DISTRICT COURT'S NEW TERM

Unusual Amount of Criminal Business or Hand-Arraignments Yesterday.

The May term of the district court convened yesterday. The work of getting a jury was first taken up. One thousand eight hundred and seventy-one cases have been already entered upon the six civil dockets of Judges Blair, Hopewall, Keysor, Ferguson, Ambrose and Duffie. This number does not include some cases, however, which came in too late to be placed on the new docket, notably the canal case, which is the important equity suit to be tried at this term of court.

Fighting Over the Paulsen Estate, The Paulsen heirs have come into court with an answer to the action of the Arlington State bank, which brought suit against the Paulsen family. The bank is one of a number of creditors of the Paulsen estate. It has a claim for $9,592,77 against the estate, which is now anxious to collect. To do this the bank began an action attacking the validity of a large mass of conveyances made by embers of the Paulsen family, who had been nade executors of the estate of their father nd made to Mrs. Augusta Lamerick.

Motorman Seriously Injured in a Collisto G. H. Spencer, one of the oldest motormer in the employ of the Omaha Street Railway company, was seriously injured in a collision between his car and a Merchants Dis patch wagon on Sixteenth street between Webster and Burt a few moments after 9 o'clock yesterday morning. Spencer's train was moving south and just as it crossed Webster street one of the heavy wagens belonging to the Merchants Dispatch company attempted to cross the tracks about twenty feet ahead. Spencer shut off the current and applied the rakes, but not quickly enough to avoid the collision which followed. The front of the collision which followed. The front of the motor struck the rear end of the wagon, knecking the horses down and whirling the wagon around parallel to the car. Spencer was knowked between the end of the motor and the heavy wagon. His left arm was broken in two places, above and one below the elbow. In addition to this in-jury he was severely cut about the head, there being several gashes across the fore-head and on the left side of the head. His left leg was badly cut and his left foot mashed. He was taken to the nearest drug mashed. He was taken to the nearest drug store and Drs. Summers and Hostetter called in. After his wounds had been dressed he was removed to his home at 1335 North Nineteenth street by the police patrol.

The accident had its origin in the attempt of the intoxicated driver of the express wagen to escape the attentions of the police who had been summoned to put an end to disturbance which had been raised by the driver and an equally intoxicated companion in Kopald's saloon at 713 North Sixteenth in Kopald's saloon at 713 North Sixteenth street.
