Times-Herald, "refers to Henry Clay. He was a frequent visitor at my father's house in South Carolina. Both Clay and my father were ardent whist players, and nothin South Carolina. Both Clay and my if father were ardent whist players, and nothing in the state of a state of gentlemen equally addited to whist, and then the quartet would be play for hours. While the name of whist might serve to imply a game where sliency is reigned, my father and Clay didn't play for hours. While the name of whist might serve to imply a game where sliency is reigned, my father and Clay didn't play for hours. They exuited audibly over a success, and did not hesitate when they were playing as partners to violently point out mistakes the other had made, and attributed defeat to the other's ignorance and the one ocasions particularly trying they were another. This they did in no slanderous spirit, but to brighten up and sharpen the game as partners one evening. Clay remarked:

 "It's a great outrage the way we talk to each other, and my idea, now, at the outset, is for each of us to put up $2) to belong to the one who is first called hard names by the other. If you assail me the money is mine; if I forget myself you take it."
