Grafting and inoculating have become a general in the medical profession, and have brought about such excellent results, says the Brooklyn Eagle, that the whole of medical practice in the future may resolve itself into these forms of treatment. Then will the phy-sician go about with a hypodermic syringe and a little box of vials of lymph and a small paper of grafts, and life will have no terrors unless one has so many diseases at once that he has to carry eight or ten vaccinations on his person at one time. Last week a New Jersey boy who had celebrated the fourth of last July by carrying lighted fire crackers in his pocket, had over 16.000 pieces of skin grafted on him, and he is doing so well that with 15.000 more it is believed that he will recover. About 200 men and boys have yielded up of their precious cuticles to accomplish their result, and perhaps the boy will be willing to do as much for them some
