary were called to the platform and presented with the diplomas which authorized them to go out into the world and labor in their ef-orts to save sinners. Dr. W. F. Ringland of Hastings, president of the board of directors, spoke encourag-ingly of the condition of the seminary and ingly of the condition of the seminary and the work which it had accomplished during the past year. He predicted for it a glorious future and expressed the opinion that the day would come when the Presbyterian sem-inary of Omalia would be one of the lead-ing theological schools in the country. It was close to the work of the home mission and was also close to what would some day and was also close to what would some day the heart and very center of this great
