That Tombstone Clause.

The testimony in the Maria Mader estate has been submitted to Judge Baxter, who will announce in a few days whether or not Mrs. Mader's grave is to have $100 worth of care and attention.

Mrs. Mader died in 1883, leaving considerable money and two wills, one having been executed in 1883 and the other in 1882. The latter will, although intended as the latest expression of Mrs. Mader's intentions, was not signed or witnessed and so was declared invalid.

Mrs. Mader's will was the one which provided for the $100 monument placed over her grave. Mrs. Schmidt, who was the legatee under the first will, succeeded in having this clause, as well as the rest of the will, defeated. Testimony has now been submitted by C. P. Catlin, who says the cemetery association will take perpetual care of the grave without its tombstone for a $100 deposit. Whether $100 is to be advanced is the question before the court.

KIRK

ONE POINT ON WHICH CITIZENS AGREE RAIN WATER MAKER.

The People Are Still Dealing Themelves for This Great Preparation.

READ WHAT THEY SAY.

In these days of prudence and forethought the economical housekeeper is ever on the alert for something that will minimize the household expenses, yet do the work thorough and complete.

"Rain Water Maker" was designed for the purpose of increasing the expense and labor that are necessary adjuncts to laundry work of all descriptions. It is used today by thousands of people, both for laundry and toilet purposes, and to say that it has become a necessity is putting it mildly.

Rain Water Maker.

Breaks the water instantly, and is invaluable for the reason that it will hold off the colored goods from running or fading; it will also prevent bluing from curdling in water. Flannels and wooleens washed in water prepared with this valuable preparation will positively not shrink, and they will be left white and soft, while their durability and lasting quality are increased.

For the toilet "Rain Water Maker" is exquisite and invigorating, for the water is brought to a soft and velvety consistency, thereby accelerating the action of the soap and helping same to remove any superfluous excretion that may adhere to the body. The preparation is not to be confounded with soap powders, as it contains no soap, ammonia, borax, lime or any deleterious ingredient, and is perfectly harmless.

Read what those who have used Rain Water Maker have to say in recommending its great merit:

Excellent Preparation for Bathing Purposes.

Mrs. Charles Stevenson, superintendent of the industrial department of the Omaha Life Insurance company, residing at No. 611 North Eighteenth street, said: "We have tested Kirk's Rain Water Maker in our house and find it an excellent preparation. For bathing purposes the Rain Water Maker is very fine, and we are particularly pleased with it. We certainly recommend it and think it will do all that is claimed for it."

Rain Water Maker is on sale at all druggists and grocers—a large two-pound package for 25 cents, and is never sold in bulk or peddled on the street.

MORE CITY HALL DEFECTS.

Gas and Electric Light Fixtures Found to Be Faulty.

Another defect has been discovered in the interior construction of the city hall which will necessitate a thorough overhauling of the gas and electric light fixtures and the substitution of improved joints throughout the building. This discovery explains the excessive gas bills that the city has been obliged to pay every month. It also develops that it has been only through sheer good luck that there has not been a serious fire in the municipal building.

The matter was discovered by Secretary Haze of the Board of Education. The first of the month the gas company sent a bill for gas used on the fifth floor of the city hall which was out of proportion to the amount consumed in other parts of the building. This showed that there was a continuous flow of gas, although not a single leak was detected in the joints.

The city electrician was called and he began an investigation which indicated that a serious mistake had been made in the piping of the building. It was found that the joints which the fixtures were connected with the supply pipes were defective. This allowed a considerable amount of the gas to escape at a joint in the aggregate in the building was sufficient to make a material difference in the gas bills. But this was the least serious trouble. The electric light fixtures were connected with the same joints. The joints are of what is known as "drip." This is regarded as poor insulation and in case the wires were severed by separation of the joints, they would be liable to form a short circuit and produce an electric spark. If the joint was full of the escaping gas this would undoubtedly be ignited by the spark and the result would be serious.

The city electrician has inspected the entire building and will submit a communication to the city council, stating the facts and recommending that the whole system be reconstructed at once. The fire joints will be replaced with mica and this will do away with the difficulty. Mr. Schurig will also suggest an increase in the capacity of the electric light system. At present the system is not of sufficient capacity to carry the current without overheating. As soon as the wires begin to heat the resistance is increased and there is a line loss of fully 10 per cent of the original current in the wires.

Within a day or two, however, it has developed that the garbage men have been a few points off in their geography and that they have been dumping the garbage in Nebraska soil. City Engineer Rosewater and the county surveyor have been running the Nebraska line at this point, and their observations completely upset the plans of the haulers. It is found that the Iowa line is really some distance further east than was supposed and the dumping ground is really inside the Nebraska limits.

The dumping ground is on the premises of a man named Watson, who has been repeatedly notified by the city engineer that the garbage to be dumped on his land. When the fact that this ground was in Nebraska was reported to Commissioner of Health, he at once notified the inspector at East Omaha and Watson was arrested and locked up in the city jail. Yesterday more inspectors were detailed on the case and it was proposed to prosecute the dumpers to the full extent of the law. If this is accomplished it is expected that it will result in the closing of the dump and the haulers will be deprived of their main subterfuge for evading the operation of the law.

WITH MASKS AND REVOLVERS.

Two Robbers Hold Up a Clifton Hill Store Keeper.

Two men entered Brigham's cigar and confectionery store at Forty-fifth and Grant streets at 11:30 Wednesday night. Mr. Brigham was alone and the men each bought some chewing tobacco and left the store. Brigham was preparing to close his place of business when they returned again, this time with their faces covered with cloth masks. They presented guns at his head and proceeded leisurely to rob the till. They found $10 in change. The men then they slipped themselves to a box of gas and left.

The district is patrolled by a policeman every other night. Wednesday night was the first night that the police were called out and consequently the men were not likely to be interrupted. The police have a fair description of the two robbers and they are likely to be apprehended.

ARE ARRAYED AGAINST IT

Many Citizens Seeking to Prevent Issue of Platte Canal Mandamus.

HAVE UNTIL MONDAY TO FILE PETITIONS

Take the Position that the Law is Not Constitutional—Answer of the County Yesterday—Case Getting to Be Many Sided.

The Platte river canal mandamus suit was called in Judge Anderson's room in The Bee building and definitely set for hearing on May 15, before a special banc of judges. Numerous intervenors appeared in court when the case was called and asked and obtained leave to fight the suit.

Before the suit is many months older it will be complicated by petitions, cross-petitions, answers and replies. A whole host of citizens, in addition to some fourteen who have publicly asked permission to contest the granting of the mandamus, to it is claimed by the intervenors, are anxious to contest. The first of these pleadings to be filed, since D. C. Patterson in the mandamus suit asked the court, as a property owner and relator for the state of Nebraska, to cause the commissioners to call a special election, was the petition of intervention of Guy C. Burton, William A. Paxton, John A. Creighton, Andrew J. Poppleton, Henry W. Yates, Charles W. Lyman, Alfred Millard, John A. Horbach, James B. Kitchen, William Gilland, Joseph H. Millard and Curtis C. Turner.

This petition was referred to the court by Messrs. Orft and Poppleton, who represent these parties. They ask others who feel aggrieved to join hands with them.

The attorneys asked the court for permission to file their petition, reciting that the commissioners were a quasi-judicial body, divided in opinion upon the merits of the case, and engaged with the multitude of other duties to such an extent that they could not give the subject due attention; that the intervenors had as much interest in the case as Patterson, to say the least, and that there were many facts which should be brought out which they desired to adduce in court. The judge gave them until Monday night to file an answer, stating that the case must be definitely heard one week from Saturday.

Commissioners Sutton and Stenberg, were present. Mr. Sutton stated that his answer would be filed in the afternoon on his own behalf, individually, as he favored the canal, and that it would file a general denial. This would throw the costs on Patterson and also put him in the attitude he wished to occupy, of having favored the canal.

The intervenors, whose interests were represented by Stenberg, filed his answer in the afternoon. The answer was in the nature of a demurrer, being technically a hybrid between a demurrer and a plea in abatement. The intervenors hereofore mapped out as the subjects of controversy, the claim of the county attorney being that the commissioners were their best judgment in rejecting the petition on full consideration of the subject.

Frank Ransom intervened in his own behalf and was given the same date for pleading as the other intervenors.

Mr. Poppleton was asked why his clients intervened and stated: "It was for the purpose of testing the law and making a vigorous and earnest defense to the proceedings of Mr. Patterson. We consider the law unconstitutional."

Directly, the American Water Works company has not intervened, and Richard Hall, an attorney for the receivers, said it would not, as the court had charge of the company and certainly would not give it the right to do so if it wanted to.

PILING UP THE EVIDENCE.

Material Testimony in the McCabe Arson Case.

The families of McCabe and Schultz continue to occupy front seats in criminal court during the progress of the trial of the arson case against J. H. McCabe, Mrs. McCabe, Mrs. Schultz, McCabe's niece and the two Schultz children fill up a large space with their chairs in front of the jury, making a suggestive domestic circle.

The evidence continues to pile up regarding the fire in the Withnell block. Both sides express themselves satisfied with the turn the testimony is taking. Delos F. Beard, first called on behalf of the prosecution, recounted the fact that when he went to McCabe's house, directly after the discovery of the fire and between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning, he was answered by some one who spoke in a sleepy tone. Shortly after McCabe rushed down stairs and past him, fully dressed.

Detectives Haze and Dunn identified half a dozen boxes and bundles of excelsior which had been found in the room the following morning, stuffed behind shelving. The pack ages of furs found in the Shelly block on the night of the fire were offered in evidence. They were addressed to L. A. Winters of Iowa, McCabe's father-in-law. Aubaugh, the furrier, said that the wholesale value of the furs was $400. Thomas Lorenson, janitor of the block, admitted having assisted McCabe in placing the boxes in the building the day previous to the fire. Mrs. C. Traynor identified some of her goods which had been found in the Shelly block and which she had entrusted to McCabe for renovation.

Important Supreme Court Ruling.

Word comes from the supreme court that the defendants in the foreclosure suit of Mason against Sharp have been allowed to file a supersedeas bond in the district court and carry the suit before the supreme court of this state.

This is a foreclosure case involving the title to some land in Orchard Hill addition upon which James B. Mason has asked a foreclosure against Clarence A. Sharp and others. After a decision against the defendants they proposed to appeal and filed a bond, among other things agreeing to pay the plaintiff's damages, providing the supreme court overruled their appeal. The Midland bank was interested in the suit and moved to have the bond stricken from the file, which was done. The supreme court then directed the refiling of the bond and announces an important ruling which affects mortgages.

The court holds that an appeal can be taken from a mortgage foreclosure and the appealing party need only engage to pay damages from waste. This leaves the mortgagee without recourse for recovery of the realty. The judges of the district court have heretofore held that what are known as petitions in error are the only means of getting mortgage cases into the supreme court for a review.

Mrs. Hildum Gets Her Decree.

The equity court yesterday adjudged the domestic infelicity of the Hildum family. A divorce was granted Edith H. against her spouse, Albert L.

According to the account the plaintiff gave the cause of her troubles the divorce ends much domestic tribulation. Mrs. Hildum complained because she was frequently in moral apprehension for her life, as her husband on various occasions her husband used to choke her and threaten to practice with his revolver, setting up his wife as a mark.

Advantages of Late Purchases

Here is a fair illustration of the advantages of late purchases. Quite recently we undertook to explain that which many a man in every avocation were kept a guessing. We explained in part the reason why we can sell clothes so much cheaper than others.

We reasoned the advantages of the second crop, or late purchases, more explicitly expressed—readers will remember, no doubt. We mentioned the fact that the manufacturer plays his trump until all small dealers are satisfied, then they succumb with the remaining stock to the mercy of such as we—large consumers and the ready cash. Then comes our turn and we play the trumps. Here is positive proof:

In the month of March we sold 200 suits of one kind at $6.75, a phenomenal run, indeed. It serves to prove that they were bargains—a better bargain we never before had the pleasure of offering. Our buyer in the eastern market was informed of the fact, and he laid low for more and got 'em—196 more (all they had)—but not at the manufacturers figures but at our bid.

The same thing that every man got at a big bargain for $6.75 ought to be $6.75, but they're not. It would be treachery on our part to buy cheaper and not sell it so. We bought for spot cash at $1.25 less on each suit, and we'll sell 'em at $1.25 cheaper for your spot cash.

They're here, the price now is but Five Fifty.
